

FIRST TERM – JSS2 ENGLISH STUDIES LESSON NOTES

WEEK 1

SPEECH WORK: LISTENING AND SPEAKING – REVISION OF PURE VOWEL SOUNDS

Objective

By the end of this detailed lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define and explain the concept of a pure vowel (monophthong) versus a diphthong.
2. Accurately identify and list all twelve (12) pure vowel sounds by their phonetic symbols.
3. Orally produce all 12 sounds with correct lip and tongue placement.
4. Distinguish between long and short vowels in spoken and written minimal pairs.

Introduction

Speech sounds are the foundation of clear communication. Vowel sounds are particularly important as they form the "peak" of every syllable. A Pure Vowel, or Monophthong, is a single, unchanging vowel sound produced by a fixed position of the tongue and lips (e.g., the 'ee' in 'see'). This is different from a diphthong, which is a glide from one vowel position to another (e.g., the 'oi' in 'boy').

We will review the 12 pure vowels, grouping them by tongue position (Front, Central, Back) and length (Short vs. Long).

A. The Short Vowel Sounds (7)

Front Vowels (Tongue forward in the mouth):

1. /ɪ/: (Short 'i') A high-front vowel.
 - Examples: pit, sit, him, busy, village
2. /e/: (Short 'e') A mid-front vowel.

- Examples: pen, bed, head, said, many

3. /æ/: (Short 'a') A low-front vowel.

- Examples: cat, man, bag, apple, plaid

Central Vowels (Tongue in the middle): 4. /ʌ/: (Short 'u') A low-mid central vowel. *

Examples: cut, luck, son, blood, enough

5. /ə/: (The Schwa) An unstressed, mid-central vowel. This is the most common sound in English. * Examples: about, teacher, doctor, pencil, photograph

Back Vowels (Tongue pulled back): 6. /ɒ/: (Short 'o') A low-back, rounded vowel. * Examples:

not, pot, cot, wash, what

7. /ʊ/: (Short 'oo') A high-back, rounded vowel. * Examples: put, foot, could, woman, book

B. The Long Vowel Sounds (5)

Front Vowels:

1. /i:/: (Long 'ee') A high-front vowel.

- Examples: sheep, feet, sea, me, believe

Central Vowels: 2. /ɜ:/: (Long 'er') A mid-central vowel. * Examples: bird, learn, fur, work, journey

Back Vowels: 3. /ɑ:/: (Long 'ah') A low-back vowel. * Examples: father, car, star, pass, clerk

4. /ɔ:/: (Long 'or') A mid-back, rounded vowel. * Examples: door, board, caught, war, four, all

5. /u:/: (Long 'oo') A high-back, rounded vowel. * Examples: food, blue, loop, group, through

C. Practical Drill: Minimal Pairs

Minimal pairs are two words that sound identical except for one sound. This is the best way to practice listening and speaking.

- /ɪ/ vs /i:/: ship/sheep, sit/seat, fill/feel, grin/green
- /e/ vs /æ/: pen/pan, bed/bad, met/mat
- /ʌ/ vs /ɑ:/: cut/cart, bun/barn, cup/carp

- /ɒ/ vs /ɔ:/: pot/port, cot/caught, shot/short
- /ʊ/ vs /u:/: pull/pool, full/fool, look/Luke

Evaluation

1. In your own words, what is the main difference between a monophthong and a diphthong?
2. Listen as I say the following words: "head," "heart," "hot." Transcribe the phonetic symbol for the vowel sound in each word.
3. Which vowel sound is known as the 'schwa', and in what part of a word is it most commonly found?
4. Provide two different spelling patterns (e.g., 'ea', 'ee') that can produce the /i:/ sound.
5. Which word in this pair has a long vowel sound: sit/seat, full/fool, bad/bed?

Assignment

1. For each of the following long vowel sounds, write two words that contain it: /ɑ:/, /ɔ:/, /u:/.
2. Transcribe the pure vowel sound found in each of these words: work, cat, me, could, wash.
3. Write three minimal pairs that contrast a short vowel with a long vowel (e.g., pit/peat).
4. Write a sentence that contains at least one example of the /æ/ sound and one example of the /e/ sound. Underline the words.
5. Why is it difficult to guess the vowel sound in English from spelling alone? Give an example (e.g., the 'o' in son vs. cot).

GRAMMAR: REVISION OF PARTS OF SPEECH – NOUNS, PRONOUNS, VERBS AND ADJECTIVES

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define and provide multiple examples for each of the four parts of speech.
2. Differentiate between the sub-classes of each part of speech (e.g., abstract vs. concrete nouns, auxiliary vs. lexical verbs).
3. Identify the function of these parts of speech within a sentence (e.g., noun as a subject, adjective as a modifier).
4. Correctly apply the rules of adjectives (e.g., order of adjectives).

Introduction

Words are the building blocks of sentences, and each word has a specific job. We call these jobs "Parts of Speech." Today, we review the four most important ones: the "naming" words (Nouns), the "replacing" words (Pronouns), the "action/state" words (Verbs), and the "describing" words (Adjectives).

Content Detail

A. Nouns (The Naming Words)

- Definition: Nouns name people, places, things, animals, or ideas.
- Classification:
 1. Proper Nouns: Specific names (capitalized). Examples: Mary, Lagos, Monday, Google.
 2. Common Nouns: General names. Examples: girl, city, day, company.
 3. Abstract Nouns: Ideas, feelings, concepts (cannot be touched). Examples: happiness, courage, time, danger.

4. Concrete Nouns: Things that can be perceived by the senses. Examples: table, smoke, music, phone.
 5. Countable Nouns: Can be counted. Examples: three books, many chairs.
 6. Uncountable (Mass) Nouns: Cannot be counted (usually). Examples: water, advice, furniture, rice.
 7. Collective Nouns: Names for a group. Examples: team, family, crowd, committee, flock.
- Functions: Nouns can be the Subject (who/what does the verb), Object (who/what receives the action), or Complement (renames the subject).

B. Pronouns (The Replacing Words)

- Definition: Pronouns replace nouns to avoid repetition.
- Classification:
 1. Personal Pronouns: Represent people/things.
 - Subject: I, you, he, she, it, we, they. (They went home.)
 - Object: me, you, him, her, it, us, them. (She saw them.)
 2. Possessive Pronouns: Show ownership.
 - Determiner (Adjective): my, your, his, her, its, our, their. (That is my book.)
 - Pronoun: mine, yours, his, hers, its, ours, theirs. (That book is mine.)
 3. Reflexive Pronouns: Reflect back to the subject. Examples: myself, yourself, himself, themselves. (He hurt himself.)
 4. Demonstrative Pronouns: Point to specific things. Examples: this, that, these, those. (This is my pen.)
 5. Interrogative Pronouns: Ask questions. Examples: who, whom, whose, what, which. (Who is at the door?)

C. Verbs (The Action/State Words)

- Definition: Verbs express action or a state of being. No sentence is complete without one.
- Classification:
 1. Main/Lexical Verbs: Show the main action/state. Examples: run, eat, think, love.
 2. Auxiliary (Helping) Verbs: Help the main verb (show tense, mood, etc.).
 - Primary: be, have, do. (She is running. He has eaten.)
 - Modal: can, could, will, would, shall, should, may, might, must. (You must go.)
 3. Transitive Verbs: Take a direct object. Example: He kicked the ball. (Kicked what? The ball.)
 4. Intransitive Verbs: Do not take a direct object. Example: The baby slept. (Slept what? No answer.)
 5. Linking (Copular) Verbs: Link the subject to a noun or adjective. Examples: is, are, was, seem, become, feel. (She is a doctor. He seems happy.)

D. Adjectives (The Describing Words)

- Definition: Adjectives modify (describe or limit) nouns or pronouns.
- Function: They answer questions like: What kind? How many? Which one? Whose?
- Classification:
 1. Descriptive (Qualitative): beautiful, tall, red, happy
 2. Quantitative: some, many, few, little, all
 3. Numeral: one, two, first, second
 4. Demonstrative: this, that, these, those
 5. Possessive: my, your, his, her, its, our, their

- Order of Adjectives: When using multiple adjectives, they follow a specific order (OSASCOMP): Opinion (lovely), Size (small), Age (old), Shape (round), Colour (red), Oorigin (Italian), Material (leather), Purpose (racing) ... Example: "a beautiful small new red leather bag."

Evaluation

1. Identify the type of noun for each underlined word: "His courage impressed the team."
2. Correct this sentence: "He bought a racing beautiful big German car."
3. In the sentence, "She told me the secret herself," identify one object pronoun and one reflexive pronoun.
4. Is the verb 'felt' in "He felt sick" Transitive, Intransitive, or Linking? Why?
5. What is the difference between a possessive adjective (e.g., 'my') and a possessive pronoun (e.g., 'mine')?

Assignment

1. Write a sentence for each: (a) a collective noun, (b) an abstract noun.
2. Write a short paragraph (3-4 sentences) describing your classroom. Underline all the adjectives you use.
3. For each verb, write two sentences: one where it is Transitive and one where it is Intransitive. (Verbs: grow, run, write).
4. Fill in the blanks with the correct personal pronoun: "___ (He/Him) and ___ (I/me) went to the store. The storekeeper gave the book to ___ (we/us)."
5. Write a sentence using at least three adjectives in the correct OSASCOMP order to describe an object.

READING & COMPREHENSION: REVIEW OF THE SQ3R READING TECHNIQUE

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define SQ3R and state its purpose as an active reading strategy.
2. Describe, in detail, the actions required for each of the five steps.
3. Apply the 'Q' (Question) step by turning sample headings into effective questions.
4. Justify why SQ3R leads to better comprehension and retention than passive reading.

Introduction

Most students read by passing their eyes over the words from beginning to end. This is passive reading, and it's why we forget so much! SQ3R is an active reading strategy. It's a 5-step "treasure map" for your textbooks that forces your brain to engage with the material, making you a hunter for information, not just a passive observer.

The 5 Steps in Detail

1. S = SURVEY (To get the big picture)

- Action: Before you read, skim the chapter for 1-2 minutes. Look at:
 - Title, Headings, and Subheadings: What is the chapter about?
 - Introduction & Conclusion/Summary: These give you the main ideas.
 - Pictures, Charts, or Graphs: Visuals often summarize key points.
 - Bold or Italicized Words: These are key vocabulary.
 - End-of-Chapter Questions: These tell you what the author thinks is important.
- Purpose: To create a mental "skeleton" or "map" of the chapter before you fill it in with details.

2. Q = QUESTION (To create a purpose for reading)

- Action: Turn every heading and subheading into a question. Use the "5 Ws and H": Who, What, When, Where, Why, How.
 - Heading: "The Causes of the Nigerian Civil War"
 - Your Questions: "What were the main causes of the war?" "Who were the key figures?" "When did it start?"
- Purpose: This gives your brain a specific mission. You are now actively searching for answers, not just reading words.

3. R¹ = READ (To find the answers)

- Action: Read the section under each heading, actively looking for the answers to the questions you just formed.
 - Read with a pencil or highlighter.
 - Mark or underline the answers when you find them.
 - Make brief notes in the margin.
 - Pay attention to the bold words and visuals you surveyed.
- Purpose: To actively engage with the text and extract the most important information.

4. R² = RECITE (To build memory)

- Action: After finishing a section, look away from the book and try to answer your question(s) aloud or by writing a summary sentence in your own words.
- Purpose: This is the most crucial step for memory. It moves information from your short-term memory (which forgets in seconds) to your long-term memory. If you can't say it in your own words, you don't understand it yet.

5. R³ = REVIEW (To lock in the learning)

- Action:
 - Immediate Review: When you finish the entire chapter, look over your notes and the headings. See if you can still answer your questions.

- Later Review: Spend 5-10 minutes reviewing your notes 24 hours later, and again a week later.
- Purpose: This overcomes forgetting and builds lasting, permanent knowledge.

Evaluation

1. What is the difference between "active reading" (like SQ3R) and "passive reading"?
2. A textbook heading says: "The Three Types of Rocks." Write two good "Q" (Question) step questions for this heading.
3. Why is the 'Recite' step considered the most important step for memory?
4. List three specific things you should look for during the 'S' (Survey) step.
5. How does turning a heading into a question change the way you read the section that follows?

Assignment

1. In your own words, write a one-sentence description for each of the 5 steps: Survey, Question, Read, Recite, Review.
2. Take a chapter from any of your other subjects (e.g., Basic Science). Write down its main title and at least three of its headings.
3. For each of the three headings you listed in question 2, write one "Q" (Question) you would ask.
4. Imagine you just Read a section on "Photosynthesis." What would you do for the 'Recite' step?
5. Explain why you must do the 'Survey' step first, before you Read.

COMPOSITION: WRITING AN OUTLINE FOR A NARRATIVE ESSAY – HOW I SPENT MY LAST HOLIDAY

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define a narrative essay and its purpose.
2. Identify the five essential "ingredients" of a good narrative (Plot, Setting, Character, Theme, Point of View).
3. Understand the function of each part of an outline (Introduction, Body, Conclusion).
4. Construct a detailed, logical outline for the given topic, including a hook, thesis, and sensory details.

Introduction

A Narrative Essay is a story, but it's more than just a story. It's a story (usually personal) told with a specific point or purpose (a lesson or main idea). An outline is the skeleton or blueprint for your essay. A house built without a plan will collapse, and an essay written without an outline will be disorganized, repetitive, and confusing.

The Key Ingredients of a Narrative

1. Plot: The sequence of events (what happens first, next, last). It needs a clear beginning, middle (with a climax or main event), and end.
2. Setting: When and where the story takes place.
3. Characters: The people in the story (mainly, "I").
4. Theme: The "so what?" – the main lesson or feeling the reader should get (e.g., "the importance of family," "a new experience can be scary but rewarding").
5. Point of View: Usually told in the 1st Person ("I", "me", "my").

Content Detail: How to Structure the Outline

We will use the topic: "How I Spent My Last Holiday"

I. INTRODUCTION (The "Grabber")

- A. The Hook: A catchy first sentence to grab the reader's attention.
 - Types of Hooks: A line of dialogue ("Are we there yet?"), a vivid description ("The smell of my grandmother's cooking always meant the holiday had truly begun."), or a surprising statement ("My last holiday was a complete disaster.").
- B. Background/Context: Give brief details. When was the holiday? Where did you go? Who were you with?
- C. Thesis Statement: The main point of your story. It states the topic and hints at the overall feeling or lesson.
 - Example Thesis: "My last holiday, spent in my village with my cousins, started out boring but turned into an unforgettable adventure that taught me the importance of family."

II. BODY (The "Story")

This is where the plot unfolds in chronological order (time order). Each paragraph should cover one main idea.

- A. Body Paragraph 1: The Beginning / The Setup
 - Topic Sentence: Introduce the start of the holiday.
 - Details: The journey, arriving at the destination, first impressions.
- B. Body Paragraph 2: The Main Event / Climax
 - Topic Sentence: Introduce the most important or exciting part of the story.
 - Sensory Details (Show, Don't Tell):
 - Sight: What did you see? (e.g., "the bright green mangoes")
 - Sound: What did you hear? (e.g., "the sound of the river")
 - Smell: What did you smell? (e.g., "the smoky scent of the firewood")
 - Actions & Dialogue: What happened? What did people say?

- C. Body Paragraph 3: The Winding Down / Resolution

- Topic Sentence: Describe what happened after the main event.
- Details: The last few days, feelings of happiness or sadness, packing up, the journey home.

III. CONCLUSION (The "Reflection")

- A. Restate Thesis: Reword your thesis statement (from the introduction).
- B. Reflection: This is the most important part.
 - Reflect on the meaning of the story.
 - Why was this holiday memorable? What did you learn? How did it change you?
- C. Concluding Sentence: A final thought that wraps up the essay.
 - Example: "I returned home not just with souvenirs, but with a new appreciation for my family that I would never forget."

Evaluation

1. What is the difference between a simple story and a narrative essay?
2. What are the five "key ingredients" of a narrative?
3. What is a 'Hook'? Write one example of a hook for a story about a rainy day.
4. Explain "Show, Don't Tell." Give an example for "I was sad." (e.g., "Tears welled up in my eyes.")
5. What is the main purpose of the Conclusion in a narrative essay (beyond just ending it)?

Assignment

1. In your own words, define "Thesis Statement" as it relates to a narrative essay.
2. Write a strong thesis statement for the topic: "My First Day in JSS2."

3. Create a detailed, 5-point outline (I-V, using A, B, C sub-points) for the topic: "A Day I Will Never Forget."
4. List three sensory details (sight, sound, smell, etc.) you could use to describe a busy market.
5. Why is it important to write your body paragraphs in chronological order?

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: REVIEW OF FEATURES OF PROSE (SETTING, THEME, CHARACTERIZATION)

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define prose and differentiate it from poetry.
2. Define and explain the functions of Setting, Theme, Characterization, and Plot.
3. Differentiate between Direct and Indirect characterization, providing examples.
4. Identify different types of characters (e.g., Protagonist, Antagonist, Flat, Round).
5. Analyze a simple story to identify these features.

Introduction

Prose is the "ordinary" language we use in speaking and writing, structured in sentences and paragraphs (e.g., novels, short stories, textbooks, newspapers). It is different from Poetry, which uses metric rhythm and verse. When we read prose fiction (novels, short stories), we use "tools" to understand what the author is doing. The most important tools are Setting, Character, Plot, and Theme.

1. Setting

- Definition: The time (e.g., 1960, modern-day, Tuesday) and place (e.g., Lagos, a school, a forest) where the story occurs.
- Functions of Setting:
 1. Creates Mood/Atmosphere: A dark, stormy night (scary) vs. a bright, sunny beach (happy).
 2. Provides Context: A story set in 1850 will have different technology and social rules than a story set today.
 3. Reveals Character: Is the character's room messy or neat?

4. Can be an Antagonist (Conflict): A character trying to survive in the desert or on a deserted island.

2. Characterization

- Definition: The art of creating and describing characters in a story.
- Methods of Characterization:
 1. Direct Characterization: The author tells you the character's personality.
 - Example: "Dele was a lazy and unkind boy."
 2. Indirect Characterization: The author shows you the personality through the character's:
 - Speech (What they say)
 - Thoughts (What they think)
 - Effect on others (How others react to them)
 - Actions (What they do)
 - Looks (How they dress/appear)
 - (Acronym: STEAL)
- Types of Characters:
 1. Protagonist: The main character (the "hero").
 2. Antagonist: The force or character in conflict with the protagonist (the "villain").
 3. Round Character: Complex, multi-sided, realistic (like a real person).
 4. Flat Character: Simple, one-dimensional (e.g., a "mean teacher" with no other personality).
 5. Dynamic Character: A character who changes or grows during the story.
 6. Static Character: A character who stays the same.

3. Plot

- Definition: The sequence of events in a story; what happens.
- The Plot Diagram (Freytag's Pyramid):
 1. Exposition: Introduction of characters and setting.
 2. Rising Action: The build-up of conflict and suspense.
 3. Climax: The peak of the action; the turning point of the story.
 4. Falling Action: The events immediately after the climax.
 5. Resolution (Dénouement): The end, where the conflict is resolved and loose ends are tied up.

4. Theme

- Definition: The central idea, message, or moral of the story. It's a universal truth about life.
- Theme vs. Topic:
 - Topic: A single word (e.g., "Love," "War," "Friendship").
 - Theme: A statement about that topic (e.g., "Love can conquer all," "War is destructive," "True friendship requires sacrifice").
- Examples of Common Themes: Good vs. Evil, Courage, Betrayal, Social Justice, The Importance of Family.

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between Prose and Poetry?
2. Explain the 'STEAL' acronym for Indirect Characterization.
3. What is the 'Climax' of a plot?
4. Is the Antagonist always a person? Explain.

5. What is the difference between a story's Topic (e.g., "Money") and its Theme?

Assignment

1. Define 'Setting' and list its three main functions in a story.
2. Think of a character from any book or movie (e.g., Cinderella, a superhero). Is this character Round or Flat? Dynamic or Static? Explain why.
3. Write a short example (2-3 sentences) of Direct Characterization describing a student.
4. Now, write a short example (2-3 sentences) of Indirect Characterization to show the same thing (e.g., if he is lazy, show him arriving late, uniform rumpled, etc.).
5. What do you think is a common theme in stories about school?

WEEK 2

SPEECH WORK: REVISION OF CONSONANT SOUNDS

Objective

By the end of this detailed lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a consonant sound and differentiate it from a vowel sound based on airflow.
2. Identify and pronounce several consonant sounds based on their place and manner of articulation.
3. Define a consonant cluster and differentiate it from a digraph (e.g., 'sh', 'th').
4. Accurately identify and pronounce initial (2- and 3-member) and final consonant clusters in given words.

Introduction

In Week 1, we learned that vowel sounds are produced with a free, unobstructed flow of air.

Consonant sounds are the opposite. They are produced by partially or completely obstructing the flow of air from the lungs through the vocal tract.

A Consonant Cluster (also called a consonant blend) is a group of two or more consonants that appear together in a word, where each consonant sound is pronounced. This is different from a digraph (like /ʃ/ in 'ship' or /θ/ in 'thin'), where two letters team up to make one new sound.

- Cluster (Blend): In "brick" (/brɪk/), you hear both the /b/ and the /r/.
- Digraph: In "thick" (/θɪk/), the 't' and 'h' combine to make one sound, /θ/.

A. Revision of Consonant Sounds (Brief)

Consonants are classified by:

1. Place of Articulation: Where the obstruction happens (e.g., Bilabial - both lips /p/, /b/, /m/; Alveolar - tongue-tip on tooth ridge /t/, /d/, /n/, /s/, /z/, /l/).

2. Manner of Articulation: How the air is obstructed (e.g., Plosives/Stops - air is stopped completely /p/, /t/, /k/; Fricatives - air is forced through a narrow gap /f/, /v/, /s/, /z/; Nasals - air escapes through the nose /m/, /n/, /ŋ/).
3. Voicing: Whether the vocal cords vibrate (Voiced - /b/, /d/, /g/, /v/) or not (Voiceless - /p/, /t/, /k/, /f/).

B. Consonant Clusters: Initial Position

These appear at the beginning of a word.

1. Two-Member Initial Clusters (s-clusters):

- /sp/: spot, speak, spin
- /st/: stop, stand, stay
- /sk/: skin, sky, skip
- /sm/: smile, smoke, small
- /sn/: snake, snow, snailed
- /sl/: slip, sleep, slow

2. Two-Member Initial Clusters (l-clusters):

- /pl/: play, plate, please
- /bl/: blue, blow, black
- /kl/: clean, class, climb
- /gl/: glad, glass, glow
- /fl/: fly, flat, floor

3. Two-Member Initial Clusters (r-clusters):

- /pr/: pray, price, proud
- /br/: bring, bread, brown

- /tr/: tree, try, train
- /dr/: dry, dream, drink
- /kr/: cry, crab, crown
- /gr/: grow, green, great
- /fr/: from, free, friend

4. Three-Member Initial Clusters (All start with /s/):

- /spl/: splash, split, splendid
- /spr/: spring, spray, spread
- /str/: street, strong, straight
- /skr/: scream, scrub, script
- /skw/ (/skw/): square, squeeze, squid

C. Consonant Clusters: Final Position

These appear at the end of a word.

- /st/: last, fast, test
- /sk/: mask, task, desk
- /ld/: old, cold, field
- /nd/: hand, land, send
- /nt/: went, plant, tent
- /mp/: jump, lamp, camp
- /lps/: helps
- /ksts/: texts (/teksts/)

Evaluation

1. In your own words, explain the main difference between a vowel and a consonant.
2. What is a consonant cluster? How is it different from a digraph like 'ch'?
3. Identify the initial consonant cluster in the word "street" and the final consonant cluster in the word "hand".
4. Listen as I say the following words: "friend," "splash," "slow." Write down the phonetic symbols for the initial cluster in each word.
5. Which of these words contains a three-member initial cluster: crab, scratch, play?

Assignment

1. Write two words for each of the following initial consonant clusters: /tr/, /gl/, /sp/, /fr/.
2. Write two words for each of the following final consonant clusters: /nt/, /ld/, /st/.
3. Write two words that contain a three-member initial cluster (e.g., /str/, /spl/).
4. Write a sentence that contains at least two different words with initial consonant clusters. Underline the words.
5. Look at the word "church". Does it contain a consonant cluster? Explain your answer.

GRAMMAR: TRANSITIVE AND INTRANSITIVE VERBS

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define and differentiate between Transitive and Intransitive verbs.
2. Accurately identify the Direct Object (DO) of a Transitive verb.
3. Define and identify Ditransitive verbs, distinguishing between the Direct Object (DO) and the Indirect Object (IO).
4. Identify and use ambitransitive verbs (verbs that can be both) correctly in sentences.

Introduction

In Week 1, we learned that a verb expresses action or a state of being. Now, we will classify verbs based on whether they need an "object" to complete their meaning. An object is a noun or pronoun that receives the action of the verb.

A. Transitive Verbs (V + DO)

- Definition: A transitive verb is an action verb that must have a Direct Object (DO).
- Direct Object (DO): The noun or pronoun that receives the action. It answers the question What? or Whom? after the verb.
- Formula: Subject + Transitive Verb + Direct Object (S + V + DO)
- Examples:
 1. Tolu kicked the ball. (Kicked what? ... the ball. "kicked" is transitive; "ball" is DO.)
 2. The teacher praised him. (Praised whom? ... him. "praised" is transitive; "him" is DO.)
 3. Ayo bought a new bag. (Bought what? ... a new bag. "bought" is transitive; "bag" is DO.)

- A sentence with only a transitive verb and a subject is incomplete: Tolu kicked. (Kicked what? It feels unfinished.)

B. Intransitive Verbs (V)

- Definition: An intransitive verb is an action verb (or state of being verb) that does not take an object. It is complete on its own.
- Formula: Subject + Intransitive Verb (S + V)
- Examples:
 1. The baby cried. (Cried what? No answer. The verb is complete.)
 2. He arrived early. ("Early" is an adverb telling when, not an object receiving an action.)
 3. Birds fly.
- These verbs cannot have a direct object. You cannot "cried something" or "arrived something."

C. Ambitransitive Verbs (Verbs that can be both)

- Definition: Many verbs can be either transitive or intransitive, depending on the context.
- Examples:
 1. eat:
 - Transitive: We ate jollof rice. (Ate what? ... jollof rice.)
 - Intransitive: We ate at 7 pm. (Ate what? No answer. "at 7 pm" is when.)
 2. read:
 - Transitive: She is reading a book. (Reading what? ... a book.)
 - Intransitive: She is reading. (The action is complete on its own.)
 3. grow:
 - Transitive: The farmer grows maize. (Grows what? ... maize.)

- Intransitive: The boy grew quickly. (Grew what? No answer.)

D. Ditransitive Verbs (V + IO + DO)

- Definition: A special type of transitive verb that takes two objects: an Indirect Object (IO) and a Direct Object (DO).
- Indirect Object (IO): The person/thing that receives the Direct Object. It answers the question To whom? or For whom?. The IO always comes before the DO.
- Formula: Subject + Ditransitive Verb + Indirect Object + Direct Object (S + V + IO + DO)
- Examples:
 1. My father gave me the money.
 - Gave what? ... the money (DO)
 - Gave the money to whom? ... me (IO)
 2. She bought her sister a gift.
 - Bought what? ... a gift (DO)
 - Bought the gift for whom? ... her sister (IO)
 3. The teacher told the class a story.
 - Told what? ... a story (DO)
 - Told the story to whom? ... the class (IO)

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a transitive and an intransitive verb?
2. In the sentence, "The student answered the question," identify the verb and the direct object.
3. In the sentence, "My mother baked me a cake," identify the Indirect Object and the Direct Object.

4. The verb 'run' can be ambitransitive. Write one sentence where 'run' is transitive and one where it is intransitive.
5. Is the verb 'sleep' transitive or intransitive? Why?

Assignment

1. Write two original sentences using transitive verbs. Underline the verb and circle the direct object.
2. Write two original sentences using intransitive verbs.
3. Identify the verb, IO, and DO in each sentence: a. The postman handed Funke a letter. b. My uncle promised me a new phone.
4. For each verb, write two sentences: one where it is Transitive and one where it is Intransitive. (Verbs: play, write, sing).
5. What is a ditransitive verb? Give an original example.

READING & COMPREHENSION: READING TO UNDERSTAND THE WRITER'S PURPOSE

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define "author's purpose."
2. Identify and explain the four main purposes for writing: to Persuade, Inform, Entertain, and Describe (PIE-D).
3. Analyze a short text to determine its primary purpose.
4. Identify clues in a text (like tone, diction, and text features) that reveal the author's purpose.

Introduction

Every time an author writes something—be it a textbook, a novel, a newspaper article, or an advert—they have a reason or a purpose for writing. As active readers, our job is to figure out why they wrote it. Understanding the purpose helps us understand the main idea and evaluate the text properly. Is the author trying to teach us, change our minds, or just make us laugh?

A. The Main Purposes for Writing (Acronym: PIE-D)

1. P = to PERSUADE

- Goal: To make the reader agree with an opinion, change their mind, or do something.
- Clues: Uses opinions, emotional language, strong adjectives, rhetorical questions, and a call to action. It presents one side as the best.
- Examples: Advertisements, political speeches, opinion articles, debate arguments, letters of complaint.

- Passage Example: "It is vital that all students stop buying single-use plastic bottles. They are destroying our environment and polluting our oceans. We must act now! Bring a reusable bottle to school tomorrow."

2. I = to INFORM

- Goal: To teach the reader, explain a topic, or give facts and information.
- Clues: Uses facts, statistics, dates, definitions, and a formal, neutral tone. It is objective.
- Examples: Textbooks, news reports (not opinion articles), encyclopedias, user manuals.
- Passage Example: "The Nile River is the longest river in the world, stretching over 6,650 kilometers. It flows north through eleven African countries before emptying into the Mediterranean Sea."

3. E = to ENTERTAIN

- Goal: To provide enjoyment for the reader.
- Clues: Uses a story (plot, characters, setting), suspense, humor, or exciting action.
- Examples: Novels, short stories, poems, song lyrics, comics, jokes.
- Passage Example: "The old door creaked open. Tunde held his breath, peering into the darkness. A pair of red eyes suddenly glowed from the far corner of the room. He screamed."

4. D = to DESCRIBE

- Goal: To paint a picture in the reader's mind using words.
- Clues: Uses vivid sensory details (sight, sound, smell, taste, touch) and strong adjectives and adverbs. (This is closely related to Entertaining and will be our focus in Composition).
- Examples: Descriptive essays, detailed passages in novels, travelogues.

- Passage Example: "The market was a riot of noise and colour. The air was thick with the smell of overripe mangoes, strong spices, and diesel fumes from the buses roaring past."

B. How to Find the Purpose

Ask these questions as you read:

1. What is the Tone? Is the author's attitude serious, humorous, angry, objective? (e.g., An angry tone often means persuade).
2. What is the Diction? What words does the author choose? Are they emotional words (e.g., terrible, wonderful) or factual words (e.g., percentage, dates)?
3. What are the Text Features? Does the text contain facts and charts (Inform)? Opinions (Persuade)? Characters and dialogue (Entertain)?

Evaluation

1. What does the acronym "PIE-D" stand for in relation to author's purpose?
2. If an article contains many facts, statistics, and a neutral tone, what is its likely purpose?
3. What is the main goal of a writer whose purpose is to persuade?
4. How does the tone of a text (e.g., humorous, serious) help you identify the author's purpose?
5. Read this: "The new 'Speedy' phone is the best you can buy. It has a sleek design and a brilliant camera. Don't waste your money on inferior brands. Buy one today!" What is the author's purpose?

Assignment

1. In your own words, explain the difference between writing to Inform and writing to Persuade.
2. Find an advertisement in a magazine or newspaper (or online). What is its main purpose, and how do you know?
3. Find a short news report (not an opinion piece). What is its purpose, and what clues (e.g., word choice) tell you this?
4. What is the primary purpose of your English Literature novel?
5. Write a short, 3-sentence paragraph with the primary purpose of entertaining the reader.

COMPOSITION: DESCRIPTIVE ESSAY – WRITING AN OUTLINE

"A Place of Interest I Visited"

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define a descriptive essay and differentiate it from a narrative essay.
2. Identify the importance of "Show, Don't Tell" and the use of sensory details.
3. Brainstorm sensory details (sight, sound, smell, taste, touch) for a chosen topic.
4. Construct a logical outline for a descriptive essay.

Introduction

In Week 1, we planned a narrative essay, which tells a story about what happened. This week, we plan a descriptive essay, which paints a picture with words. The goal is not to tell a story, but to make the reader feel like they are in the place.

Your most important tool is Sensory Language. You must appeal to the five senses. The secret is "Show, Don't Tell."

- Telling: "The food was delicious." (Boring)
- Showing: "The hot, spicy aroma of the goat meat pepper soup made my mouth water, and the first spoonful exploded with flavour." (Vivid)

A. Brainstorming Sensory Details for "A Place of Interest I Visited"

- (Example Place: A Busy Market, e.g., Onitsha Market or Balogun Market)
- SIGHT: Piles of red tomatoes, bright ankara fabrics, mountains of shoes, huge crowds, rusty roofs, fast-moving wheelbarrows.
- SOUND: Shouting of sellers ("Buy your own!"), haggling voices, rumble of buses, loud music from speakers, generators humming.

- SMELL: Dust, sweat, overripe fruit (plantains, mangoes), spices, dried fish, exhaust fumes.
- TOUCH: Humid air, sweat on skin, jostling of the crowd, rough texture of a basket.
- TASTE: Sweet slice of pineapple, sachet water, spicy suya bought from a vendor.

B. How to Structure the Outline

Your outline should be organized by senses or by areas of the place (spatial order).

I. INTRODUCTION

- A. The Hook: A strong sensory detail to pull the reader in.
 - Example: "The moment you step into Balogun Market, the roar of a thousand voices and the thick smell of spice and sweat hit you like a wave."
- B. Background: Name the place and state when/why you visited.
- C. Thesis Statement: State the overall feeling or dominant impression of the place.
 - Example: "My visit to the market was an overwhelming but thrilling explosion of life, sound, and colour."

II. BODY (The "Picture")

- A. Body Paragraph 1: The "Big Picture" (Sight & Sound)
 - Topic Sentence: Introduce the dominant visual and auditory landscape.
 - Details: Describe the overall scene. The crowds (sight), the buildings (sight), the constant noise (sound). Use strong verbs and adjectives.
- B. Body Paragraph 2: "Zooming In" (Smell & Specific Sights)
 - Topic Sentence: Focus on a specific section of the place (e.g., the food section).
 - Details: Describe the specific smells (spices, fish). Describe the specific sights (piles of peppers, bags of rice).

- C. Body Paragraph 3: The "Feeling" (Touch, Taste & Atmosphere)

- Topic Sentence: Describe the personal, physical experience.
- Details: Describe the heat, the humidity, the feeling of the crowd (touch).
Describe something you ate (taste). Describe the energy of the place.

III. CONCLUSION (The "Reflection")

- A. Restate Thesis: Reword your thesis (dominant impression).
- B. Reflection: Reflect on the feeling the place left you with.
 - Example: "Leaving the market felt like stepping out of a fast-moving river into quiet, still water."
- C. Concluding Sentence: A final image or thought that summarizes the experience.
 - Example: "Balogun Market is not just a place to buy things; it is the loud, colourful, beating heart of Lagos."

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a descriptive essay and a narrative essay?
2. What does the phrase "Show, Don't Tell" mean?
3. List the five senses you must appeal to in a descriptive essay.
4. Write a strong sensory hook for an essay about "A Beautiful Beach."
5. What is the "thesis statement" of a descriptive essay supposed to do?

Assignment

1. Choose "A Place of Interest I Visited" (e.g., your village, a stadium, a museum, a busy park).
2. Brainstorm a list of at least 15 sensory details for your chosen place (3 for each sense).

3. Write a clear thesis statement that captures the dominant impression of your place.
4. Using your brainstorm, create a detailed 5-point outline (I-V, with A, B, C sub-points) for your descriptive essay.
5. Rewrite this "Telling" sentence into a "Showing" sentence: "The man was angry."

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: USING THE RECOMMENDED TEXT ON PROSE

Applying Literary Elements to a Prose Text

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Identify their recommended prose text for the term.
2. Define the key literary elements from Week 1 (Plot, Setting, Character, Theme) in the context of their specific book.
3. Begin to analyze their recommended text by asking targeted questions about these elements.

Introduction

Last week, we learned the definitions of Plot, Setting, Character, and Theme. This week, our goal is to use those definitions like a detective's magnifying glass to analyze the specific prose novel or text your class is reading. Literature is not just about what happens; it's about how and why it happens.

(Teacher, please state the recommended text for the class here. e.g., "The Passport of Mallam Ilia," "The Bottled Leopard," "Eze Goes to School," or another appropriate text. The following content will be generic, and you will guide the students to apply it to your specific book.)

A Guide to Analyzing Your Novel

You will start a "Reading Journal" or "Literary Logbook." For each chapter you read, you will take notes based on these four elements.

1. Analyzing PLOT

- What to ask: What is happening? How does the action build?
- Your Task:

- Exposition: Who are the main characters and where does the story start? (Usually Chapter 1).
- Rising Action: What is the main conflict or problem? (e.g., The main character wants something but can't get it; someone is in danger). List 3-4 key events that make this problem more complicated.
- Climax: (You may not have reached this yet). What is the "point of no return" or the highest point of action you have read so far?
- Foreshadowing: Are there any clues that hint at what might happen later?

2. Analyzing SETTING

- What to ask: Where and when does this story take place? How does that matter?
- Your Task:
 - Identify the main setting(s) (e.g., a village, a city, a school).
 - How does the setting create a mood? (e.g., Is the village peaceful? Is the city dangerous?)
 - How does the setting affect the characters? (e.g., Does poverty in the setting make a character desperate? Does a strict school setting make a character rebellious?)

3. Analyzing CHARACTERIZATION

- What to ask: Who are the people in this story? Why do they do what they do?
- Your Task:
 - Protagonist: Who is the main character (hero)? What are their traits (e.g., brave, clever, stubborn)?
 - Antagonist: Who or what is against the protagonist? (It could be a person, a group, or even nature/society).

- STEAL Acronym: Find one example of Indirect Characterization for your protagonist:
 - Speech: What does a line of dialogue show about them?
 - Thoughts: What do their private thoughts reveal?
 - Effect on others: How do others react to them?
 - Actions: What does a key action show about their personality?
 - Looks: Does their appearance tell you anything?

4. Analyzing THEME

- What to ask: What is the "big idea" or message of this story?
- Your Task:
 - Topic: What is the story about (one word)? (e.g., "Friendship," "Revenge," "Justice," "Poverty").
 - Theme: What is the author's message about that topic? (A full sentence).
 - Topic: "Poverty"
 - Theme (possible): "Poverty can force good people to make difficult choices."
 - As you read, look for moments or quotes that seem to support this theme.

Evaluation

(Based on the class's recommended text)

1. Who is the protagonist of [Insert Recommended Text Title]?
2. Describe the main setting of the story so far.
3. What is the main conflict or problem that the protagonist is facing (this is the Rising Action)?

4. Find one example of indirect characterization for the protagonist (e.g., something they did or said that showed their personality).
5. What do you think is one major topic of the book (e.g., "courage," "family," "betrayal")?

Assignment

(To be completed after reading the next assigned chapter/s)

1. Write a 2-3 sentence summary of the plot (what happened) in the chapter(s) you just read.
2. Who is the antagonist of the story? Explain why you think so.
3. How does the setting in this chapter (e.g., the school, the forest) make the character(s) feel or act?
4. Identify one new character (if any) or describe a change in an existing character (Dynamic Character).
5. What lesson or theme do you think the author is trying to teach you with this story?

WEEK 3

SPEECH WORK: LISTENING AND SPEAKING – THE DIPHTHONGS /ɪə/ AND /eə/

The Diphthongs /ɪə/ (as in 'near') and /eə/ (as in 'square')

Objective

By the end of this detailed lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a diphthong and differentiate it from a monophthong (pure vowel).
2. Accurately identify and produce the diphthong /ɪə/.
3. Accurately identify and produce the diphthong /eə/.
4. Distinguish between the two sounds in spoken and written minimal pairs (e.g., 'hear' vs. 'hair').

Introduction

In Week 1, we studied monophthongs (pure vowels), which are single, static vowel sounds. Today, we are studying diphthongs. A diphthong is a "gliding vowel"—a single sound made by gliding from one vowel position to another within the same syllable.

We will focus on two diphthongs that are often confused: /ɪə/ (found in "clear") and /eə/ (found in "bear").

A. The Diphthong /ɪə/ (as in 'near')

- Production: This sound is a glide that starts from the short vowel /ɪ/ (as in 'pit') and moves towards the schwa sound /ə/ (as in 'about').
- Common Spelling Patterns:
 - 'ear': hear, clear, fear, year, dear
 - 'eer': beer, deer, cheer, steer
 - 'ere': here, mere, sphere

- 'ier': fierce, pierce, tier

B. The Diphthong /eə/ (as in 'square')

- Production: This sound is a glide that starts from the short vowel /e/ (as in 'bed') and moves towards the schwa sound /ə/.
- Common Spelling Patterns:
 - 'ear': bear, pear, wear, tear (to rip)
 - 'are': care, dare, square, rare
 - 'air': hair, fair, chair, pair
 - 'ere': there, where
 - 'eir': their

C. Practical Drill: Minimal Pairs

This is the best way to hear and practice the difference. Say the following pairs aloud, exaggerating the starting vowel.

/ɪə/ (near) /eə/ (square)

hear hair

beer bear

cheer chair

dear dare fear fair

Evaluation

1. In your own words, what is the main difference between a monophthong and a diphthong?

2. Which vowel sound does the diphthong /ɪə/ start with: /ɪ/ or /e/?
3. Listen as I say these words: "chair," "year," "rare." Which word contains the /ɪə/ sound?
4. Transcribe the phonetic symbol for the vowel sound in the word "clear."
5. Which word in this pair has the /eə/ sound: peer or pair?

Assignment

1. Write two words for each of the following spelling patterns for /eə/: 'are' and 'air'.
2. Write two words for each of the following spelling patterns for /ɪə/: 'eer' and 'ear'.
3. Write three minimal pairs that contrast the sounds /ɪə/ and /eə/.
4. Write a sentence that contains one word with /ɪə/ and one word with /eə/. (e.g., "I can't hear you from over there.") Underline the words.
5. Transcribe the vowel sound in the following words: wear, fierce, square, cheer, their.

GRAMMAR: MORE ON ACTIVE AND PASSIVE VOICE

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define Active and Passive voice and identify them in sentences.
2. Identify the 'agent' in a passive sentence.
3. Accurately convert sentences from Active to Passive voice for various tenses.
4. Accurately convert sentences from Passive to Active voice.
5. Explain the main reasons why a writer would choose to use the passive voice.

Introduction

The "voice" of a verb tells us whether the subject of the sentence is performing the action or receiving the action.

- Active Voice: The subject does the action. (e.g., "The cat chased the mouse.")
- Passive Voice: The subject receives the action. (e.g., "The mouse was chased by the cat.")

A. Identifying Active vs. Passive

- Active: Subject + Verb + Object
 - Example: "The principal punished the students." (Subject 'principal' did the punishing).
- Passive: Subject (Receiver) + Verb to be + Past Participle + (by + Agent)
 - Example: "The students were punished by the principal." (Subject 'students' received the punishment).

- The "doer" of the action in a passive sentence is called the agent, introduced with "by".

B. How to Convert from Active to Passive

1. The Object of the active sentence becomes the new Subject.
2. The Verb is changed to: [Verb 'to be' in the original tense] + [Past Participle].
3. The Subject of the active sentence becomes the Agent (using "by") or is left out.

C. Tense Conversion Table (Active → Passive)

Tense	Active Example	Passive Conversion
Simple Present	He writes a letter.	A letter is written by him.
Simple Past	He wrote a letter.	A letter was written by him.
Present Cont.	He is writing a letter.	A letter is being written by him.
Past Cont.	He was writing a letter.	A letter was being written by him.
Present Perfect	He has written a letter.	A letter has been written by him.
Past Perfect	He had written a letter.	A letter had been written by him.
Future (will)	He will write a letter.	A letter will be written by him.
Modal (can)	He can write a letter.	A letter can be written by him.

D. When and Why to Use the Passive Voice

Using the active voice is usually stronger and more direct, but the passive voice is very useful in specific situations:

1. When the agent (doer) is unknown:
 - "My bicycle was stolen last night." (We don't know who stole it).
2. When the agent is unimportant or obvious:
 - "The president was re-elected." (We know he was re-elected by the voters).

- "Rice is grown in Nigeria." (It's grown by farmers).
3. To emphasize the receiver of the action (the subject):
 - "The student was praised by the principal." (We want to focus on the student, not the principal).
 4. To sound objective and formal (common in science and news):
 - "The solution was heated to 50°C." (Instead of "The scientist heated the solution...").

Evaluation

1. Is the following sentence Active or Passive? "The food is being cooked by my mother."
2. Identify the 'agent' in this sentence: "The goal was scored by the striker."
3. Convert this sentence to Passive Voice: "The teacher teaches the students."
4. Convert this sentence to Active Voice: "The house will be built by the engineers."
5. What is one good reason to use the passive voice? (e.g., "When the doer is...")

Assignment

1. Convert the following sentence to Passive Voice in three different tenses (Simple Past, Simple Present, Future-will): "The farmer plants the seeds."
2. Convert the following sentences to Active Voice: a. The report was written by the committee. b. The classroom had been cleaned by the students.
3. Rewrite this sentence using the passive voice to sound more scientific: "I added 10ml of acid to the beaker."
4. Why is the passive voice used in this sentence? "My phone was stolen in the market."

5. Write one original sentence in the Active Voice (Present Continuous) and one in the Passive Voice (Past Perfect).

READING & COMPREHENSION: WRITER'S INTENTION & VOCABULARY

A: Identifying Words that Show the Writer's Intention (Bias) B: Vocabulary Development – Word Families (In the Hospital)

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Differentiate between a writer's purpose (PIE-D) and their intention (attitude/bias).
2. Define denotation and connotation.
3. Analyze a text for loaded words (diction) and tone to understand the writer's hidden bias.
4. Identify and correctly use vocabulary related to a hospital setting.

Part A: Identifying Writer's Intention (Bias)

Introduction

In Week 2, we learned about the author's Purpose (To Inform, Persuade, Entertain, Describe). Now, we look deeper at Intention (also called Bias or Tone). The intention is the feeling or attitude the writer has towards their subject. A writer can have the purpose to inform, but their intention might be to make the subject seem good or bad.

1. Denotation vs. Connotation

- Denotation: The literal, dictionary definition of a word.
 - Example: pig = "a farm animal with a snout."
- Connotation: The emotional feeling or idea associated with a word.
 - Example: pig = "dirty, greedy, or unpleasant."

Writers show their intention by choosing words with strong connotations.

2. Diction (Word Choice) and Tone Let's analyze the intention on the topic of corruption:

- Passage 1 (Neutral/Objective Tone): "An investigation found that the minister transferred ₦50 million from a public account to a private one."
 - Intention: To inform. The word "transferred" is neutral (denotation).
- Passage 2 (Critical/Negative Tone): "The corrupt minister brazenly stole ₦50 million of the people's money and siphoned it into a secret account."
 - Intention: To persuade the reader that the minister is a criminal.
 - Loaded Words: "corrupt," "brazenly," "stole," "siphoned" (all have strong negative connotations).
- Passage 3 (Supportive/Evasive Tone): "The minister reallocated the ₦50 million to a contingency fund as an executive decision."
 - Intention: To persuade the reader that the action was normal or justified.
 - Loaded Words: "reallocated," "contingency fund," "executive decision" (all sound professional and positive).

Part B: Vocabulary Development – Word Families (In the Hospital)

- Core Word: Hospital, Clinic
- People (Nouns):
 - Doctor / Physician: A general medical practitioner.
 - Surgeon: A doctor who performs operations.
 - Nurse: A person who cares for the sick.
 - Patient: A person receiving medical treatment.
 - Pharmacist: A person who dispenses medicine.
- Places (Nouns):
 - Ward: A large room in a hospital for patients.
 - (Operating) Theatre: The room where surgeons perform operations.

- Laboratory: The place where blood/tests are analyzed.
- Pharmacy / Dispensary: The place where medicine is given out.
- Emergency Room (ER) / Casualty: The department for urgent, life-threatening cases.
- Actions (Verbs):
 - Diagnose: To identify an illness.
 - Treat: To give medical care.
 - Operate (on): To perform surgery.
 - Prescribe: To write an order for medicine.
 - Admit: To check a patient into the hospital.
 - Discharge: To release a patient from the hospital.
- Concepts & Things (Nouns):
 - Diagnosis: The identification of an illness.
 - Treatment: The medical care given.
 - Operation / Surgery: The act of cutting the body to repair it.
 - Prescription: The written note for medicine.
 - Medicine / Drug: A substance used to treat illness.
 - Symptom: A sign of illness (e.g., fever, cough).
- Descriptive (Adjectives):
 - Medical: Relating to medicine.
 - Surgical: Relating to surgery.
 - Clinical: Relating to a clinic.
 - Healthy / Ill / Sick / Injured.

Evaluation

1. What is the difference between a word's denotation and its connotation?
2. What is a "loaded word"?
3. Read this: "The reckless driver smashed into the pole." What intention (attitude) does the writer have towards the driver?
4. What is the name of the doctor who performs operations?
5. What verb means "to identify an illness"?

Assignment

1. What is the difference between an author's purpose and their intention?
2. Rewrite this neutral sentence to show a negative intention: "The girl walked down the street."
3. Rewrite the same sentence to show a positive intention.
4. Write a short paragraph (3-4 sentences) about a patient visiting a hospital, using at least five words from the "Vocabulary Development" list.
5. What is the noun form of the verb "prescribe"? What is the noun form of the verb "diagnose"?

COMPOSITION: ELEMENTS OF COMPOSITION – THE WRITING PROCESS

The Writing Process (Pre-writing, Writing, and Post-writing)

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. List and explain the three main stages of the writing process.
2. Describe at least two pre-writing techniques.
3. Explain the function of the Body and Conclusion during the 'Writing' (Drafting) stage.
4. Differentiate between 'Revising' and 'Editing' in the 'Post-writing' stage.

Introduction

Good essays do not appear by magic. They are built. Professional writers use a system called The Writing Process to turn their ideas into a clear, organized, and polished final piece. We will learn this 3-stage process:

1. Pre-writing (Planning)
2. Writing (Drafting)
3. Post-writing (Revising, Editing, and Proofreading)

1. Stage 1: Pre-writing (The Plan)

This is the 'thinking' stage. You do this before you write your first sentence.

- A. Brainstorming: Generating all possible ideas on your topic.
 - Techniques:
 - Listing: Simply writing down all ideas, words, and phrases that come to mind.

- Mind-Mapping: Starting with the topic in a central bubble and drawing "legs" for main ideas, with smaller "twigs" for details.
- B. Outlining: Organizing your brainstormed ideas into a logical structure. This is the "skeleton" of your essay, which we practiced in Weeks 1 and 2. It includes:
 - I. Introduction (Hook, Thesis)
 - II. Body Paragraph 1 (Topic Sentence, Details)
 - III. Body Paragraph 2 (Topic Sentence, Details)
 - IV. Body Paragraph 3...
 - V. Conclusion (Restate Thesis, Final Thought)

2. Stage 2: Writing (The First Draft)

This is the 'building' stage. Your goal is to get your ideas from the outline onto the paper in full sentences.

- A. Focus on Flow, Not Perfection: Don't stop to check every spelling. Just write. This is called the "first draft" or "rough draft."
- B. The Body: This is the main part of the essay. Each main idea from your outline (II, III, IV) becomes a separate Body Paragraph.
 - Each body paragraph MUST have a Topic Sentence (the main idea of that paragraph) and Supporting Details (examples, sensory details, explanations).
- C. The Conclusion: This is the final paragraph that wraps up the essay. It MUST do two things:
 1. Restate the Thesis: Say your main point again, but in different words.
 2. Give a Final Thought: End with a reflection, a lesson learned, or a strong final image.

3. Stage 3: Post-writing (The Polish)

This is the most important stage, where a "good" draft becomes an "excellent" essay. This stage has two parts:

- A. Revising (Big Picture): You re-read your draft to check the ideas and organization.
 - Use the acronym ARMS:
 - Add: Does this paragraph need more details or examples?
 - Remove: Does this sentence go off-topic?
 - Move: Would this sentence be better in a different paragraph?
 - Substitute: Can I use a stronger verb or a more descriptive adjective?
- B. Editing/Proofreading (Corrections): You check your revised draft for errors.
 - Use the acronym CUPS:
 - Capitalization: Are all proper nouns and first words capitalized?
 - Usage: Is the GRAMMAR correct (e.g., subject-verb agreement)?
 - Punctuation: Are there full stops, commas, and question marks in the right places?
 - Spelling: Are all words spelled correctly?

Evaluation

1. What are the three main stages of the writing process?
2. What is the purpose of the 'Pre-writing' stage?
3. What are the two essential parts of a good Conclusion paragraph?
4. What is the difference between 'Revising' (ARMS) and 'Editing' (CUPS)?
5. What does the 'S' in CUPS stand for?

Assignment

1. In your own words, describe the difference between listing and mind-mapping.

2. What is a "Topic Sentence" and in which part of the essay do you find it?
3. Take the outline you wrote for your Descriptive Essay in Week 2.
4. Write a full first draft of that essay (the 'Writing' stage).
5. After writing the draft, edit it using CUPS. Underline or circle at least three corrections (Spelling, Punctuation, or Capitalization) that you made.

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: FEATURES OF FOLKTALES & PROSE ANALYSIS

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define a folktale and its origin in oral tradition.
2. List and explain at least five common features of folktales (e.g., didactic, anthropomorphism).
3. Define and differentiate between internal and external conflict.
4. Identify the main types of conflict (Man vs. Man, Man vs. Self, etc.) in their recommended prose text.

Part A: Features of Folktales

Introduction

A Folktale is a story that has been passed down from one generation to the next through oral tradition (speaking and listening), long before it was ever written down. Every culture has them. The main purpose of folktales is usually didactic—meaning they are designed to teach a moral lesson about life, behavior, or values.

Common Features

1. Oral Tradition: They are "stories of the people" and often begin with a formula like, "Once upon a time..." and end with "...they lived happily ever after" or a similar phrase.
2. Didactic (Moral Lesson): This is the most important feature. They teach lessons (e.g., "why the tortoise has a cracked shell" teaches a lesson about greed; "the hare and the tortoise" teaches about consistency).

3. Anthropomorphism: This is when animals or objects behave like humans. They talk, wear clothes, have jobs, and show human emotions like jealousy, wisdom, or cunning. (e.g., Anansi the Spider, Br'er Rabbit).
4. Stock Characters: The characters are often simple and flat, representing one idea (e.g., the "wise old woman," the "evil stepmother," the "innocent child," the "cunning trickster").
5. Supernatural Elements: The stories often include magic, juju, witches, spirits, or mythical creatures.
6. Inclusion of Songs/Riddles: The storyteller often pauses the story to involve the audience with a song, chant, or riddle.
7. Simple, Repetitive Plot: The plot is usually a simple case of good vs. evil, or a weak-but-clever character defeating a strong-but-foolish one.

Part B: Applying to Recommended Prose Text (Conflict)

Introduction

Just like folktales, our recommended novel also teaches lessons (themes). It does this by showing how characters behave when they face problems. These problems are called Conflict.

Types of Conflict

1. Internal Conflict: A struggle inside the character's own mind.
 - Man vs. Self: The character struggles with a difficult decision, fear, jealousy, guilt, or a weakness in their own personality.
2. External Conflict: A struggle with an outside force.
 - Man vs. Man: The protagonist (hero) struggles against the antagonist (villain).
 - Man vs. Society: The protagonist struggles against a law, tradition, or belief of their community (e.g., fighting against "corruption," as in our Reading lesson).

- Man vs. Nature: The protagonist struggles against a natural force (e.g., a storm, a desert, an illness, a wild animal).

Your Task: As you read your novel, analyze its conflicts.

- What is the main External Conflict? (e.g., Is it Man vs. Man, or Man vs. Society?)
- Does the protagonist also face an Internal Conflict? (e.g., Are they afraid? Are they tempted to do the wrong thing?)
- Connecting to Theme: What lesson (theme) is the author teaching you through this conflict? (This is the didactic part of your novel).

Evaluation

1. What does it mean for a story to be "didactic"?
2. What is "anthropomorphism" in a folktale?
3. What is the difference between internal and external conflict?
4. Based on your recommended text, who is the protagonist in a "Man vs. Man" conflict with?
5. A character is struggling to decide whether to tell the truth and get in trouble, or lie and be safe. What type of conflict is this?

Assignment

1. List five key features of a folktale.
2. Briefly tell a very short folktale (or a summary of one) you know and state the moral lesson (theme) it teaches.
3. From your recommended prose text, describe the main External Conflict. What type is it (Man vs. Man, Man vs. Society, etc.)?

4. From your recommended text, describe one Internal Conflict the main character faces (Man vs. Self).
5. How does the setting (which we studied in Week 1) of your novel add to the conflict? (e.g., does a poor setting make the Man vs. Society conflict worse?)

WEEK 4

SPEECH WORK: LISTENING AND SPEAKING – THE DIPHTHONG /əʊ/

The Diphthong /əʊ/ (as in 'go')

Objective

By the end of this detailed lesson, students should be able to:

1. Identify the /əʊ/ sound as a diphthong (a gliding vowel).
2. Describe the production of the /əʊ/ sound as a glide from the schwa /ə/ to the short vowel /ʊ/.
3. Accurately pronounce the /əʊ/ sound in isolation and in words.
4. List and identify the various spelling patterns that produce the /əʊ/ sound (e.g., 'o', 'oa', 'ow').
5. Differentiate the /əʊ/ sound from similar sounds like /ɒ/ (hot) and /ɔ:/ (law) in minimal pairs.

Introduction

This week, we continue our study of diphthongs (gliding vowels). We will focus on the /əʊ/ sound. This is the sound you hear in "go," "no," and "slow." It is a very common sound in English.

It is a glide that starts from the central schwa sound /ə/ (as in 'about') and moves towards the high-back vowel /ʊ/ (as in 'put'). Your lips move from a relaxed, neutral position to a more rounded one.

A. Production of /əʊ/

- Starting Point: /ə/ (a relaxed central vowel)
- Ending Point: /ʊ/ (a rounded back vowel)

- Glide: /ə/ → /ʊ/ = /əʊ/

B. Common Spelling Patterns

This sound is tricky because it has many spellings:

1. 'o' (in an open syllable): go, no, so, home, note, vote, rope
2. 'oa': boat, coat, road, loaf, goal
3. 'ow': know, slow, blow, grow, snow (Be careful! 'ow' also makes the /aʊ/ sound, as in "cow" or "now")
4. 'oe': toe, foe, goes
5. 'ou' (less common): though, dough

C. Practical Drill: Minimal Pairs

This drill helps distinguish /əʊ/ from the short /ʊ/ (pot) and the long /ɔ:/ (port).

/ʊ/ (pot)	/əʊ/ (goat)	/ɔ:/ (port)
not	note	naught
cot	coat	caught
lock	loaf	law
rod	road	roared

Evaluation

1. Is the /əʊ/ sound a monophthong or a diphthong?
2. Describe how the /əʊ/ sound is made (i.e., it glides from which sound to which sound?).
3. Listen as I say these words: "now," "know," "not." Which word contains the /əʊ/ sound?

4. Write two different spelling patterns that can make the /əʊ/ sound, and give one example for each.
5. Which word in this pair has the /əʊ/ sound: boat or bought?

Assignment

1. Write two words for each of the following spelling patterns for /əʊ/: 'o', 'oa', 'ow'.
2. Write a sentence that contains at least three different words with the /əʊ/ sound. Underline the words.
3. Transcribe the vowel sound in each of the following words: home, law, hot, know, coat.
4. Write a minimal pair that contrasts the /əʊ/ sound with the /ɒ/ sound (e.g., coat/cot).
5. Write a minimal pair that contrasts the /əʊ/ sound with the /aʊ/ sound (e.g., know/now).

GRAMMAR: MORE ON TENSES (PRESENT, PAST, AND FUTURE)

A Detailed Review of Simple, Continuous, and Perfect Tenses

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define "tense" as the form of a verb that shows time (past, present, future).
2. Identify and correctly form the Simple tenses (Present, Past, Future).
3. Identify and correctly form the Continuous tenses (Present, Past, Future).
4. Identify and correctly form the Perfect tenses (Present, Past, Future).
5. Explain the function of each tense (e.g., simple present for habits, present continuous for current action, simple past for finished action).

Introduction

Tense is the grammatical tool we use to place an action in time. In Week 2, we saw how the verb 'to be' and 'past participles' are used to form the passive voice. Today, we will review the main tenses in the active voice, focusing on when and why we use each one.

We will organize the tenses by their aspect (Simple, Continuous, Perfect).

A. The SIMPLE Tenses

- Function: They describe actions as complete facts, habits, or single events.

1. Simple Present:

- Form: Base verb (e.g., play) or Base verb + s (e.g., plays).
- Use: (1) For habits and routines ("I brush my teeth every day."); (2) For general truths ("The sun rises in the east.").

2. Simple Past:

- Form: Base verb + ed (e.g., played) or Irregular form (e.g., ate, went).

- Use: For a completed action at a specific time in the past ("We watched the film yesterday").

3. Simple Future:

- Form: will + Base verb.
- Use: For an action that will happen in the future ("I will see you tomorrow").

B. The CONTINUOUS (or PROGRESSIVE) Tenses

- Function: They describe actions that are in progress, ongoing, or unfinished at a certain time.
- Form: [verb 'to be'] + [verb + ing (present participle)]

1. Present Continuous:

- Form: am/is/are + playing
- Use: For an action happening right now ("She is reading a book.") or around this time ("I am studying for my exams.").

2. Past Continuous:

- Form: was/were + playing
- Use: For an ongoing action in the past that was interrupted by another action ("I was watching TV when the light went out").

3. Future Continuous:

- Form: will be + playing
- Use: For an ongoing action at a specific time in the future ("This time tomorrow, I will be writing my exam.").

C. The PERFECT Tenses

- Function: They describe actions that are completed in relation to another point in time.
- Form: [verb 'to have'] + [Past Participle (e.g., played, eaten)]

1. Present Perfect:

- Form: has/have + played
- Use: For an action that started in the past and continues to the present ("I have lived here for five years.") OR a past action at an unspecified time ("I have seen that film before.").

2. Past Perfect:

- Form: had + played
- Use: For a past action that was completed before another past action ("The film had already started when we arrived.").

3. Future Perfect:

- Form: will have + played
- Use: For an action that will be completed before a specific time in the future ("By 8 pm, I will have finished my homework.").

Evaluation

1. What is the function of the Simple Present Tense (e.g., "He plays")?
2. What is the main difference between the Simple Past ("I ate") and the Present Perfect ("I have eaten")?
3. Identify the tense of this verb: "She was cooking when I called."
4. Change this sentence to the Simple Future tense: "He reads a book."
5. Change this sentence to the Past Perfect tense: "They arrive."

Assignment

1. Write one sentence for each of the three Simple tenses (Present, Past, Future).

2. Write one sentence for each of the three Continuous tenses (Present, Past, Future).
3. Write one sentence for each of the three Perfect tenses (Present, Past, Future).
4. Correct the verb in this sentence: "I am having three brothers."
5. Explain why the Past Perfect tense is used in this sentence: "The students had left before the principal came."

READING & COMPREHENSION: CRITICAL READING & VOCABULARY

A: Critical Reading – Meaning and Steps B: Vocabulary Development – Word Families (The Police Officer's Job)

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define Critical Reading as "reading to analyze and evaluate."
2. Differentiate between 'reading for information' and 'critical reading'.
3. List the key steps of critical reading: Analyzing, Questioning, and Evaluating.
4. Apply critical reading skills to identify bias (from Week 3).
5. Identify and correctly use vocabulary related to law enforcement.

Part A: Critical Reading – Meaning and Steps

Introduction

In Week 2, we learned about the author's purpose (PIE-D). In Week 3, we learned to spot their intention (bias). Critical Reading is the skill that combines all of this. It means not just accepting what you read as truth. It means reading like a detective: questioning, analyzing, and evaluating the text.

- Reading for Information: What does the text say?
- Critical Reading: What does the text do? How does it work? Is it true? Is it biased?

Steps to Reading Critically

1. Preview (Survey): (From SQ3R) Look at the title, author, and headings. Who wrote this? When? Where was it published? (e.t., A newspaper? A scientific journal?)
2. Annotate (Question): Read with a pen.

- Underline the main point (thesis).
- Circle "loaded words" (diction/bias).
- Write questions in the margin: ("Is this a fact or an opinion?") ("What evidence does the author give?") ("Do I agree with this?")

3. Analyze (Identify Purpose & Bias):

- What is the author's purpose (PIE-D)?
- What is the author's tone (e.g., angry, neutral, supportive)?
- What intention (bias) do you see? (From Week 3)

4. Evaluate (Judge the Text):

- Is the author's argument logical?
- Is the evidence strong? (Are they using facts or just emotional opinions?)
- Is the text one-sided, or does it present a balanced view?
- Do you trust this author? Why or why not?

Part B: Vocabulary Development – Word Families (The Police Officer's Job)

- Core Word: Police, Law, Crime, Justice
- People (Nouns):
 - Police Officer / Constable: A member of the police force.
 - Detective / Inspector: An officer who investigates crimes.
 - Criminal / Suspect: A person who is thought to have committed a crime.
 - Victim: A person who has been harmed by a crime.
 - Witness: A person who saw the crime happen.
- Actions (Verbs):

- Enforce: To make people obey the law.
- Patrol: To move around an area to keep it safe.
- Investigate: To gather facts about a crime.
- Arrest: To take a suspect into custody.
- Charge: To formally accuse someone of a crime.
- Testify: To give evidence in court.
- Prevent: To stop something from happening.
- Concepts & Things (Nouns):
 - Crime: An illegal act (e.g., theft, burglary, assault).
 - Law: The rules of a country.
 - Evidence: Proof that a crime happened.
 - Report: A formal statement (e.g., from a witness).
 - Handcuffs: Metal rings used to restrain a suspect.
 - Badge: A sign of the officer's authority.
 - Patrol car / "Case file" / "Crime scene"
- Descriptive (Adjectives):
 - Legal / Illegal: Allowed or not allowed by law.
 - Lawful / Unlawful: Same as above.
 - Suspicious: Seeming wrong or criminal.
 - Safe / Dangerous:

Evaluation

1. In your own words, what is the difference between "reading for information" and "critical reading"?
2. List three key steps of critical reading.
3. How does identifying "loaded words" (connotation) help you be a critical reader?
4. What verb means "to formally accuse someone of a crime"?
5. What do we call a person who saw a crime happen?

Assignment

1. Why is it important to know who the author is and where a text was published (the "Preview" step)?
2. Find a short news article (online or in print). Read it critically and answer: a. What is the author's main point? b. Is the tone neutral, or can you detect a bias?
3. Explain the difference between a suspect and a victim.
4. Write a short paragraph (3-4 sentences) describing a police officer at a crime scene, using at least five words from the "Vocabulary Development" list.
5. What verb means "to gather facts about a crime"?

COMPOSITION: DESCRIPTIVE ESSAY – "A LOCAL FESTIVAL"

Writing a Full Descriptive Essay: "A Local Festival"

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Apply the 3-stage writing process (Pre-write, Write, Post-write) to a specific topic.
2. Brainstorm and organize sensory details (sight, sound, smell, taste, touch) for "A Local Festival."
3. Write an engaging introduction with a hook and a clear thesis (dominant impression).
4. Write vivid body paragraphs organized spatially or by sense, using "Show, Don't Tell."
5. Write a reflective conclusion that reinforces the dominant impression.

Introduction

In Week 2, we learned how to outline a descriptive essay. In Week 3, we learned the process of writing (Pre-write, Write, Post-write). Today, we combine those skills to write a full essay on "A Local Festival" (e.g., New Yam Festival, Eyo, Durbar, a local Christmas or Sallah celebration).

Remember, your goal is not to tell a story (narrative). Your goal is to paint a picture and make the reader feel like they are there.

Applying the Writing Process

1. Stage 1: Pre-writing (The Plan)

- Brainstorming (Sensory Details for a Festival):
 - SIGHT: Brightly coloured costumes (red, gold), masks, dancing, crowds, dust rising, the chief, display of yams.

- SOUND: Drumming (the thump-thump), singing/chanting, cheering, gunshots, bells.
- SMELL: Spicy aroma of jollof rice, palm wine, dust, sweat, gunpowder.
- TOUCH: Heat of the sun, sweat on the skin, push of the crowd, the throb of the drum in your chest.
- TASTE: Oily rice, sweet palm wine, roasted yam, soft goat meat.
- Outline:
 - I. Introduction:
 - Hook: "The air throbbed with the sound of a hundred drums."
 - Thesis/Dominant Impression: "The Eyo festival was not just a celebration; it was a loud, vibrant, and overwhelming wave of white."
 - II. Body 1 (Sight & Sound - The Spectacle):
 - Topic Sentence: "The most striking part of the festival was the sight of the masquerades and the sound of the drums."
 - Details: Describe the white "Eyo" costumes, the 'agbada', the sound of the 'gbedu' drum.
 - III. Body 2 (Smell & Taste - The Feast):
 - Topic Sentence: "Beyond the sights and sounds, the air was thick with the smell of celebration."
 - Details: Describe the food vendors, the smell of jollof, the taste of palm wine.
 - IV. Body 3 (Touch & Feeling - The Atmosphere):
 - Topic Sentence: "More than anything, you could feel the energy of the crowd."

- Details: Describe the heat, the dust, the excitement, the feeling of being part of something ancient.
- V. Conclusion:
 - Restate Thesis: "It was an exhausting but exhilarating experience."
 - Final Thought: "The festival was a powerful reminder of the rich culture and history of my people."

2. Stage 2: Writing (The First Draft)

- Use your outline to write the full essay.
- Focus on "Show, Don't Tell":
 - Telling: "The drumming was loud."
 - Showing: "The drumming was so loud I could feel the beat in my chest, a constant thump-thump-thump that drowned out every other sound."

3. Stage 3: Post-writing (The Polish)

- Revise (ARMS): Read your draft. Are your descriptions vivid? Can you add a stronger adjective?
- Edit (CUPS): Check for errors in Capitalization, Usage, Punctuation, and Spelling.

Evaluation

1. What is the main goal of a descriptive essay?
2. What is a "dominant impression" or "thesis" in a descriptive essay?
3. "The food was nice." Rewrite this "telling" sentence into a "showing" sentence using at least two sensory details.
4. Why is it better to organize a descriptive essay by sense or space rather than by time (chronological order)?

5. What are the two parts of the 'Post-writing' stage?

Assignment

1. Choose a local festival you have attended or know about.
2. Brainstorm a list of 15 sensory details (3 for each sense) for your festival.
3. Write a strong Introduction paragraph for your essay, complete with a sensory hook and a thesis statement (dominant impression).
4. Write one Body Paragraph based on your brainstorm. (Focus on SIGHT and SOUND).
5. Write a strong Conclusion paragraph that restates your thesis and gives a final reflection.

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: USE THE RECOMMENDED TEXT ON PROSE

Applying Literary Elements to a Prose Text (Point of View & Theme)

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define "Point of View" (POV) as the perspective from which a story is told.
2. Differentiate between First-Person POV ("I") and Third-Person POV ("He/She/They").
3. Identify the Point of View used in their recommended prose text.
4. Explain how POV affects the story (e.g., what information we get or don't get).
5. Identify a major theme in their text and find one piece of evidence (a quote or event) to support it.

Introduction

This week, we are adding a new literary tool: Point of View (POV). The POV is the "camera" the author uses to tell the story. Who is the narrator? Whose eyes are we seeing the story through? The POV controls how much information we get and whose feelings and thoughts we know.

We will also continue our search for the Theme (the author's main message).

A. Understanding Point of View (POV)

1. First-Person POV:

- Pronouns: "I," "me," "my," "we," "us."
- Narrator: The narrator is a character in the story, telling it from their perspective.
- Effect: We feel very close to the narrator. We know all their private thoughts and feelings.

- Limitation: We only know what the narrator knows. We don't know what other characters are thinking (unless they tell the narrator). This can make the narrator unreliable.

2. Third-Person POV:

- Pronouns: "He," "she," "it," "they," "them."
- Narrator: The narrator is an outside voice, not a character in the story.
- Types:
 - Limited: The narrator sticks closely to one character (usually the protagonist). We see what they see and know what they think, but not others. (e.g., "Harry Potter").
 - Omniscient ("All-Knowing"): The narrator can go into any character's mind, tell us any character's thoughts, and describe events happening in different places at the same time.

B. Analyzing Theme

- Remember from Week 3, the Theme is the moral lesson or big idea about life. It's the "so what?"
- Common Themes: Good vs. Evil, Courage, Justice, The Effects of Corruption, The Importance of Family, The Dangers of Greed.
- Finding Evidence: To prove a theme, you must find evidence in the text.
 - Example Topic: "Courage"
 - Example Theme: "Courage means doing the right thing even when you are afraid."
 - Example Evidence: Find a specific moment in the book where the protagonist was visibly scared but still chose to do something brave (e.g., stand up to the antagonist, tell the truth).

Evaluation

(Based on the class's recommended text)

1. What is "Point of View"?
2. What is the main difference between First-Person and Third-Person POV?
3. What Point of View (First-Person or Third-Person) is used in [Insert Recommended Text Title]?
4. How does this specific POV affect how we understand the protagonist?
5. State one major theme (a full-sentence message) in your novel.

Assignment

(To be completed after reading the next assigned chapter/s)

1. Find one sentence (a quote) from your novel that proves it is written in First-Person or Third-Person POV.
2. If your book is in First-Person, name one thing the narrator doesn't know. If it's in Third-Person, name one thing the narrator does know that the protagonist might not.
3. We identified a major theme in class. Find one specific event or character action from your reading that serves as evidence for this theme.
4. How does the conflict (from Week 3) in the story help to teach this theme?
5. If the book were told from the antagonist's point of view, how would the story be different?

WEEK 6

SPEECH WORK: CONTRASTING CONSONANTS /p/ AND /t/

Contrasting the Voiceless Plosives /p/ and /t/

Objective

By the end of this detailed lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a 'plosive' (or 'stop') consonant.
2. Describe the place of articulation for /p/ (bilabial) and /t/ (alveolar).
3. Identify both sounds as 'voiceless'.
4. Accurately pronounce /p/ and /t/ in isolation and in words.
5. Distinguish between /p/ and /t/ in spoken minimal pairs (e.g., 'pan' vs. 'tan').

Introduction

This week, we move from vowels to consonants. We will focus on two of the most common consonants in English: /p/ and /t/. Both are plosives (or stops), which means the airflow from the lungs is completely stopped for a moment, then released in a small puff of air. The only difference between them is where we stop the air.

A. Production of /p/ (Voiceless Bilabial Plosive)

- Voicing: Voiceless (your vocal cords do not vibrate).
- Place: Bilabial (you stop the air by pressing your two lips together).
- Manner: Plosive (you build up pressure behind your lips and then release it).
- Practice: Press your lips together firmly, build up air, and release. It should sound like /p/, /p/, /p/.
- Examples: pan, pot, happy, lap, stop, jump

B. Production of /t/ (Voiceless Alveolar Plosive)

- Voicing: Voiceless (your vocal cords do not vibrate).
- Place: Alveolar (you stop the air by pressing the tip of your tongue against the alveolar ridge, which is the hard ridge just behind your top teeth).
- Manner: Plosive (you build up pressure behind your tongue and then release it).
- Practice: Place your tongue tip just behind your top teeth, build up air, and release. It should sound like /t/, /t/, /t/.
- Examples: tan, top, water, late, cat, passed

C. Practical Drill: Minimal Pairs

This drill trains your ear and tongue to feel the difference. Say the following pairs aloud, focusing on the lip vs. tongue-tip action.

/p/ (Bilabial)	/t/ (Alveolar)
pan	tan
pat	tat
prim	trim
pot	tot
pour	tore
pit	tit
tap	tat
pop	pot
cap	cat

Evaluation

1. What does it mean for a consonant to be a "plosive"?
2. Describe the place of articulation for the /p/ sound.
3. Describe the place of articulation for the /t/ sound.
4. Are /p/ and /t/ voiced or voiceless?
5. Listen as I say these words: "pit," "tip," "pat." Which word ends with the /t/ sound?

Assignment

1. Write three words that begin with the /p/ sound.
2. Write three words that end with the /t/ sound.
3. Write two words that have the /p/ sound in the middle.
4. Write two minimal pairs that contrast /p/ and /t/ (other than the ones in the drill).
5. Write a sentence that contains at least one word with /p/ and one word with /t/. (e.g., "The puppy drank from the tap.") Underline the words.

GRAMMAR: PAST PERFECT TENSE

The Past Perfect Tense

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define the function of the Past Perfect Tense as "the past of the past."
2. Identify the correct form of the Past Perfect Tense (had + Past Participle).
3. Accurately form sentences using the Past Perfect Tense.
4. Differentiate between the Simple Past and the Past Perfect in a timeline.
5. Use the Past Perfect with conjunctions like 'before', 'after', and 'when'.

Introduction

In Week 4, we reviewed the simple, continuous, and perfect tenses. Today, we will do a deep dive into one of the most important (and sometimes confusing) tenses: the Past Perfect.

Its main job is to show that one action in the past was finished before another action in the past happened. It's the "past of the past."

A. Form

The form is simple and never changes: had + [Past Participle]

- I had eaten.
- She had left.
- They had finished.
- It had been (passive voice).

B. Function: The "Past of the Past"

Imagine a timeline of yesterday. Two things happened:

1. I ate breakfast (at 8:00 AM).
2. My friend arrived (at 9:00 AM).

Both are in the simple past. But if I want to tell a story about 9:00 AM, I need to show that the eating was already finished.

- "When my friend arrived (Simple Past), I had already eaten (Past Perfect)."

The Past Perfect action (had eaten) is "Past Event 1". The Simple Past action (arrived) is "Past Event 2".

C. Common Use with Conjunctions

1. before / by the time: The Past Perfect is used for the action that was finished.
 - "She had finished her homework before her mother came home."
 - "By the time the police arrived, the thieves had escaped."
2. after: The Past Perfect is used for the action that happened first.
 - "After she had finished her homework, she watched TV."
3. when: (Be careful! 'When' can be tricky)
 - "When I got to the station, the train had left." (I missed the train. The leaving happened first.)
 - "When I got to the station, the train left." (I arrived just in time to see it leave. The actions happened at the same time.)

Evaluation

1. What is the formula (form) for the Past Perfect Tense?

2. What is the main function (job) of the Past Perfect Tense?
3. In this sentence, which action happened first?: "I had brushed my teeth before I went to bed."
4. Change the verb in brackets to the Past Perfect: "He (finish) the race when the rain started."
5. What is the Past Participle of the verb 'to write'?

Assignment

1. Write a sentence using the Past Perfect with the conjunction "before".
2. Write a sentence using the Past Perfect with the conjunction "after".
3. Fill in the blank with either the Simple Past or Past Perfect: "When I (arrive) at the party, my friends (already, leave)."
4. Explain the difference in meaning between these two sentences: a. When the lesson started, the student arrived. b. When the lesson started, the student had arrived.
5. Write one original sentence in the Past Perfect Tense.

READING & COMPREHENSION: FACTS VS. OPINIONS & VOCABULARY

A: Reading to Identify Facts and Opinions in a Passage B: Vocabulary Development – Language of Sports

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define a 'fact' and an 'opinion'.
2. Differentiate between a fact (verifiable) and an opinion (a belief).
3. Identify clue words and phrases that signal opinions (e.g., 'best', 'worst', 'I believe').
4. Critically read a passage and separate the facts from the opinions.
5. Identify and correctly use vocabulary related to sports.

Part A: Identifying Facts and Opinions

Introduction

This lesson is a key part of Critical Reading (which we started in Week 4). To be a good reader, you must be able to separate what is true from what someone believes.

- Fact: A statement that can be proven true or false. It is objective and verifiable, often with data, dates, or measurements.
 - Example: "Nigeria is a country in West Africa." (You can prove this on a map).
- Opinion: A statement of belief, feeling, or judgment. It cannot be proven true or false. It is subjective.
 - Example: "Nigeria is the best country in the world." (This is a belief. The word "best" is a clue).

Clue Words

How to spot the difference:

Facts often contain:

- Numbers ("There are 36 states...")
- Dates ("...gained independence on October 1st, 1960.")
- Scientific or historical information ("Water boils at 100°C.")

Opinions often contain:

- Adjectives of Judgment: best, worst, beautiful, ugly, terrible, wonderful, amazing.
- Verbs of Belief: I believe, I think, I feel, It seems...
- Adverbs of Judgment: probably, possibly, perhaps.

Example Passage: "The 2024 Africa Cup of Nations (AFCON) took place in Ivory Coast. (FACT). A total of 24 teams competed. (FACT). The final match between Nigeria and Ivory Coast was the most exciting game of the tournament. (OPINION). In my opinion, the Super Eagles played better football overall. (OPINION). Ivory Coast won the match 2-1." (FACT).

Part B: Vocabulary Development – Language of Sports

- Core Word: Sport, Game, Athlete, Team, Competition
- General (Nouns):
 - Coach: The person who trains a team.
 - Referee / Umpire: The official who enforces the rules.
 - Fan / Spectator: A person who watches the game.
 - Score: The points in a game.
 - Victory / Win: Beating the opponent.
 - Defeat / Loss: Losing to the opponent.

- Trophy: The cup given to the winner.
- Football Specific:
 - Goal: Scoring by putting the ball in the net.
 - Penalty: A free kick given for a foul in the box.
 - Offside: An illegal position.
 - Goalkeeper: The player who defends the net.
 - Striker: A player who tries to score goals.
- Athletics Specific:
 - Track: The running path.
 - Field: The area for jumping and throwing events.
 - Sprint: A short, fast race.
 - Marathon: A very long race.
- Actions (Verbs):
 - Compete / Play / Participate
 - Win / Lose / Draw (Tie)
 - Score / Train / Practice

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a fact and an opinion?
2. Is this a fact or an opinion? "Lagos is the largest city in Nigeria by population."
3. Is this a fact or an opinion? "Jollof rice is the most delicious food."
4. What is one "clue word" that usually signals an opinion?
5. What do we call the official who controls a football match?

Assignment

1. Write one sentence that is a fact about your school.
2. Write one sentence that is an opinion about your school.
3. Read a short news article (about sports, politics, etc.). Find and write down: a. One fact from the article. b. One opinion from the article.
4. Write a short paragraph (3-4 sentences) describing a football match, using at least five words from the "Vocabulary Development" list.
5. What is the difference between a coach and a spectator?

COMPOSITION: NARRATIVE ESSAY – "WHAT I DO EVERY DAY"

Narrative Essay – "What I Do Every Day" (A Process Narrative)

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Understand this topic as a "process narrative" (describing a routine).
2. Identify the Simple Present Tense as the correct tense for describing habits and routines.
3. Use sequential transitional words (e.g., 'first', 'next', 'then', 'finally') to organize their writing.
4. Write a clear outline for their daily routine.
5. Use "Show, Don't Tell" to make a simple routine sound interesting.

Introduction

This week's topic, "What I Do Every Day," is a type of narrative essay, but it's special. Instead of telling a story about one past event (like "How I Spent My Last Holiday"), you are describing a process or a routine that happens over and over.

The biggest mistake is to make it boring. The key is to use vivid details and the correct tense.

- Tense: You MUST use the Simple Present Tense ("I wake up," "I eat," "She brushes") because you are describing a habit (see GRAMMAR, Week 4).
- Key Skill: Making your routine interesting using sensory details.

A. Using Sequential Transitions

To show the order of events, you must use "signposts" for the reader.

- To Begin: First, In the morning, As soon as my alarm rings...
- To Continue: Next, Then, After that, Later, In the afternoon...

- To End: Finally, Before I go to sleep, At the end of the day...

B. "Show, Don't Tell" for a Routine

- Telling (Boring): "I wake up at 6 AM. Then I brush my teeth. Then I eat breakfast."
- Showing (Interesting): "My day begins at 6 AM, not with a gentle sound, but with the loud, annoying scream of my alarm clock. First, I stumble to the bathroom and scrub my teeth, the minty, sharp taste of the toothpaste waking me up. After that, I head to the kitchen, drawn by the sweet smell of my mother's pap."

C. Outline for "What I Do Every Day"

- I. Introduction (The Beginning)
 - Hook: Start with the moment you wake up (e.g., the sound of the alarm, the sun).
 - Thesis: "My days are busy and structured, following a routine that takes me from my bed to my books and back again."
- II. Body 1 (The Morning Rush)
 - Topic Sentence: "The first part of my day is a race against the clock."
 - Details: Describe waking up, prayers, chores, brushing teeth, bathing, breakfast, putting on your uniform.
- III. Body 2 (School Life & Afternoon)
 - Topic Sentence: "By 8 AM, I am at school, where the main part of my day begins."
 - Details: Describe arriving at school, assembly, one or two of your favourite (or least favourite) classes, break time, closing.
- IV. Body 3 (The Evening Wind-Down)
 - Topic Sentence: "When I return home, my day is not over yet."

- Details: Describe homework, house chores, dinner with family, watching TV or reading.
- V. Conclusion (The End)
 - Restate Thesis: "Finally, after a long and structured day, I get ready for bed."
 - Final Thought: A reflection on your day (e.g., "It's a tiring routine, but every day brings a new lesson.")

Evaluation

1. What is the correct tense to use when writing about your daily routine?
2. What is the purpose of using words like "First," "Next," and "Finally"?
3. Rewrite this "Telling" sentence to be "Showing": "My breakfast is good."
4. What are the three main parts of this essay outline (e.g., Morning, ...)?
5. What is a "hook"?

Assignment

1. Write a clear thesis statement for an essay on "What I Do Every Day."
2. Write a list of five sequential transitional words you can use.
3. Write an Introduction paragraph for your essay, complete with a hook and thesis.
4. Write one Body Paragraph (e.g., "The Morning Rush") using "Show, Don't Tell."
5. Write a Conclusion paragraph that reflects on your day.

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: USE THE RECOMMENDED TEXT ON DRAMA

Introduction to Drama: Characterization and Plot

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define 'Drama' as a genre of literature meant to be performed.
2. Differentiate how plot is revealed in drama (Acts/Scenes) versus prose (Chapters).
3. Differentiate how characterization is revealed in drama (dialogue/action) versus prose (narration).
4. Apply the 'STEAL' method to analyze a character in their recommended drama text.
5. Identify the main plot elements (conflict, rising action) in their recommended drama text.

Introduction

This week, we are shifting from Prose (novels) to Drama (plays). A play is a story written to be performed by actors on a stage. This changes everything.

In a novel, a narrator tells you what is happening and what characters are thinking. In a play, there is no narrator. You, the reader, must become a detective. You only know what is happening by:

1. Dialogue: What the characters say to each other.
2. Stage Directions: Notes from the author (often in italics or brackets) that describe the setting or the character's actions and tone. (e.g., [shouting angrily], [He looks at the floor, ashamed]).

A. Plot in Drama

The plot structure is the same as in prose (Exposition, Rising Action, Climax, Falling Action, Resolution), but it is organized differently.

- Acts: These are the major "chapters" of a play. A play might have 3 or 5 acts.
- Scenes: An act is divided into smaller "scenes." A new scene usually begins when the time or location changes.
- Exposition: Usually Act 1. We meet the characters and learn about the setting and the main conflict.
- Rising Action: The middle acts. The conflict gets more complicated.

B. Characterization in Drama

How do we know a character's personality? We must infer it. We use the same 'STEAL' acronym from prose, but it works differently:

- S - Speech: What does the character say? Do they speak politely or rudely? Do they use big words or simple ones? Do they talk a lot or stay quiet?
- T - Thoughts: We do not know their thoughts (unless they have a soliloquy—a long speech to themselves when they are alone).
- E - Effect on Others: How do other characters react to them? Are people afraid of them? Do they respect them?
- A - Actions: What does the character do? (These are found in the stage directions). Do they help others? Do they steal? Do they run from a fight?
- L - Looks: The author's stage directions might describe their costume or appearance, which gives clues.

(Teacher, please state the recommended drama text for the class. Guide students to apply these concepts to that specific play.)

Evaluation

(Based on the class's recommended drama text)

1. What is the main difference between prose and drama?
2. What is "dialogue"?
3. What are "stage directions" and what do they tell us?
4. How is the plot of a play divided (e.g., into...)
5. From [Insert Recommended Play Title], how do we know that [Character] is [e.g., 'angry', 'kind']? (Look at their Speech or Actions).

Assignment

(To be completed after reading the first Act/Scenes of the recommended play)

1. Who is the protagonist (main character) of the play so far?
2. Who (or what) is the antagonist (the person/thing causing conflict)?
3. What is the main conflict (problem) of the play?
4. Find one line of dialogue that tells you something important about the protagonist's personality.
5. Find one stage direction that describes a character's action or tone of voice. Write it down and explain what it reveals about them.

WEEK 8

SPEECH WORK: CONSONANT SOUNDS /f/ AND /v/ IN CONTRAST

Contrasting the Labiodental Fricatives /f/ and /v/

Objective

By the end of this detailed lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a 'fricative' consonant and differentiate it from a 'plosive'.
2. Describe the place of articulation for /f/ and /v/ as 'labiodental'.
3. Identify /f/ as voiceless and /v/ as voiced.
4. Accurately pronounce /f/ and /v/ in isolation and in words.
5. Distinguish between /f/ and /v/ in spoken minimal pairs (e.g., 'famish' vs. 'vanish').

Introduction

In Week 6, we studied plosives (/p/ and /t/), where the air is stopped. This week, we study fricatives. A fricative is a consonant sound made by squeezing air through a narrow channel, creating friction or a hissing sound.

We will focus on the pair /f/ and /v/. They are made in the exact same place in the mouth; the only difference is the use of the voice.

A. Production of /f/ (Voiceless Labiodental Fricative)

- Voicing: Voiceless (your vocal cords do not vibrate; it's just the sound of air).
- Place: Labiodental (you bring your top teeth to rest lightly on your bottom lip).
- Manner: Fricative (you push air through the small gap between your teeth and lip).
- Practice: Place your top teeth on your bottom lip and blow air out. It should sound like /f/, /f/, /f/.

- Examples: famish, favour, fan, leaf, safe, offer, photo

B. Production of /v/ (Voiced Labiodental Fricative)

- Voicing: Voiced (your vocal cords do vibrate).
- Place: Labiodental (the same as /f/: top teeth on bottom lip).
- Manner: Fricative (the same as /f/, but you add your voice).
- Practice: Place your teeth on your lip exactly as you did for /f/, but this time, hum or make a sound with your vocal cords. You should feel a vibration. It sounds like /v/, /v/, /v/.
- Examples: vanish, vampire, van, leave, save, over, of

C. Practical Drill: Minimal Pairs

This drill trains you to switch the 'voice' on and off. Say the pairs aloud.

/f/ (Voiceless)	/v/ (Voiced)
f an	v an
f ast	v ast
f erry	v ery
l eaf	l eave
s afe	s ave
h alf	h ave
o ff	o f

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a 'plosive' and a 'fricative'?
2. Describe the place of articulation for /f/ and /v/.
3. What is the only difference in how /f/ and /v/ are produced?
4. Is the sound /v/ voiced or voiceless?
5. Listen as I say these words: "vanish," "famish." Which one begins with the /v/ sound?

Assignment

1. Write three words that begin with the /f/ sound.
2. Write three words that begin with the /v/ sound.
3. Write two minimal pairs that contrast /f/ and /v/ (other than the ones in the drill).
4. Write one word where the letter 'f' is pronounced as /v/.
5. Write a sentence that contains one word with /f/ and one word with /v/. (e.g., "The fan is very fast.") Underline the words.

GRAMMAR: MAKING SENTENCES WITH CONJUNCTIONS

Using Conjunctions to Build Complex Sentences

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define a conjunction as a "joining word".
2. Identify and correctly use the 7 Coordinating Conjunctions (FANBOYS).
3. Identify and correctly use common Subordinating Conjunctions (e.g., because, although, when).
4. Identify and correctly use common Correlative Conjunctions (e.g., either...or, both...and).
5. Combine simple sentences into compound or complex sentences using conjunctions.

Introduction

A conjunction is a word that joins words, phrases, or clauses. They are the "glue" of English. Using them correctly allows you to move from writing simple sentences ("I am tired. I want to sleep.") to more mature, complex sentences ("I want to sleep because I am tired.").

There are three main types of conjunctions:

A. Coordinating Conjunctions

These join two equal and independent clauses. The easiest way to remember them is the acronym FANBOYS:

- For (meaning 'because')
- And (adds information)
- Nor (adds a negative)
- But (shows contrast)
- Or (shows choice)

- Yet (shows contrast, like 'but')
- So (shows result)

Rule: When joining two full sentences (independent clauses), use a comma before the conjunction.

- Example: "I like rice, but my brother prefers beans."
- Example: "She studied hard, so she passed the test."

B. Subordinating Conjunctions

These join an independent clause (a full sentence) with a dependent clause (an incomplete thought). They show the relationship between the two clauses (e.g., time, cause, contrast).

- Common Examples: because, since, as, although, though, while, when, after, before, if, unless, until.
- Rule 1: Independent Clause + Dependent Clause
 - Example: "He went to school although he was sick."
- Rule 2: Dependent Clause, + Independent Clause (If the sentence starts with the conjunction, use a comma).
 - Example: "Although he was sick, he went to school."

C. Correlative Conjunctions

These are pairs of conjunctions that work together.

- both... and... ("She likes both rice and beans.")
- either... or... ("You can have either the tea or the coffee.")
- neither... nor... ("He is neither tall nor short.")
- not only... but also... ("He is not only intelligent but also kind.")

- whether... or... ("I don't know whether to go or stay.")

Evaluation

1. What is the main function of a conjunction?
2. What does the acronym FANBOYS stand for?
3. Which type of conjunction is "because"?
4. Which type of conjunction is the pair "neither... nor"?
5. Combine these two sentences using "but": "The boy ran fast. He did not win the race."

Assignment

1. Write one sentence for each of the following conjunctions: and, or, so.
2. Write two sentences using "because" (one in the middle, one at the beginning).
3. Write one sentence for each of the following pairs: both...and, either...or.
4. Combine these two sentences using "although": "It was raining. They played football."
5. What conjunction would you use to show a result? (e.g., "It was hot, ____ I opened the window.")

READING & COMPREHENSION: EXPLAINING FACTS VS. OPINIONS & VOCABULARY

A: Explaining Facts and Opinions in a Passage B: Vocabulary Development – Language of Journalism

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Review the definitions of fact and opinion.
2. Move beyond identifying to explaining why a statement is a fact or an opinion.
3. Analyze a selected passage to separate facts from opinions and justify their choices.
4. Identify and correctly use vocabulary related to journalism.

Part A: Explaining Facts and Opinions

Introduction

In Week 6, we learned to identify facts (verifiable) and opinions (beliefs). Today, we take the next step in Critical Reading: explaining our choices. It's not enough to say "That's an opinion." You must explain why it is one.

- Fact: A statement that can be proven true or false with evidence (data, dates, records).
- Opinion: A belief, feeling, or judgment. It uses 'clue words' (best, worst, think, believe) and cannot be proven.

How to Explain

- "This is a fact because..."
 - "...it can be verified by a calendar."
 - "...it is a measurable statistic."

- "...it is a historical record."
- "This is an opinion because..."
 - "...it uses the judgment word 'beautiful,' which is subjective."
 - "...it starts with 'I believe,' which signals a personal thought."
 - "...it is a prediction about the future that cannot be proven."

Selected Passage for Analysis: "(1) Journalism is the profession of gathering and reporting news. (2) In my opinion, it is the most important job in the world. (3) Journalists write articles for newspapers, websites, and magazines. (4) Some journalists, called 'investigative reporters,' dig for hidden truths. (5) This type of journalism is braver and more exciting than any other. (6) Without them, corruption would be terrible."

- Sentence 1: Fact. Explanation: This is a standard, verifiable definition of the word.
- Sentence 2: Opinion. Explanation: It uses the personal phrase "In my opinion" and the superlative judgment word "most important."
- Sentence 3: Fact. Explanation: This is a provable description of what journalists do.
- Sentence 5: Opinion. Explanation: It uses the comparative judgment words "braver" and "more exciting," which are subjective.

Part B: Vocabulary Development – Language of Journalism

- People (Nouns):
 - Journalist / Reporter: A person who gathers and writes news.
 - Editor: The person in charge of a newspaper who checks and corrects articles.
 - Publisher: The owner of the newspaper or magazine.
 - Source: A person who gives information to a journalist.
 - Correspondent: A journalist who reports from a specific place (e.g., a foreign correspondent).

- Actions (Verbs):
 - Report: To give an account of something.
 - Investigate: To find hidden facts (like a detective).
 - Interview: To ask someone questions.
 - Publish: To print and sell a story.
 - Broadcast: To send out a story on TV or radio.
- Concepts & Things (Nouns):
 - Article: A piece of writing in a newspaper.
 - Headline: The large title of an article.
 - Byline: The line that shows who wrote the article (e.g., "By Shade Adewale").
 - Editorial: An article that gives the opinion of the newspaper.
 - Deadline: The time a story must be finished.
- Descriptive (Adjectives):
 - Objective: Based on facts, not feelings (unbiased).
 - Subjective: Based on personal feelings (biased).

Evaluation

1. In your own words, what is a 'fact'?
2. What is an 'opinion'?
3. Read this: "Football is a game played with a ball." Is this a fact or an opinion, and why?
4. Read this: "Football is the best game in the world." Is this a fact or an opinion, and why?
5. What is the 'headline' of an article?

Assignment

1. What is the difference between an 'objective' report and a 'subjective' report?
2. What is an 'editor', and what do they do?
3. Find a short news report (online or in a newspaper). Write down: a. One fact from the report. b. One opinion from the report (if you can find one).
4. Write a short paragraph (3-4 sentences) about a journalist, using at least five words from the "Vocabulary Development" list.
5. Explain why an "editorial" is a good example of opinion writing.

COMPOSITION: LETTER WRITING (INFORMAL LETTER)

Informal Letter: A letter to your father on why you like your new school.

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define an 'informal letter' and its purpose.
2. Identify the 5 key features of an informal letter (address, date, salutation, body, closing).
3. Use a friendly and conversational tone appropriate for a family member.
4. Plan the content for their letter, focusing on positive aspects of their new school.
5. Write a complete informal letter following the correct format.

Introduction

Letter writing is a way to communicate with people. We use formal letters for official business (e.g., to a principal). We use informal letters for friends and family. The tone is relaxed, friendly, and personal.

Today, we are writing an informal letter to your father. The format is important, but so is the tone.

A. Format of an Informal Letter

1. Your Address: (Top right corner) JSS2, Victory College, P.M.B. 102, Ikeja, Lagos.
2. Date: (Directly below the address) 29th October, 2025.
3. Salutation: (Left side, after skipping a line) Dear Father, (or Dear Papa, My dearest Father,)
4. The Body: (This is the main message, in paragraphs)

- Paragraph 1: Introduction. Greet him, ask about his health and the health of the family.
 - Paragraph 2: Main Reason 1. Explain one reason you like the school (e.g., the teachers or the classes).
 - Paragraph 3: Main Reason 2. Explain another reason (e.g., the facilities like the library or sports field).
 - Paragraph 4: Main Reason 3. Explain another reason (e.g., a new friend you have made).
 - Paragraph 5: Conclusion. Send greetings to other family members. Promise to write again or see him soon.
5. Closing (Subscription): (Right side, after the body) Your loving son, (or Your daughter, Yours affectionately,)
6. Your First Name: (Below the closing) Tunde

B. Tone and Language

- Do: Use contractions (I'm, it's). Use simple, clear language. Ask questions ("How are you? How is Mama?").
- Don't: Use slang (like 'abeg') or abbreviations (like 'u' or 'b4'). It is still a letter to your father, so it must be respectful.

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a formal and an informal letter?
2. Where do you write your address in an informal letter?
3. Give one example of an appropriate salutation for an informal letter to your father.
4. Give one example of an appropriate closing for the same letter.

5. What kind of tone (e.g., angry, friendly, official) should you use?

Assignment

1. Write the address and date for an informal letter, using your own school's address (or the one in the example).
2. Write the salutation and the first paragraph (introduction) of the letter to your father.
3. Write one body paragraph describing one thing you like about your school (e.g., your new friends).
4. Write the concluding paragraph and the closing.
5. Put all the parts together and write the full letter (at least 150 words).

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: NOVELLA VS. NOVEL & FIGURES OF SPEECH

A: Differentiating between a Novella and a Novel B: Figures of Speech – Onomatopoeia and Personification

Objective

By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define 'novel' and 'novella'.
2. Explain the key differences between a novel and a novella (length, plot complexity).
3. Define 'Onomatopoeia' and provide examples.
4. Define 'Personification' and provide examples.
5. Identify examples of onomatopoeia and personification in sentences.

Part A: Differentiating between a Novella and a Novel

Introduction

In literature, we have different lengths of fiction. We know the 'short story'. But what is the difference between a 'novella' and a 'novel'? The main difference is length and complexity.

1. Novel:

- Definition: A long work of fictional prose (usually 50,000 words or more).
- Plot: Very complex. It has one main plot and several subplots (smaller stories connected to the main one).
- Characters: Has many characters. The main characters and many minor characters are 'round' (well-developed).
- Examples: Things Fall Apart by Chinua Achebe, Harry Potter by J.K. Rowling.

2. Novella:

- Definition: A work of fictional prose that is shorter than a novel but longer than a short story (usually 20,000 - 50,000 words).
- Plot: Simpler. It focuses on one main plot, one central conflict, and a single chain of events.
- Characters: Has few characters. It usually focuses deeply on just one or two protagonists.
- Examples: Animal Farm by George Orwell, The Old Man and the Sea by Ernest Hemingway.

Part B: Figures of Speech

Introduction

Figures of speech are tools writers use to make their language more colourful, vivid, and interesting. We will learn two new ones today.

1. Onomatopoeia (on-oh-mat-oh-PEE-ah)

- Definition: A word that imitates or sounds like the noise it describes.
- Function: It makes the reader hear the story.
- Examples:
 - Animal sounds: moo, oink, hiss, meow, woof.
 - Action sounds: crash, bang, boom, splash, vroom, thump, whisper.
- Sentence: "The buzz of the bee was annoying."

2. Personification

- Definition: Giving human qualities, actions, or feelings to a non-human thing (an animal, an object, or an idea).
- Function: It helps the reader connect emotionally with the object being described.
- Examples:

- "The wind whispered through the leaves." (Wind cannot whisper; humans do).
- "My alarm clock yelled at me." (Clocks can't yell).
- "The sun smiled down on the children." (Suns can't smile).
- "Fear grabbed his heart." (Fear cannot grab).

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a novel and a novella?
2. What is 'Onomatopoeia'?
3. What is 'Personification'?
4. Which figure of speech is this: "The car's engine thumped and coughed."
5. Which figure of speech is this: "The angry clouds cried tears of rain."

Assignment

1. Name your recommended prose or drama text. Based on its length and complexity, do you think it is a novel or a novella? Why?
2. Write two original sentences, each using one onomatopoeia word.
3. Write two original sentences, each using personification.
4. Identify the figure of speech in this sentence: "The old door groaned in protest as I opened it."

WEEK 9:

SPEECH WORK

The Consonant Sound /v/ (Voiced Labio-dental Fricative)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Correctly identify the consonant sound /v/ in words.
2. Describe the production of the /v/ sound (voiced, labio-dental, fricative).
3. Differentiate the /v/ sound from the voiceless /f/ sound and the voiced bilabial /b/ sound.
4. Correctly pronounce words and sentences containing the /v/ sound.

The sound /v/ is known as a voiced labio-dental fricative. Let's break down what this means:

- Voiced: You use your vocal cords to make the sound. If you place your fingers on your throat, you will feel a vibration or "buzzing."
- Labio-dental: This describes the parts of the mouth used. "Labio" means 'lip' and "dental" means 'teeth.' To make this sound, your lower lip lightly touches your upper teeth.
- Fricative: The sound is produced by forcing air through a very narrow gap, causing friction.

How to Produce the /v/ Sound:

1. Raise your lower lip until it makes light contact with the bottom edge of your upper front teeth.
2. Vibrate your vocal cords (make a "zzzz" or "buzzing" sound).
3. Push air out of your mouth through the small opening between your lip and teeth. The sound should be continuous, like vvvvvvv.

Contrast with /f/: The /v/ sound is the "twin" of the /f/ sound. They are both made with the exact same mouth position (lower lip on upper teeth). The only difference is that /f/ is voiceless (no vibration, just air), while /v/ is voiced (vibration).

- Practice: Say "fan" (no vibration) and then "van" (vibration).
- Minimal Pairs (/f/ vs. /v/):
 - fan / van
 - fat / vat
 - file / vile
 - safe / save
 - leaf / leave
 - strife / strive

Contrast with /b/: Students often confuse /v/ and /b/. The /b/ sound is a bilabial stop, meaning both lips come together (bi-labial) and the air is stopped completely before being released. The /v/ sound is a continuous fricative using the lip and teeth.

- Minimal Pairs (/b/ vs. /v/):
 - ban / van
 - berry / very
 - boat / vote
 - bet / vet
 - curb / curve

Word Examples for Practice:

- Initial Position (at the beginning):

- van
 - very
 - voice
 - visit
 - village
 - value
 - victory
- Medial Position (in the middle):

- river
- seven
- never
- heavy
- fever
- cover
- over
- driving

- Final Position (at the end):

- love
- give
- have
- live
- save
- brave

- achieve
- five

Sentence Drills (Practice Sentences):

1. Victor drove the van very fast.
2. We visited the seven villages by the river.
3. Give me five of those valuable vases.
4. They live to love and save the very brave.
5. I have a fever and a heavy feeling.

Evaluation

1. Describe how the /v/ sound is produced, mentioning the parts of the mouth used.
2. What is the main difference between the /v/ sound and the /f/ sound?
3. Pronounce these words clearly for the teacher: (a) very (b) river (c) save.
4. From this list, identify the word that contains the /v/ sound: (a) base (b) bulb (c) vase.
5. Create one short, original sentence that uses at least two words with the /v/ sound.

Assignment

1. Write five minimal pairs that contrast the /v/ and /f/ sounds (e.g., fan/van).
2. Write five minimal pairs that contrast the /v/ and /b/ sounds (e.g., boat/vote).
3. List three words where /v/ appears in the initial position.
4. List three words where /v/ appears in the medial position.
5. List three words where /v/ appears in the final position.

GRAMMAR: MAKING REQUESTS USING 'WILL,' 'COULD,' AND 'MAY'

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define what a "request" is.
2. Identify 'will,' 'could,' and 'may' as modal verbs used for making requests.
3. Differentiate the levels of formality between these modal verbs.
4. Construct polite and grammatically correct requests for different social situations.

A request is the act of politely or formally asking for something or asking someone to do something. In English, we use modal verbs to make our requests sound more polite and less like a direct command.

Using 'Will':

- Form: Will you + (base form of verb)...?
- Usage: This is a common and polite way to make a request, but it is often more direct or casual. It's common among friends, family, or when asking for a simple, expected action. It can sometimes sound like a polite instruction.
- Examples:
 - "Will you pass the salt, please?" (A simple request at the dinner table)
 - "Will you be quiet?" (This sounds more like a command)
 - "Will you help me carry this?" (A direct request for help)

Using 'Could':

- Form: Could you + (base form of verb)...?
- Usage: This is a very polite and common way to ask for a favour. It is "safer" and more formal than 'will.' It sounds less like a command and more like a genuine question, acknowledging that the other person has the option to say no.

- Examples:

- "Could you open the window, please?" (More polite than "Will you open...")
- "Could you please tell me the time?"
- "Could you lend me your pen for a moment?"

Using 'May':

- Form: May I + (base form of verb)...?
- Usage: This is the most formal of the three and is used specifically to ask for permission. You are not asking the other person to do something for you; you are asking if you are allowed to do something.
- Examples:
 - "May I use your telephone?" (Asking for permission)
 - "May I be excused?" (Asking to leave the room)
 - "May I ask a question?" (A very polite way to interrupt or speak to a teacher)

Comparing Formality (Lowest to Highest):

1. Command: "Open the door." (Rude)
2. Request with 'Will': "Will you open the door?" (Polite, but direct)
3. Request with 'Could': "Could you open the door?" (More polite and considerate)
4. Request with 'May' (Permission): "May I open the door?" (Asking if you are allowed to do it)

Class Activity (Role-Play): Have students pair up and practice the following scenarios:

1. Student A: Ask your partner (Student B) to lend you their notebook, using 'could.'
2. Student B: Ask the teacher (Student A) for permission to go to the sickbay, using 'may.'

3. Student A: Ask your friend (Student B) to wait for you after school, using 'will.'

Evaluation:

1. Which modal verb ('will,' 'could,' or 'may') is most appropriate for asking for permission?
2. Rewrite this command to make it a polite request using 'could': "Show me your assignment."
3. Which is more formal: "Will you help me?" or "Could you help me?"
4. Correct this incorrect request: "May you please close the window?"
5. Form a polite request you would ask your principal, using "May I...".

Assignment: For each of the following situations, write one grammatically correct request.

1. You want to borrow your friend's bicycle. (Use 'could')
2. You need your younger brother to wash the plates. (Use 'will')
3. You are in class and need to use the restroom. (Use 'may')
4. You are in the library and want the librarian to help you find a book. (Use 'could')
5. You want to ask your teacher a question about the homework. (Use 'may')

READING & COMPREHENSION: REINFORCEMENT OF WEEK 2 PASSAGE

This lesson plan is designed to reinforce the comprehension passage that was introduced and studied during Week 2. You must have copies of the Week 2 passage available for all students. The objectives of this lesson are to move beyond surface-level understanding and engage in deeper analysis.

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Recall the main events and characters of the Week 2 passage.
2. Summarize the entire passage in their own words.
3. Analyze the meaning of key vocabulary words as used in context.
4. Answer higher-order questions (e.g., "why" and "how") about the passage.
5. Identify the author's purpose or the main theme of the passage.

Step 1: Active Re-reading (10 minutes) Distribute the Week 2 passage. Ask students to re-read it silently. This time, their task is to underline one sentence in each paragraph that they believe represents the main idea of that paragraph. They should also circle any 3-5 words they still find challenging.

Step 2: Vocabulary in Context (10 minutes) As a class, discuss the challenging words students circled.

1. Write 5-7 key vocabulary words from the passage on the board.
2. Read the sentence in which each word appears.
3. Ask students to deduce the meaning based on the context (the words and sentences around it).
4. Provide the dictionary definition and discuss how the context clues helped.
5. Ask students to provide a synonym (a word with a similar meaning) for each key word.

Step 3: Consolidation and Summarization (10 minutes)

1. Paired Summary: Have students turn to a partner. Each student gets 1 minute to summarize the entire passage orally.
2. Written Summary: Ask students to write a short paragraph (3-5 sentences) that summarizes the most important points of the passage. This tests their ability to distinguish main ideas from minor details.

Step 4: Higher-Order Questioning (10 minutes) Move beyond "What happened?" questions. Ask questions that require inference and analysis. (These are generic examples; you must adapt them to the actual passage)

- "Why do you think the main character decided to [make a key decision from the story]?"
- "What was the author's main purpose in writing this passage (e.g., to inform, to persuade, to entertain)?"
- "How did the author create a feeling of [suspense/happiness/sadness] in this paragraph?"
- "What lesson or theme can we learn from this passage?"
- "How would the story have changed if [a key event had not happened]?"

Evaluation (These must be based on the specific Week 2 passage)

1. What is the central theme or main idea of this entire passage?
2. Explain the meaning of the word "_____" as it is used in the text.
3. Why did [main character] do [key action]?
4. In your opinion, what was the most important event in this passage and why?
5. Summarize the last two paragraphs of the passage in one sentence.

Assignment (These must be based on the specific Week 2 passage)

1. Find five words from the passage (not discussed in class), look up their dictionary definitions, and write one new sentence for each.

2. Write a short paragraph (3-5 sentences) describing the main character's personality.
3. What do you predict would happen after the passage ends?
4. Identify one fact stated in the passage and one opinion (if any).
5. Do you agree or disagree with the main character's actions? Explain your answer in two sentences.

COMPOSITION: DESCRIPTIVE ESSAY – "MY FAVOURITE TEACHER"

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define and understand the purpose of a descriptive essay.
2. Brainstorm details for an essay using the five senses.
3. Organize their ideas into a logical structure (introduction, body, conclusion).
4. Use vivid adjectives, adverbs, and figurative language (similes).
5. Write a well-structured introductory paragraph.

1. What is a Descriptive Essay? The purpose of a descriptive essay is to paint a picture with words. Your goal is to show the reader what something or someone is like, not just tell them. A good description appeals to the five senses:

- Sight: (What do you see? e.g., tall, sparkling eyes, grey shirt, quick hands)
- Sound: (What do you hear? e.g., a loud, booming voice; a soft laugh; the tap-tap-tap of their shoes)
- Smell: (What do you smell? e.g., a faint smell of chalk, a specific perfume)
- Touch: (What do you feel? e.g., a firm handshake, the texture of their jacket)
- Taste: (This is less common for describing a person, but might be relevant if you share food, etc.)

2. Pre-writing: Brainstorming "My Favourite Teacher" Create a mind map or list on the board.

- Physical Appearance (Sight): How do they look? (e.g., height, glasses, hairstyle, style of dress, their smile, their walk).
- Voice & Mannerisms (Sound & Sight): How do they talk? (e.g., loud, soft, fast, slow). Do they have common phrases ("Listen up!" "Excellent!"). Do they use their hands a lot?

- Personality & Character: (e.g., kind, strict, funny, patient, inspiring, dedicated, intelligent).
- Teaching Style: How do they teach? (e.g., tells stories, draws on the board, asks many questions, makes the subject interesting).
- A Specific Memory: Think of one specific time this teacher helped you, inspired you, or made you laugh. This is a powerful tool for a descriptive essay.

3. Essay Structure:

- Introduction (Paragraph 1):
 - Hook: Start with a general statement about teachers or learning (e.g., "A good teacher can change a student's life.")
 - Introduction: Introduce your teacher (you can use their real name or a general description like "my JSS1 Mathematics teacher").
 - Thesis Statement: State clearly why this teacher is your favourite. (e.g., "Mr. John is my favourite teacher not only because he makes mathematics easy, but also because of his incredible patience and kindness.")
- Body Paragraphs (Paragraphs 2-4):
 - Each paragraph should focus on one main idea.
 - Paragraph 2 (Suggestion): Physical Description & Mannerisms. Show us what they look like and how they act.
 - Telling: "My teacher is tall."
 - Showing: "My teacher has to duck his head every time he walks through the classroom door."
 - Paragraph 3 (Suggestion): Personality & Teaching Style. Describe how they teach and what makes them special. Use examples. (e.g., "He never gets angry when we are wrong. Instead, he smiles patiently and says, 'Let's try that again from another angle.'")

- Paragraph 4 (Suggestion): A Specific Memory. Tell the short story you brainstormed. (e.g., "I will never forget the time I failed a test and he stayed behind after school to explain every question I got wrong...")
- Conclusion (Paragraph 5):
 - Restate Thesis: Remind the reader why this teacher is your favourite (in new words).
 - Summarize: Briefly summarize your main points.
 - Final Thought: End with a strong concluding sentence about their impact on your life. (e.g., "Because of Mr. John, I am no longer afraid of mathematics and I have learned the value of patience.")

4. Using Vivid Language:

- Use strong adjectives (describing words) and adverbs (words describing actions).
- Use similes (comparing using 'like' or 'as'). (e.g., "His voice is as loud as a trumpet," "He is patient like a father.")

Evaluation:

1. What is the main purpose of a descriptive essay?
2. What are the five senses you should try to appeal to?
3. What is a "thesis statement," and where does it usually go?
4. What is the difference between "showing" and "telling"? Give an example.
5. Name three things you could describe about your favourite teacher.

Assignment:

1. Complete a brainstorming web or list for your essay on "My Favourite Teacher."
2. Write a list of 10 vivid adjectives you can use to describe your teacher.
3. Write one sentence using a simile to describe your teacher's voice or actions.
4. Write the complete introductory paragraph for your essay, making sure it has a hook and a clear thesis statement.
5. Write the full draft (at least four paragraphs) of your descriptive essay, "My Favourite Teacher," to be submitted for marking.

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH

Topic: Explaining the Theme of a Folktale (from the recommended drama text)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "folktale" and "theme."
2. Differentiate between the "plot" of a story and its "theme."
3. Identify the theme(s) in a given folktale.
4. Explain how the characters' actions and the story's ending contribute to the theme.

Teacher's Note: This lesson must be taught using the class's recommended drama text for JSS2. You must select the specific folktale/play from the text to use as the primary example.

1. Key Definitions:

- Folktale: A traditional story that has been passed down orally (by word of mouth) from one generation to the next. Folktales often feature animal characters that can talk (like Anansi the Spider or the Tortoise), magic, and exaggerated events. Their main purpose is usually to entertain or to teach a lesson.
- Plot: The plot is what happens in the story. It is the sequence of events (e.g., "The tortoise and the hare decide to race. The hare runs fast and then sleeps. The tortoise walks slowly and steadily. The tortoise wins.")
- Theme: The theme is the main idea, moral, or lesson of the story. It's a universal truth about life that the story reveals. The theme is not the plot.
 - Plot: A boy lies about a wolf.
 - Theme: If you lie all the time, no one will believe you when you tell the truth.

2. How to Find the Theme of a Folktale: To find the theme, you must "read between the lines" and ask yourself these questions:

1. Characters: Who is the main character (protagonist)? What are their good and bad qualities?
2. Conflict: What is the main problem the character faces?
3. Climax & Resolution: How is the problem solved? What happens in the end?
4. The Big Question: What lesson did the main character learn (or fail to learn)? What is the story really trying to teach me about life, or about how to behave?

3. Class Analysis (Using the Recommended Text):

1. Read: As a class, read the selected folktale (or a key scene from the drama text) aloud.
2. Discuss the Plot: Ask students to summarize what happened in the story.
3. Analyze the Characters:
 - Who is the "hero" (protagonist)? Who is the "villain" (antagonist)?
 - What qualities does the hero have (e.g., clever, brave, persistent, kind)?
 - What qualities does the villain have (e.g., greedy, foolish, arrogant, lazy)?
4. Identify the Theme:
 - Ask: What quality is rewarded in the end? What quality is punished?
 - (e.g., "The clever tortoise wins, and the arrogant hare loses.")
 - Ask: So, what is the lesson the story is teaching us?
 - (Possible Themes: "Slow and steady wins the race," "Persistence is better than arrogance," "Don't underestimate your opponent.")
 - Write the identified theme(s) on the board.

Evaluation:

1. What is a folktale?
2. Explain the difference between a story's "plot" and its "theme."
3. What is the plot of the story "The Boy Who Cried Wolf"?
4. What is the theme of the story "The Boy Who Cried Wolf"?
5. Based on the folktale we read in class today from our drama text, state one of its main themes.

Assignment: (All questions refer to the folktale studied in class from your recommended drama text)

1. In your own words, write a one-paragraph summary of the plot.
2. Who was the main character, and what was the main conflict (problem) they faced?
3. State the main theme (lesson) of the story in one clear sentence.
4. Explain how the ending of the story (the resolution) proves that this is the theme.
5. Do you think this theme is still a useful lesson for people today? Why or why not?

WEEK 10

SPEECH WORK

Topic: The Consonant Sound /h/ (Voiceless Glottal Fricative)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Correctly identify the consonant sound /h/ in words.
2. Describe the production of the /h/ sound.
3. Differentiate between words where 'h' is pronounced and words where 'h' is silent.
4. Correctly use the articles 'a' and 'an' with words beginning with 'h'.
5. Pronounce words and sentences containing the /h/ sound clearly and correctly.

The sound /h/ is known as a voiceless glottal fricative.

- Voiceless: You do not use your vocal cords. If you touch your throat, you will feel no vibration. It is a quiet sound.
- Glottal: The sound is made in the glottis, which is the opening between your vocal cords in your throat.
- Fricative: The sound is made by pushing air through a narrow opening.

How to Produce the /h/ Sound: The /h/ sound is essentially a puff of air from your throat, just before you make a vowel sound. Your mouth and lips will take the shape of the vowel that follows it (e.g., the mouth shape for /h/ in 'he' is different from /h/ in 'ho'). It's the sound you make when you breathe heavily on a pair of glasses to clean them.

Word Examples for Practice:

- Initial Position (at the beginning):
 - happy

- house
- help
- home
- high
- hot
- who (The 'w' is silent; it is pronounced /hu:/))
- whole (The 'w' is silent; it is pronounced /həʊl/)
- Medial Position (in the middle):
 - behind
 - perhaps
 - unhappy
 - alcohol
 - behave
 - ahead

The Silent 'h': In English, there are some important words, often borrowed from French, where the initial 'h' is not pronounced. The word begins with a vowel sound.

- Examples:
 - hour (pronounced 'our')
 - honest (pronounced 'onest')
 - honour (pronounced 'onour')
 - heir (pronounced 'air')

Using Articles 'a' and 'an' with 'h': The rule for 'a' or 'an' depends on the sound, not the letter.

- We use 'a' before a consonant sound (including the pronounced /h/).

- a happy boy
- a hotel
- a house
- We use 'an' before a vowel sound (including the silent 'h').
 - an hour
 - an honest man
 - an honourable guest

Sentence Drills (Practice Sentences):

1. Harry helped his happy horse at home.
2. Who is hiding behind the huge house?
3. We have an hour before we meet the honest man.
4. He behaves well in his new hotel.

Evaluation

1. Describe the /h/ sound, stating if it is voiced or voiceless.
2. Which of these words contains a silent 'h': (a) happy (b) high (c) hour?
3. Pronounce these two words clearly for the teacher: (a) house (b) honest.
4. Fill in the blank with 'a' or 'an': "My father is ____ humble man."
5. Create one sentence using the words "who" and "home."

Assignment

1. Write five words that begin with a pronounced /h/ sound.
2. Write three words that begin with a silent 'h'.
3. Write two words where the /h/ sound is in the middle of the word.

4. Fill in the blanks with 'a' or 'an':

- (a) It is ____ historical day.
- (b) Give me ____ egg.
- (c) I will be back in ____ hour.

5. Write one sentence that contains both the word "happy" and the word "behind."

GRAMMAR

Topic: Direct and Indirect (Reported) Speech

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define Direct Speech and identify its features (e.g., quotation marks).
2. Define Indirect (Reported) Speech and identify its features (e.g., absence of quotation marks).
3. State the three main changes required to convert Direct to Indirect speech (pronouns, tenses, adverbs).
4. Convert simple statements from Direct to Indirect Speech.
5. Convert simple questions from Direct to Indirect Speech.

There are two ways to tell someone what another person said:

1. Direct Speech: This is when we quote the exact words of the speaker. We use quotation marks ("...") to show the exact words.

- Example: Tunde said, "I am hungry."
- Example: The teacher asked, "Where is your homework?"

2. Indirect Speech (or Reported Speech): This is when we report what the speaker said, without using their exact words. We do not use quotation marks. We often use the word 'that' for statements.

- Example: Tunde said that he was hungry.
- Example: The teacher asked where my homework was.

Rules for Changing Direct to Indirect Speech: When we change from Direct to Indirect, three main things must often change:

A. Change of Pronouns: Pronouns change to reflect the new speaker.

- Direct: He said, "I am sick."
- Indirect: He said that he was sick.
- Direct: She said, "My book is lost."
- Indirect: She said that her book was lost.

B. Change of Tense (The "Back-shift"): The verb tense in the reported clause usually moves one step back into the past.

- Present Simple → Past Simple:
 - Direct: "I like beans." → He said he liked beans.
- Present Continuous → Past Continuous:
 - Direct: "I am reading." → He said he was reading.
- Present Perfect → Past Perfect:
 - Direct: "I have finished." → He said he had finished.
- Past Simple → Past Perfect:
 - Direct: "I ate the food." → He said he had eaten the food.
- Modal Verbs:
 - will → would
 - can → could
 - may → might
 - must → had to

C. Change of Adverbs of Time and Place:

- now → then
- today → that day

- yesterday → the day before (or the previous day)
- tomorrow → the next day (or the following day)
- here → there
- this → that
- these → those

Example (Statement):

- Direct: The boy said, "I will do my homework tomorrow."
- Indirect: The boy said that he would do his homework the next day.

Changing Questions:

1. Yes/No Questions: We use 'if' or 'whether'. The sentence changes from a question to a statement (verb moves after the subject).
 - Direct: She asked, "Are you coming?"
 - Indirect: She asked if I was coming. (NOT "if was I")
2. Wh- Questions (What, Why, Where, Who, When): We use the same Wh-word.
 - Direct: He asked, "Where is the bank?"
 - Indirect: He asked where the bank was. (NOT "where was the bank")

Evaluation:

1. What is the main punctuation mark used in Direct Speech that is removed in Indirect Speech?
2. What does the word "today" change to in Indirect Speech?
3. What does the verb "will" change to in Indirect Speech?
4. Change this to Indirect Speech: Mary said, "I am feeling sick."

5. Change this to Indirect Speech: The teacher asked, "Do you understand?"

Assignment: Convert the following sentences from Direct Speech to Indirect Speech.

1. The principal said, "The school will be closed tomorrow."
2. My mother shouted, "This room is very dirty!"
3. Ayo asked, "What are you doing here?"
4. "I have finished my assignment," reported the student.
5. The prefect asked me, "Can I borrow your pen?"

READING & COMPREHENSION: REINFORCEMENT OF WEEK 3 PASSAGE

Teacher's Note: This lesson is designed to reinforce the comprehension passage studied during Week 3. You must have copies of the Week 3 passage available for all students. The goal is to move from basic understanding to deeper analysis of the author's purpose, tone, and techniques.

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Briefly summarize the main points or plot of the Week 3 passage.
2. Identify the author's tone (e.g., humorous, serious, sad, informative).
3. Identify the author's purpose (e.g., to inform, to persuade, to entertain).
4. Analyze how the author's word choice (diction) contributes to the tone.
5. Answer inferential questions based on the passage.

Step 1: Re-reading for Tone (10 minutes) Distribute the Week 3 passage. Ask students to re-read it silently. This time, their task is to focus on the feeling of the passage. Is the author trying to be funny? Serious? Persuasive? Sad? Ask them to underline 3-5 words or phrases that give them a clue about the author's feelings (this is the tone).

Step 2: Identifying Author's Purpose (10 minutes) Lead a class discussion based on the reading.

- Why did the author write this?
 - To Inform: To give facts or information (like a textbook or news report).
 - To Persuade: To convince the reader to believe or do something (like an advertisement or a debate).
 - To Entertain: To tell a story or be enjoyable (like a folktale or a novel).
- Ask the class to vote on the primary purpose of the Week 3 passage and give reasons for their choice.

Step 3: Vocabulary and Diction (10 minutes)

- Discuss the words the students underlined in Step 1.
- Ask: "Why did the author choose the word 'devastated' instead of just 'sad'?" or "Why use the word 'screeched' instead of 'shouted'?"
- Explain that this specific word choice (called diction) helps create the tone and paint a clearer picture for the reader.

Step 4: Inferential Questioning (10 minutes) Ask questions that require students to "read between the lines." The answers are not stated directly in the text. (These are generic examples; you must adapt them to the actual passage)

- "Based on paragraph 3, what can you infer about the character's past?"
- "What does the author's tone in the first paragraph suggest will happen later?"
- "If the author's purpose was [to inform], what is the most important piece of information they shared?"
- "What do you think the author left out of the passage, and why?"

Evaluation (These must be based on the specific Week 3 passage)

1. What is the author's main purpose for writing this passage (to inform, persuade, or entertain)?
2. Which word best describes the author's tone in the passage (e.g., humorous, serious, angry)?
3. Find one word or phrase from the passage that supports your answer to question 2.
4. What is one thing you can infer (conclude) from the passage that is not directly stated?
5. Summarize the main idea of the passage in one single sentence.

Assignment (These must be based on the specific Week 3 passage)

1. Find five challenging words from the passage (not discussed in class), look up their dictionary definitions, and write one new sentence for each.
2. Write a short paragraph (3-5 sentences) agreeing or disagreeing with the author's main point or the main character's main decision.
3. If the passage is a story, what do you predict would happen after the passage ends?
4. If the passage is informational, what is one question you still have about the topic?
5. Rewrite the first paragraph of the passage in your own words.

SECOND TERM – JSS2 ENGLISH STUDIES LESSON NOTES

WEEK 1

SPEECH WORK

Topic: Revision of Diphthongs

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a diphthong.
2. Differentiate between a monophthong (pure vowel) and a diphthong (vowel glide).
3. Identify the eight common English diphthongs by their phonetic symbols.
4. Correctly pronounce words containing each of the diphthongs.
5. Group words according to their diphthong sound.

A monophthong is a pure vowel sound, where the tongue and lips stay in one position (e.g., /i:/ in 'seat', /ɒ/ in 'hot').

A diphthong (or vowel glide) is a "gliding vowel." It is a single vowel sound that starts in one position and glides to another position within the same syllable (e.g., the sound in 'boy' starts as /ɔ:/ and moves to /ɪ/).

The Eight Common Diphthongs in English:

1. /eɪ/ (as in "say" or "gate")
 - Examples: play, rain, make, age, face, day, they
2. /aɪ/ (as in "my" or "price")
 - Examples: try, light, time, high, buy, eye, I
3. /ɔɪ/ (as in "boy" or "noise")
 - Examples: toy, join, voice, oil, soil, coin
4. /aʊ/ (as in "how" or "mouse")
 - Examples: now, cow, loud, house, town, out

5. /əʊ/ (or /oʊ/) (as in "go" or "show")

- Examples: no, so, boat, road, home, those, old

6. /ɪə/ (as in "here" or "near")

- Examples: fear, clear, dear, beer, career, ear

7. /eə/ (as in "air" or "care")

- Examples: hair, fair, wear, there, square, bear

8. /ʊə/ (as in "poor" or "tour")

- Examples: pure, cure, tour, lure, endure, jury

Sentence Drills for Practice:

1. My /aɪ/ high /aɪ/ price /aɪ/ is not a joke /əʊ/.
2. The boy /ɔɪ/ found a coin /ɔɪ/ in the soil /ɔɪ/.
3. How /aʊ/ can the cow /aʊ/ be so loud /aʊ/?
4. They /eɪ/ say /eɪ/ the rain /eɪ/ will stay /eɪ/.
5. Go /əʊ/ show /əʊ/ them the old /əʊ/ road /əʊ/.
6. We are near /ɪə/ the clear /ɪə/ pier /ɪə/.
7. How can you bear /eə/ to wear /eə/ that to the fair /eə/?

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a monophthong and a diphthong?
2. Which diphthong sound is in the word "time"?
3. Which diphthong sound is in the word "boat"?
4. From this list, identify the word that has a different vowel sound: (a) boy (b) toy (c) bay.
5. Pronounce these words clearly for the teacher: (a) house (b) here (c) home.

Assignment

1. Write two examples of words for each of these diphthongs: /eɪ/, /aɪ/, /ɔɪ/, /aʊ/, /əʊ/.
2. Write two examples of words for each of these diphthongs: /ɪə/, /eə/, /ʊə/.
3. Group the following words by the diphthong sound they have:
 - loud, face, prize, go, voice, hair, make, now, light, soil, load, square, ride
4. Write one sentence that contains the /eɪ/ sound (e.g., "say").
5. Write one sentence that contains the /aʊ/ sound (e.g., "how").

GRAMMAR: REPORTED SPEECH – RULES GUIDING THE USE OF REPORTED SPEECH

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define Direct Speech and Indirect (Reported) Speech.
2. Identify the punctuation used in Direct Speech (quotation marks, comma).
3. State the three main changes that occur when converting from Direct to Indirect Speech.
4. Apply the rule of "tense back-shift" correctly.
5. Apply the rules for changing pronouns and adverbs of time/place.

- Direct Speech: This is the exact words of the speaker, enclosed in quotation marks.
 - Example: Mary said, "I am going to the market today."
- Indirect (Reported) Speech: This is reporting what someone said, without using their exact words. Quotation marks are removed.
 - Example: Mary said that she was going to the market that day.

The Three Main Rules for Conversion:

1. Change of Pronouns: Pronouns and possessive adjectives (I, me, my, you, your, we, us, our) change to reflect the new speaker's perspective (he, she, his, her, they, them, their).

- Direct: "I am sick," he said.
- Indirect: He said that he was sick.
- Direct: "We will do our homework," they said.
- Indirect: They said that they would do their homework.

2. Change of Tense (The “Back-shift”)

When changing Direct Speech to Indirect Speech, the verb tense in the quoted sentence usually moves one step back into the past.

Direct Speech Tense	Indirect Speech Tense
Present Simple (go)	Past Simple (went)
Present Continuous (is going)	Past Continuous (was going)
Present Perfect (has gone)	Past Perfect (had gone)
Past Simple (went)	Past Perfect (had gone)

Modal Verbs

Direct Speech	Indirect Speech
will	would
can	could
may	might must	had to

Examples:

- “I am happy.” → He said he was happy.
- “I will come.” → He said he would come.
- “I ate the rice.” → He said he had eaten the rice.

3. Change of Adverbs of Time and Place

When converting Direct Speech to Indirect Speech, some adverbs of time and place also change to reflect the shift in perspective.

Direct Speech Adverb	Indirect Speech Adverb
----------------------	------------------------

now	then
today	that day
yesterday	the day before / the previous day
tomorrow	the next day / the following day
here	there
this	that these	those

Example:

- “I will see you here tomorrow.”
- Indirect: He said he would see me there the next day.

Evaluation:

1. What are the punctuation marks that must be removed when changing from Direct to Indirect Speech?
2. The verb "can" in Direct Speech changes to "_____" in Indirect Speech.
3. The adverb "today" in Direct Speech changes to "_____" in Indirect Speech.
4. The pronoun "I" in Direct Speech usually changes to "" or "" in Indirect Speech.
5. Change this sentence to Indirect Speech: John said, "I am busy now."

Assignment: Convert the following sentences from Direct Speech to Indirect Speech.

1. The teacher said, "You are all making noise."

2. Bisi complained, "I lost my pen yesterday."
3. The prefect said, "The principal will address us tomorrow."
4. "I have finished my assignment," reported the student.
5. My father said, "I am going to the office."

READING & COMPREHENSION: READING TO PROVIDE ALTERNATIVE WORDS (SYNONYMS IN CONTEXT)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "context" in reading.
2. Define "synonym."
3. Explain why a synonym must fit the specific context of the sentence.
4. Read a given passage and identify target words.
5. Provide suitable alternative words (synonyms) for target words that fit the meaning of the passage.

1. What is Context? The "context" of a word refers to the other words and sentences that surround it. The context helps us understand the exact meaning of a word.

- For example, the word "run" means different things in these sentences:
 - "The boy will run a race." (Meaning: move fast, sprint)
 - "The man will run for president." (Meaning: campaign, compete)
 - "My nose will run." (Meaning: drip)

2. What is a Synonym? A synonym is a word that has the same or a very similar meaning to another word (e.g., big/large, happy/joyful).

3. Synonyms in Context: When a comprehension passage asks you to replace a word, you cannot just pick any synonym. You must pick one that fits the context.

- Sentence: "The king was a noble man."
- Synonyms for "noble": high-ranking, aristocratic, honourable, good, virtuous.
- In this context, "honourable" or "virtuous" is a better fit than "aristocratic."

Practice Passage (Teacher to provide a short passage): Example Passage: "The little girl was afraid as she walked through the dark forest. She heard a loud noise and began to cry enormously."

- Step 1: Read the passage.
- Step 2: Identify the target words (e.g., little, dark, loud, enormously).
- Step 3: Brainstorm synonyms.
 - little: small, tiny, young
 - dark: dim, gloomy, black, unlit
 - loud: noisy, thunderous, high-volume
 - enormously: greatly, hugely, (This one is used strangely. A better word would be "uncontrollably" or "loudly.")
- Step 4: Choose the best fit.
 - little → small or young
 - dark → gloomy
 - loud → noisy
 - enormously → greatly (or replace with a better adverb like "bitterly")

Evaluation (Teacher must provide a short, simple passage for this)

1. What is meant by the "context" of a word?
2. Define "synonym."
3. From the passage, find a word that means the same as "_____."
4. From the passage, find a word that means the same as "_____."
5. Which word in this sentence, "The clever boy fooled the king," could be replaced by "intelligent"?

Assignment (Teacher must provide a different, short passage)

1. Read the given passage carefully.
2. Find a word in the passage that means the same as "happy."
3. Find a word in the passage that means the same as "large."
4. Find a word in the passage that means the same as "beautiful."
5. Replace the underlined word with a suitable synonym: "The work was very hard."

COMPOSITION: REPORT WRITING – OUTLINE AND FEATURES

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define what a report is.
2. Differentiate a report from a narrative story.
3. List the key features of a good report.
4. State the correct outline (format) for writing a formal report.
5. Write a suitable title for a given report topic.

Here are the comprehensive, detailed, and expansive lesson notes for the first four weeks of the second term, based on the scheme of work you provided.

Subject: English Studies Class: JSS 2 Term: Second Term Week: 1

Component 1: Speech Work

Topic: Revision of Diphthongs

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a diphthong and differentiate it from a monophthong (pure vowel).
2. Orally identify the eight common English diphthongs.
3. Recognize the phonetic symbols for each of the eight diphthongs.
4. Correctly pronounce words containing these diphthongs.

Lesson Content:

A monophthong is a "pure" vowel sound, where the tongue and lips remain in one position (e.g., /i:/ in 'seat', /ɒ/ in 'pot', /u:/ in 'food').

A diphthong, also known as a "vowel glide," is a complex vowel sound that starts in the position of one vowel and glides smoothly into the position of another vowel, all within the same syllable. There are eight common diphthongs in standard English.

The Eight Diphthongs:

1. /eɪ/ (as in "say" or "gate")

- Description: Starts like /e/ (as in 'bet') and glides towards /ɪ/ (as in 'sit').
- Common Spellings: 'a_e' (make, late), 'ai' (rain, mail), 'ay' (day, play), 'ei' (vein, reign), 'ey' (they, grey).
- Examples: date, face, train, pay, eight, obey.

- Common Spellings: 'oi' (coin, soil), 'oy' (toy, joy).
- Examples: voice, choice, oil, annoy, royal, loyal.

4. /aʊ/ (as in "how" or "mouse")

- Description: Starts like /a/ (as in 'father') and glides towards /ʊ/ (as in 'put').
- Common Spellings: 'ou' (out, loud), 'ow' (now, brown).
- Examples: house, town, cow, shout, couch, our.

5. /əʊ/ (or /oʊ/) (as in "go" or "show")

- Description: Starts with the central vowel /ə/ (schwa) and glides towards /ʊ/ (as in 'put').
- Common Spellings: 'o_e' (home, note), 'o' (so, open), 'oa' (boat, road), 'ow' (low, grow), 'ou' (soul, though).
- Examples: old, nose, coat, phone, pillow, moment.

6. /ɪə/ (as in "here" or "near")

- Description: Starts like /ɪ/ (as in 'sit') and glides towards /ə/ (schwa).
- Common Spellings: 'eer' (deer, cheer), 'ere' (here, severe), 'ear' (near, fear), 'ier' (pier, fierce).

3. /ɔɪ/: The noisy boy destroyed the toy.
 4. /aʊ/: Our town is now surrounded by mountains.
 5. /əʊ/: Go and show them the old boat.
 6. /ɪə/: We fear we are near the end of the year.
 7. /eə/: The pair in the square shared the air.

Evaluation

1. What is the main difference between a monophthong and a diphthong?
2. Which diphthong sound is in the word "loud"?
3. Which diphthong sound is in the word "lake"?
4. From this list, identify the word that has a different diphthong sound: (a) boy (b) toy (c) bay (d) boil.
5. Pronounce these words clearly for the teacher: (a) house (b) here (c) home (d) hair (e) high.

Assignment

1. Write the phonetic symbol and two example words for each of these diphthongs: (a) the sound in "price" (b) the sound in "road" (c) the sound in "chair".
2. Group the following words according to the diphthong sound they contain:
 - loud, face, prize, go, voice, hair, make, now, light, soil, load, square, ride
3. Write one sentence that contains the /eɪ/ sound (e.g., "say") and the /aɪ/ sound (e.g., "my").
4. Write one sentence that contains the /ɔɪ/ sound (e.g., "boy") and the /aʊ/ sound (e.g., "how").
5. Write the eight phonetic symbols for the diphthongs from memory.

Component 2: Grammar

Topic: Reported Speech – Rules Guiding the Use of Reported Speech

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define Direct Speech and Indirect (Reported) Speech.
2. Identify the punctuation used in Direct Speech (quotation marks, commas, etc.).
3. State the three main categories of changes required to convert Direct to Indirect speech.
4. Apply the rule of "tense back-shift" to convert present and future tenses.
5. Apply the rules for changing pronouns and adverbs of time/place.

Lesson Content:

There are two ways to tell someone what another person said:

1. Direct Speech: This is quoting the exact words of the speaker. We must use quotation marks ("...") to enclose the words spoken. The quoted speech is usually separated from the reporting verb (like 'said') by a comma.

- Example: Mary said, "I am going to the market today."
- Example: The boy shouted, "My book is lost!"

2. Indirect Speech (or Reported Speech): This is reporting what the speaker said without using their exact words. We do not use quotation marks. We often (but not always) use the word 'that' to introduce the reported clause.

- Example: Mary said that she was going to the market that day.
- Example: The boy shouted that his book was lost.

The Three Main Rules for Conversion: When we change from Direct to Indirect Speech, three things must almost always change.

A. Change of Pronouns and Possessive Adjectives: Pronouns change to reflect the new speaker's perspective. | Direct | Indirect (Example) | :--- | :--- | I | he / she | me | him / her | my | his / her | we | they | us | them | our | their |

- Direct: "I am in my class," Tunde said.
- Indirect: Tunde said that he was in his class.

B. Change of Tense (The "Back-shift"): If the reporting verb (e.g., 'said', 'told') is in the past tense, the verb in the reported clause must move one step "back" into the past. | Direct Speech Tense | Changes to | Indirect Speech Tense | :--- | :--- | :--- | Present Simple (go) | → | Past Simple (went) | Present Continuous (is going) | → | Past Continuous (was going) | Present Perfect (has gone) | → | Past Perfect (had gone) | Past Simple (went) | → | Past Perfect (had gone) | Modal Verbs | will | → | would | can | → | could | may | → | might | must | → | had to |

- Direct: "I am happy." → He said he was happy.
- Direct: "I will come." → He said he would come.
- Direct: "I ate the rice." → He said he had eaten the rice.

C. Change of Adverbs of Time and Place: Words that refer to "now" and "here" must be changed to reflect "then" and "there." | Direct Speech Adverb | Changes to | Indirect Speech Adverb | :--- | :--- | :--- | now | → | then | today | → | that day | yesterday | → | the day before / the previous day | tomorrow | → | the next day / the following day | here | → | there | this | → | that | these | → | those |

Putting It All Together (Full Example):

- Direct: The teacher said, "I will check this homework tomorrow."
- Indirect: The teacher said that she would check that homework the next day.

Evaluation (Grammar):

1. What are the punctuation marks that must be removed when changing from Direct to Indirect Speech?
2. The verb "can" in Direct Speech changes to "_____" in Indirect Speech.
3. The adverb "yesterday" in Direct Speech changes to " " or " ."
4. The pronoun "we" in Direct Speech usually changes to "_____" in Indirect Speech.
5. Change this sentence to Indirect Speech: John said, "I am busy now."

Assignment (Grammar): Convert the following sentences from Direct Speech to Indirect Speech.

1. The teacher said, "You are all making noise in this class."
2. Bisi complained, "I lost my new pen yesterday."
3. The prefect announced, "The principal will address all students tomorrow."
4. "I have finished my assignment," reported the student.
5. My father said, "I am going to the office now, and I will be back in the evening."

Component 3: Reading & Comprehension

Topic: Reading to Provide Alternative Words (Synonyms in Context)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "context" in reading.
2. Define "synonym" and "synonymy."
3. Explain why a synonym must fit the specific context of the sentence, not just the general word.
4. Read a given passage and identify target words.
5. Provide and justify suitable alternative words (synonyms) for target words that fit the meaning of the passage.

Lesson Content:

1. What is Context? The "context" of a word refers to the other words, phrases, and sentences that surround it. The context provides clues that help us understand the exact or intended meaning of a word. A word can have multiple meanings, but the context makes it clear which one is being used.

2. What is a Synonym? A synonym is a word that has the same or a very similar meaning to another word (e.g., big/large, happy/joyful, begin/start).

3. The Importance of Synonyms in Context This is the most critical skill. You cannot just pick any synonym. The replacement word must fit the exact meaning of the sentence.

- Example 1: The word "bright"

- Sentence A: "Tunde is a bright student."
- Synonyms for bright: shining, intelligent, happy, vivid.
- Best fit for Context A: intelligent (or "clever," "smart").
- Sentence B: "The sun is very bright today."
- Best fit for Context B: shining (or "radiant," "luminous").
- You cannot say "The sun is very intelligent today."

- Example 2: The word "run"

- Sentence A: "The boy will run a race."
- Best fit: sprint, race.
- Sentence B: "Please run the tap."
- Best fit: turn on, open.
- Sentence C: "The man will run for president."
- Best fit: campaign, compete.

Class Activity: (Teacher provides a short passage on the board)

Sample Passage: "The ancient king lived in a vast palace. He was a kind ruler, but his words were always brief. When he spoke, his voice was low."

1. Word: ancient

- Synonyms: old, aged, elderly, antique.
- Best fit: old or aged. ("Elderly" is better for a person, "antique" for an object).

2. Word: vast

- Synonyms: large, huge, big, wide, enormous.
- Best fit: huge or enormous.

3. Word: kind

- Synonyms: nice, good, benevolent, compassionate.
- Best fit: benevolent or compassionate.

4. Word: brief

- Synonyms: short, quick, concise, short-lived.
- Best fit: short or concise.

5. Word: low

- Synonyms: short, quiet, soft, cheap, sad.
- Best fit: quiet or soft (referring to his voice).

Evaluation (Reading & Comprehension): (Teacher must provide a short, simple passage for this)

1. What is meant by the "context" of a word?
2. Define "synonym."
3. From the passage, find a word or phrase that means the same as "_____."

4. From the passage, find a word or phrase that means the same as "_____."
5. Which word in this sentence, "The clever boy fooled the king," could be replaced by "intelligent"?

Assignment (Reading & Comprehension): (Teacher must provide a different, short passage with at least five target words underlined.) For the passage provided:

1. Write down the underlined word "_____".
 2. Write down a synonym that perfectly fits the context of the passage.
 3. Write down the underlined word "_____".
 4. Write down a synonym that perfectly fits the context of the passage.
 5. Write down the underlined word "_____".
 6. Write down a synonym that perfectly fits the context of the passage.
 7. Write down the underlined word "_____".
 8. Write down a synonym that perfectly fits the context of the passage.
 9. Write down the underlined word "_____".
 10. Write down a synonym that perfectly fits the context of the passage.

Component 4: Composition

Topic: Report Writing – Outline and Features

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a report and its purpose.
2. Differentiate a report from a narrative story or an essay.
3. List and explain the key features of a good report.
4. State the correct outline (format) for writing a formal report.

5. Write a suitable, formal title for a given report topic.

1. What is a Report? A report is a formal, factual, and objective account of an event that has already happened, or an investigation into a specific matter.

- Purpose: To inform, to provide facts, and to record an event. It is written for someone in authority (e.g., the Principal, a manager, the Police) who needs to know exactly what happened.

2. Report vs. Narrative Story (e.g., "An Accident I Saw")

Feature	Report	Narrative Story (Composition)
Purpose	To inform factually	To entertain or share feelings
Tone	Formal, serious, objective	Informal, emotional, personal
Language	Direct, precise, no slang	Descriptive, imaginative, "flowery"
Tense	Consistently past tense	Can be past tense; may include dialogue
Opinion	No personal opinions or feelings	Full of opinions and feelings
Example	"The rider was bleeding."	"I was so scared; my heart beat fast."

3. Key Features of a Report:

- Formal: No slang, no contractions (e.g., use "did not," not "didn't").
- Factual: Only write what happened, what you saw, or what was said. Do not add your personal feelings (e.g., "It was a terrible sight" is an opinion; "Two cars were damaged" is a fact).
- Objective: Be neutral. Do not take sides.
- Chronological: The events must be in the correct time order (what happened first, second, third...).
- Clear: It must be easy to understand.

4. Outline (Format) of a Report: A formal report must have the following parts:

- 1. Title: This must be clear and specific. It often starts with "A REPORT ON..."
 - Example: A REPORT ON THE FIRE OUTBREAK AT THE JSS2 BLOCK ON 10TH OCTOBER, 2025.
- 2. Introduction: This is one paragraph that answers Who, What, Where, and When.
 - Example: "On Monday, 10th October, 2025, at about 2:00 p.m., a fire started in the JSS2B classroom..."
- 3. Body: This is the main part of the report. It gives a detailed, step-by-step account of the event in chronological order. Each new point should be in a new paragraph.
 - Example: (Paragraph 2: How the fire was discovered. Paragraph 3: What students and teachers did. Paragraph 4: The arrival of the fire service. Paragraph 5: The extent of the damage.)
- 4. Conclusion: This is a final, short paragraph that summarizes the outcome. It can also include a recommendation if asked.
 - Example: "The fire was put out by 3:00 p.m. No student was injured, but the classroom and all furniture were completely destroyed. It is recommended that..."
- 5. Signature and Name:
 - (Signature)
 - Adebayo, Tunde
 - (Class Captain, JSS2)

Evaluation:

1. What is the main purpose of writing a report?
2. State one major difference between a report and a narrative story.

3. What does it mean for a report to be "chronological"?
4. List the four main parts of a report's outline.
5. Which of these is a better title for a report: (a) A Sad Day (b) A Report on an Accident I Saw.

Assignment:

1. Define a report in your own words.
2. List three key features of a good report.
3. Imagine there was a fight between two students in the cafeteria. Write a suitable title for a report on this incident.
4. Write the introduction (one paragraph) for the report on the fight, inventing the date, time, and names.
5. What is the main difference between the body and the conclusion of a report?

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: INTRODUCTION TO THE RECOMMENDED TEXT ON PROSE

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "prose."
2. Differentiate prose from drama and poetry.
3. Define "plot" and "setting."
4. Identify the author and title of the recommended prose text.
5. Read the first chapter (or a section) of the text and identify the main characters, setting, and the start of the plot.

Teacher's Note: This lesson must be based on the specific prose text recommended for the class (e.g., "The Bottled Leopard," "The Pearl," etc.). The following is a general framework.

What is Prose? Prose is the ordinary form of written language. It is not poetry (which has rhythm and rhyme) and it is not drama (which is written as a script for actors). Novels, short stories, and textbooks are all examples of prose.

Key Literary Elements in Prose:

- Plot: This is the sequence of events in the story; it's what happens. The plot has a structure:
 - Exposition: The beginning, where characters and setting are introduced.
 - Rising Action: The series of conflicts and problems that build suspense.
 - Climax: The highest point of tension; the turning point of the story.
 - Falling Action: The events after the climax, winding down.
 - Resolution: The end, where the conflict is solved.
- Setting: This is the time (e.g., 1980, modern-day) and place (e.g., a village, Lagos, the moon) of the story.
- Characters: The people (or animals) in the story.

Introduction to the Recommended Text:

- Title: (State the title of the book)
- Author: (State the name of the author)
- Background: (Give a brief, 2-minute background on the author or the book's context, if relevant).

Class Reading and Analysis (Chapter 1):

- Read the first chapter (or a key section) of the prose text aloud as a class (students can take turns).
- Discussion:
 - Characters: Who are the main characters we have met so far? (List them on the board). What are our first impressions of them?
 - Setting: Where does this story take place? When does it take place? (e.g., a modern city, a village in the past).
 - Plot (Exposition): What is the main situation at the beginning of the story? What is the inciting incident—the event that kicks off the main conflict?

Evaluation:

1. Define prose in your own words.
2. What is the difference between "plot" and "setting"?
3. What is the full title of our recommended prose text?
4. Who is the author of our text?
5. Based on our reading today, who is the main character (protagonist) of the story?

Assignment: (All questions refer to the recommended prose text)

1. Describe the main setting (time and place) of the story, based on what you have read so far.
2. List two other characters you have met in the story besides the protagonist.
3. What is the main conflict or problem that seems to be starting in the story?
4. Write a one-paragraph summary of the first chapter (or the section read in class).
5. What do you predict will happen next in the story?

WEEK 2

SPEECH WORK: INTONATION – IDENTIFICATION OF PATTERNS (STATEMENTS, QUESTIONS, COMMANDS)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define intonation.
2. Identify the "falling tone" and the "rising tone."
3. State the intonation pattern used for simple statements (declarative sentences).
4. State the intonation pattern used for "Wh-" questions.
5. State the intonation pattern used for "Yes/No" questions and commands.

What is Intonation? Intonation is the "music" or "melody" of speech. It is the way our voice rises (goes up) and falls (goes down) when we speak. Intonation is very important because it can change the entire meaning of a sentence, even if the words are the same. It shows our mood (happy, sad, angry) or purpose (asking, telling).

The two main intonation patterns (or tunes) are the Falling Tone and the Rising Tone.

1. The Falling Tone (Tune 1): The pitch of the voice starts high and falls to a low pitch at the end of the sentence. It sounds final and confident.

- When to use it:
 - Statements (Declarative Sentences):
 - My name is ↘Bisi.
 - The sky is ↘blue.
 - We live in ↘Lagos.
 - "Wh-" Questions (Questions starting with Who, What, Where, When, Why, How):

- What is your ↘name?
- Where do you ↘live?
- How are you ↘today?
- Commands (Imperative Sentences):
 - Go and sit ↘down.
 - Open your ↘book.

2. The Rising Tone (Tune 2): The pitch of the voice starts low and rises to a high pitch at the end. It sounds questioning, incomplete, or polite.

- When to use it:
 - "Yes/No" Questions (Questions that can be answered with 'yes' or 'no'):
 - Are you ↗coming?
 - Is your name ↗Bisi?
 - Do you have a ↗pen?
 - Listing Items (The voice rises on each item except the last one):
 - I bought ↗bread, ↗eggs, ↗milk, and ↘fish.

Evaluation

1. What is intonation?
2. What intonation pattern (rising or falling) is used for a simple statement like "I am a student"?
3. What intonation pattern is used for a "Wh-" question like "What is the time"?
4. What intonation pattern is used for a "Yes/No" question like "Are you hungry"?
5. What intonation pattern is used for a command like "Be quiet"?

Assignment

1. Write the definition of intonation.
2. Write two examples of sentences that use a Falling Tone.
3. Write two examples of sentences that use a Rising Tone.
4. For each sentence below, write "Rising" or "Falling" to show its correct intonation.
 - (a) Where is the principal?
 - (b) The food is ready.
 - (c) Did you do your homework?
5. Create one "Yes/No" question and one "Wh-" question and mark their intonation patterns.

GRAMMAR: MAKING SENTENCES WITH PREPOSITIONS

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a preposition.
2. Identify prepositions in sentences.
3. Differentiate between prepositions of place, time, and direction.
4. Use common prepositions (in, on, at, under, to, for, from, with) correctly in sentences.
5. Construct original sentences using a variety of prepositions.

1. What is a Preposition? A preposition is a word (or group of words) that shows the relationship between a noun or pronoun and another word in the sentence. They often tell us where something is, when something happens, or how something is done.

- Example: The book is on the table. (The word "on" shows the relationship between "book" and "table.")

2. Common Prepositions and Their Uses:

- Prepositions of Place (Where?):
 - IN: (Used for enclosed spaces or large areas)
 - The food is in the pot.
 - He lives in Lagos.
 - ON: (Used for surfaces)
 - The pen is on the desk.
 - The picture is on the wall.
 - AT: (Used for specific points or locations)
 - I am at the bus stop.

- He is at home.
- UNDER: (Directly below something)
 - The cat is under the chair.
- BEHIND: (At the back of)
 - The garden is behind the house.
- BETWEEN: (In the space separating two things)
 - Bisi is sitting between Tolu and Ada.
- Prepositions of Time (When?):
 - AT: (Used for specific times)
 - The class starts at 9 o'clock.
 - He sleeps at night.
 - ON: (Used for days and dates)
 - We will meet on Friday.
 - My birthday is on October 29th.
 - IN: (Used for months, years, and long periods)
 - He was born in 2010.
 - It happened in the morning.
 - FOR: (Used for a duration of time)
 - We waited for two hours.
 - SINCE: (Used for a point in time when something started)
 - I have been here since 8:00 a.m.
- Prepositions of Direction/Movement (Which way?):
 - TO: (Movement towards a destination)

- I am going to the market.
- FROM: (Movement starting at a point)
 - He came from school.
- INTO: (Movement from outside to inside)
 - The boy jumped into the river.

Evaluation:

1. What is the function of a preposition?
2. Identify the preposition in this sentence: "The book fell off the shelf."
3. Choose the correct preposition: "I will see you (at / on) Monday."
4. Choose the correct preposition: "My keys are (in / on) my pocket."
5. Choose the correct preposition: "The school closes (in / at) 2 p.m."

Assignment:

1. Write a clear definition of a preposition.
2. Write one sentence using "on" for time and one sentence using "on" for place.
3. Write one sentence using "in" for time and one sentence using "in" for place.
4. Create two original sentences, each using at least two different prepositions.
5. Fill in the blanks with the correct prepositions (at, in, on, to, for):
 - (a) He is going ___ school.
 - (b) The party is ___ Saturday.
 - (c) I woke up ___ 6 o'clock.
 - (d) We have been waiting ___ an hour.

- (e) My brother lives ____ London.

READING & COMPREHENSION: READING FOR SPEED

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define reading for speed (skimming).
2. Identify bad habits that slow down reading (vocalization, regression, finger-pointing).
3. Explain the technique of "phrase reading."
4. Practice reading a passage for speed, focusing on avoiding bad habits.

1. What is Speed Reading? Speed reading is the ability to read and understand text quickly. It is not about reading every single word, but about understanding the main ideas in less time.

2. Bad Habits That Slow You Down (and How to Stop Them):

- Vocalization: This is the habit of "mouthing" the words as you read them.
- Sub-vocalization: This is the habit of "saying" every word in your head. This is the biggest barrier to fast reading.
 - Solution: Try to silence your "inner voice." Chew gum (quietly) or hum to distract the part of your brain that wants to "say" the words.
- Regression: This is the habit of your eyes "going back" to re-read words you have already passed. It's often unnecessary.
 - Solution: Use a "pacer"—like a pen, your finger, or a piece of paper—and move it under the line you are reading. Keep the pacer moving forward at a steady pace and force your eyes to keep up.
- Word-by-Word Reading: This is reading one word at a time. It is very slow.
 - Solution: Learn Phrase Reading.

3. The Technique of Phrase Reading: Instead of reading: "The / cat / sat / on / the / mat." Train your eyes to "chunk" words into phrases: "(The cat) / (sat on) / (the mat)."

You stop your eyes only 3 times, not 6. This doubles your reading speed.

- (When the boy) / (came to school) / (he met) / (the principal).

Practice: (Teacher provides a passage. Students are timed for 1 minute, reading normally. Then they are timed again, using a pacer and trying to "chunk" phrases. Compare how many lines were read).

Evaluation:

1. What is "sub-vocalization," and why is it a bad habit for speed reading?
2. What is "regression" in reading?
3. Explain the technique of "phrase reading."
4. What is a "pacer," and how can it help you read faster?
5. (Teacher-led) Let's read this paragraph. (Time the students). How can you read it faster?

Assignment:

1. List three bad habits that slow down a person's reading speed.
2. What is the solution to "word-by-word" reading?
3. Read one page of your English textbook or a newspaper. Use your finger as a pacer and force yourself not to go back (no regression).
4. Write down how this technique felt. Was it easy or hard?
5. Practice chunking. Break this sentence into "chunks" or phrases: "The beautiful girl with the red dress walked quickly to the market."

COMPOSITION: REPORT WRITING – AN ACCIDENT I WITNESSED

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Recall the outline and features of a formal report (from Week 1).
2. Brainstorm factual details for the topic "An Accident I Witnessed."
3. Organize the details into a chronological (time-order) sequence.
4. Write a clear introduction, body, and conclusion for the report.
5. Write a complete, formal report on an accident, using objective language.

1. Review of Report Writing:

- Format: Title, Introduction, Body, Conclusion, Signature/Name.
- Features: Formal, Factual, Objective (no opinions), Chronological, Past Tense.

2. Brainstorming for "An Accident I Witnessed":

- Topic: A Report on a Road Accident Between a Bus and a Motorcycle.
- Introduction (What, Where, When):
 - What? A collision between a white bus and a red motorcycle.
 - Where? At the main junction in front of the school gate.
 - When? Yesterday, Monday, 17th October, 2025, at about 4:00 p.m.
- Body (Chronological Details - What happened?):
 - Paragraph 1: I was walking home from school. I saw the motorcycle speeding. The bus was trying to turn.
 - Paragraph 2: The motorcycle rider was not wearing a helmet. He tried to overtake the bus at the junction.

- Paragraph 3: The bus hit the motorcycle. The rider fell and was badly injured. The motorcycle was crushed.
- Paragraph 4: People gathered. A teacher called the police and an ambulance (or FRSC - Federal Road Safety Corps).
- Conclusion (Outcome):
 - The police arrived after 15 minutes. The ambulance took the injured rider to the General Hospital. The bus driver was questioned by the police.

3. Drafting the Report (Class Activity): (Use the brainstormed points to write a model report on the board, emphasizing formal language.)

- Instead of: "The rider was bleeding so much, it was scary." (Opinion)
- Write: "The rider sustained a serious injury to his head and was bleeding." (Fact)

Evaluation:

1. What is the best tense (past, present, future) to use when writing a report on an event that happened?
2. What three questions must the introduction of a report answer?
3. What does it mean to be "objective" in a report?
4. Write a good title for a report about an accident you saw.
5. What information should be in the conclusion?

Assignment:

Using the brainstormed points from the lesson (or your own ideas), write a full, formal report on the topic: A Report on an Accident I Witnessed.

- (Your report will be marked based on:

1. Correct format (Title, Intro, Body, Conclusion, Name).
2. Chronological order.
3. Factual and objective language.
4. Correct GRAMMAR and spelling.)

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: THEMES AND CHARACTERIZATION IN THE RECOMMENDED PROSE TEXT

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "theme."
2. Define "characterization."
3. Identify a major theme in the recommended prose text.
4. Identify the protagonist and antagonist in the text.
5. Analyze a character's personality based on their actions and speech in the text.

1. What is Theme? The theme is the central idea, moral, or lesson of the story. It's the "message" the author wants to send. A theme is not one word (like "love"); it's a full idea (e.g., "Love can conquer hate" or "Greed leads to destruction").

- Common themes in literature:
 - Good vs. Evil
 - Courage
 - The dangers of greed
 - The importance of family
 - Tradition vs. Change

2. What is Characterization? Characterization is the way an author shows the personality of a character. An author can do this through:

- Speech: What the character says.
- Actions: What the character does.
- Thoughts: What the character thinks (if we are told).

- Appearance: How the character looks.
- Others' Reactions: How other characters treat them or what they say about them.

3. Types of Characters:

- Protagonist: The main character ("hero") who the story focuses on.
- Antagonist: The character or force that opposes the protagonist ("villain").
- Major Characters: The most important characters.
- Minor Characters: Less important characters.

4. Analysis of Our Prose Text:

- Class Discussion:
 - Theme: What big ideas or lessons have we seen so far in our book? (e.g., Is the author saying something about poverty? About honesty? About courage?) Let's find one main theme.
 - Protagonist: Who is our main character?
 - Antagonist: Who (or what) is the main villain or force working against them?
 - Characterization: Let's analyze the protagonist.
 - What is one thing they did that shows their personality?
 - What is one thing they said that shows their personality?
 - Based on this, what kind of person are they? (Brave? Cowardly? Kind? Selfish?)

Evaluation: (All questions refer to the recommended prose text)

1. What is a "theme" in literature?
2. What is "characterization"?
3. Who is the protagonist of our novel?
4. Who is the main antagonist (or what is the main opposing force)?
5. State one theme (main idea or lesson) we have seen in our novel.

Assignment: (All questions refer to the recommended prose text)

1. Describe the protagonist's personality in 2-3 sentences.
2. Describe the antagonist's personality in 2-3 sentences.
3. Find one action the protagonist took and explain what it tells us about them.
4. Find one line of dialogue (something the protagonist said) and explain what it tells us about them.
5. Do you like the protagonist? Why or why not? (Explain your answer using examples from the book).

WEEK 3

SPEECH WORK: STRESS AND INTONATION

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define sentence stress (or emphasis).
2. Demonstrate how changing the stress on a word can change the meaning of a sentence.
3. Use correct intonation (rising/falling) combined with stress to ask questions, make statements, and give commands.
4. Identify the "content words" (nouns, verbs, adjectives) that are usually stressed.

1. What is Stress? In a sentence, we don't say every word with the same force. Stress (or emphasis) is making one word sound louder, longer, and higher in pitch than the other words.

- Content Words (Nouns, Main Verbs, Adjectives, Adverbs) are usually STRESSED. (e.g., cat, eat, big, quickly)
- Function Words (Prepositions, Articles, Conjunctions) are usually unstressed. (e.g., on, the, and)

2. How Stress Changes Meaning (Emphatic Stress): The meaning of a sentence can change completely depending on which word you stress. Let's use the sentence: "Bisi ate my rice yesterday."

1. BISI ate my rice yesterday.

- Meaning: Bisi did it, not Tunde or Ayo. (Emphasizes who)

2. Bisi ATE my rice yesterday.

- Meaning: She ate it; she didn't just look at it or throw it away. (Emphasizes the action)

3. Bisi ate MY rice yesterday.

- Meaning: She ate my rice, not your rice. (Emphasizes whose)

4. Bisi ate my RICE yesterday.

- Meaning: She ate the rice, not the beans. (Emphasizes what)

5. Bisi ate my rice YESTERDAY.

- Meaning: She ate it yesterday, not today. (Emphasizes when)

3. Combining Stress and Intonation:

- Statement (Falling Tone):

- BISI ate my rice yester↘day. (Telling someone a fact).

- Question (Rising Tone):

- Did BISI eat my rice yester↗day? (Asking if it was Bisi and not someone else).

- Command (Falling Tone):

- GO to your ↘seat. (Stressing the action).

Evaluation

1. What is sentence stress?
2. Which types of words (content or function) are usually stressed?
3. Say this sentence to mean "not your book": "I took his book."
4. Say this sentence to mean "I did it, not someone else": "I took his book."
5. What is the meaning of this sentence: "The principal wants the JSS2 students"? (e.g., not the JSS1 students).

Assignment

1. Write the definition of "emphatic stress."
2. Write the sentence "Tolu is driving a new car" four times.

3. In the first copy, underline the word you would stress to mean "not Tunde."
4. In the second copy, underline the word you would stress to mean "not an old car."
5. In the third copy, underline the word you would stress to mean "a car, not a bus."

(Note: The fourth copy is just for practice).

GRAMMAR: REGULAR AND IRREGULAR VERBS

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a verb.
2. Define "tense" (present, past, past participle).
3. Differentiate between a regular verb and an irregular verb.
4. State the past tense and past participle forms of common regular verbs.
5. State the past tense and past participle forms of common irregular verbs.

1. What is a Verb? A verb is an action word (e.g., run, eat, think) or a state of being (e.g., is, am, are, seem). Verbs change their form to show tense (when the action happens). The three main forms are:

- Base Form (Present): The basic verb (e.g., walk, go)
- Past Tense: The action happened in the past (e.g., walked, went)
- Past Participle: The form used with 'has,' 'have,' or 'had' (e.g., have walked, have gone)

2. Regular Verbs: These are "predictable" verbs. They form their past tense and past participle by adding -d or -ed. The past tense and past participle are identical.

Base Form (Present)	Past Tense	Past Participle
---------------------	------------	-----------------

walk	walk ed	walk ed
------	----------------	----------------

ask	ask ed	ask ed
-----	---------------	---------------

play	play ed	play ed
------	----------------	----------------

love	lov ed	lov ed
------	---------------	---------------

dance	danc ed	danc ed
-------	----------------	----------------

3. Irregular Verbs: These are "unpredictable" verbs. They form their past tense and past participle in many different ways. They do not add -ed.

Base Form (Present)	Past Tense	Past Participle
---------------------	------------	-----------------

Group 1: All three forms are different go	went	gone

eat	ate	eaten
see	saw	seen

swim	swam	swum

Group 2: Past and Participle are the same

bring	brought	brought sleep	slept	slept
sit	sat	sat

Group 3: All three forms are the same cut	cut	cut

put	put	put
cost	cost	cost

hit

hit

hit

Evaluation:

1. What is the main difference between a regular and an irregular verb?
2. What is the past tense of the verb "walk"?
3. What is the past tense of the verb "go"?
4. What is the past participle of the verb "eat"?
5. Is the verb "play" regular or irregular?

Assignment: Complete the following table in your notebook.

Base Form (Present)	Past Tense	Past Participle	Regular or Irregular?
---------------------	------------	-----------------	-----------------------

1. cry

READING & COMPREHENSION: SKIMMING AND SCANNING TECHNIQUES

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "skimming."
2. State the purpose of skimming (to get the main idea).
3. Define "scanning."
4. State the purpose of scanning (to find specific information).
5. Apply skimming and scanning techniques to a given passage.

1. What is Skimming?

- Definition: Skimming is reading very quickly to get a general overview or the main idea of a text.
- Purpose: To find out what the text is about without reading every word.
- How to Skim:
 - Read the Title and any Headings.
 - Read the first paragraph completely.
 - Read the first sentence of all the other paragraphs.
 - Read the last paragraph completely.
 - Let your eyes float over the rest of the text, looking for key "content" words.

2. What is Scanning?

- Definition: Scanning is moving your eyes very quickly over a text to find a specific piece of information.

- Purpose: To find a name, a date, a number, or a specific word, without reading the rest of the text. You already know what you are looking for.
- How to Scan:
 - Keep the specific word or number (e.g., "1995") in your mind.
 - Move your eyes rapidly down the page (in a "Z" or "S" pattern).
 - Do not read sentences. Just look for the word.
 - When you find the word, stop and read the sentence around it.
- Examples: You scan a phone book for a name, a dictionary for a word, or a text for a date.

Skimming vs. Scanning:

- You skim an article to decide if you want to read it.
- You scan an article to find the year it was written.

Practice: (Teacher provides a short newspaper article)

1. Skim the article for 30 seconds. What is the main idea?
2. Scan the same article for the name of the person involved.

Evaluation:

1. What is the main purpose of skimming?
2. What is the main purpose of scanning?
3. If you want to find your name on a list, should you skim or scan?
4. If you want to know the main idea of a new chapter, should you skim or scan?
5. What parts of a passage should you read when skimming? (e.g., Title, first paragraph...)

Assignment (Teacher provides a new passage from the textbook or a newspaper clipping)

1. Skim the passage (for 1 minute) and write one sentence explaining the main idea.
2. Scan the passage to find the answer to this question: "What year is mentioned in the text?"
3. Scan the passage to find the answer to this question: "What is the name of the person/place...?"

COMPOSITION: INFORMAL LETTER

A Letter to a Friend about Your School Inter-House Sports

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Identify the features and format of an informal letter.
2. Differentiate the tone of an informal letter from a formal letter.
3. Brainstorm relevant content for the given topic.
4. Write a complete, well-structured informal letter.

1. What is an Informal Letter? An informal letter is a letter you write to someone you know well, like a friend, parent, or sibling. It is also called a "friendly" or "personal" letter.

2. Features (Format) of an Informal Letter:

1. Writer's Address: (Top right corner. No recipient's address).
2. Date: (Directly below the address).
3. Salutation: (Dear [First Name], e.g., Dear Kunle,).
4. Body: (This is the main letter. The language is casual, friendly, and conversational. You can use contractions like "I'm," "don't," and even slang).
5. Closing (Complimentary Close): (e.g., Your friend, Yours, See you soon,).
6. Your First Name: (e.g., Tunde).

3. Brainstorming: "My School Inter-House Sports"

- Introduction: Greet your friend, ask how they are, and tell them why you are writing (to tell them about your inter-house sports).
- Body (Paragraph 2): The preparation, the atmosphere, the colourful jerseys, the march-past. Which house are you in?

- Body (Paragraph 3): The main events. What did you participate in (e.g., 100m, high jump)? What were the most exciting races?
- Body (Paragraph 4): The results. Which house came first, second, and third? How did your house perform?
- Conclusion: Say you wish they were there. Ask them a question (e.g., "When is your own sports day?"). Say goodbye.

4. Formal vs. Informal Tone:

- Formal: "I am writing to inform you..."
- Informal: "Guess what? I'm writing to tell you about..."

Evaluation:

1. What is the main difference in the address section of a formal vs. informal letter?
2. What is the correct salutation for a letter to your friend, Tobi?
3. What is a correct complimentary close for an informal letter?
4. Should you use contractions (like "it's") in an informal letter?
5. List three things you would write about in a letter about your sports day.

Assignment: Write a complete informal letter to your friend in another school, telling him or her all about your last Inter-House Sports Day.

- (Your letter will be marked on:
 1. Correct format.
 2. Friendly and casual tone.
 3. Interesting details about the sports day.
 4. Good paragraphing.

5. Correct GRAMMAR and spelling.)

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: INTRODUCTION TO THE RECOMMENDED TEXT ON DRAMA

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "drama."
2. Differentiate drama from prose.
3. Identify the key elements of drama (dialogue, stage directions, acts, scenes).
4. Identify the title, playwright, and main characters of the recommended drama text.
5. Read a section of the play aloud and discuss the plot.

Teacher's Note: This lesson must be taught using the class's recommended drama text.

What is Drama?

A drama (or a play) is a story that is written to be performed by actors on a stage.

- The main difference from prose (novels) is that a play is told almost entirely through what the characters say (dialogue) and do (action), not through a narrator telling the story.

Key Elements of Drama:

Playwright: The author of a play.

Dialogue: The words the characters speak to each other. This is the main part of the play.

- Example: BISI: Where are you going?

Stage Directions: Notes from the playwright (often in brackets or italics) that tell actors how to move, speak, or what the stage looks like.

- Example: [Bisi enters from the left, looking angry].

Acts: The major divisions of a play, like chapters in a book (e.g., Act 1, Act 2).

Scenes: The smaller divisions within an Act. The setting or characters usually change at the start of a new scene.

Introduction to the Recommended Text:

Title: (State the title of the play)

Playwright: (State the name of the playwright)

Dramatis Personae: (The list of characters at the beginning of the play).

Class Reading and Analysis (Act 1, Scene 1):

- Assign roles (characters) to different students.
- Read the first scene of the play aloud as a class.

Discussion:

- Characters: Who are the main characters we have met?
- Setting: Where and when is this scene taking place?
- Plot: What is the main thing that happened in this scene? What conflict or problem has been introduced?
- Stage Directions: What did we learn from the stage directions (e.g., about a character's mood or the setting)?

Evaluation: (All questions refer to the recommended drama text)

1. What is a "playwright"?
2. What is "dialogue"?
3. What is the purpose of "stage directions"?

4. What is the full title of our recommended play?
5. Based on the scene we read, what is the main conflict (problem) at the start of the play?

Assignment: (All questions refer to the recommended drama text)

1. From the "Dramatis Personae," list three main characters.
2. Write a one-paragraph summary of the plot of Act 1, Scene 1 (the scene we read in class).
3. Find one example of a stage direction from the scene.
4. Find one line of dialogue that you think is important.
5. From what you have read, what do you think of the protagonist (main character)?

WEEK 4

SPEECH WORK: STRESS – IDENTIFYING CORRECT POINTS OF PAUSES IN WORDS (WORD-CLASS STRESS)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define word stress.
2. Define word-class (e.g., noun, verb).
3. State the general rule for stressing two-syllable words that function as both nouns and verbs.
4. Correctly pronounce words like 'import' (noun) and 'import' (verb) with the correct stress.
5. Use these words correctly in sentences, showing their different pronunciations.

1. What is Word Stress? In words with more than one syllable, one syllable is pronounced more strongly (louder, longer, higher pitch) than the others. This is the stressed syllable.

- Example: In the word "FAther," the stress is on the first syllable.
- Example: In the word "beHIND," the stress is on the second syllable.

2. The Noun/Verb Stress Rule: There is a large group of two-syllable words in English that can be either a Noun or a Verb. The stress changes to show the word-class.

- Rule for NOUNS: Stress is on the FIRST syllable. (X-x)
- Rule for VERBS: Stress is on the SECOND syllable. (x-X)

Word	Stressed as a NOUN (First Syllable)	Stressed as a VERB (Second Syllable)
import	“We buy many IM ports from China.” (The goods themselves)	“Nigeria will im PORT rice.” (The action of buying) record	“The principal has your RE cord.” (The file or document)	“Please re COR D my voice.” (The action of capturing sound) present	“I gave her a PRE sent.” (The gift)	“We will pre SENT our work tomorrow.” (The action of showing) export	“Cocoa is a major EX port.” (The goods sold)	“Nigeria ex PORTS cocoa.” (The action of selling) object	“What is that strange OB ject?” (The thing or item)	“I ob JEC T to your idea!” (The action of disagreeing) conduct	“His CON duct was excellent.” (The person’s behaviour)	“She will con DUCT the choir.” (The action of leading) rebel	“He is a RE bel against the king.” (The person who fights)	“They re BEL against the king.” (The action of fighting) insult	“That was a terrible IN sult.” (The offensive word or act)	“Do not in SULT your elders.” (The action of offending) subject	“English is my favourite SUB ject.” (The topic of study)	“They will sub JEC T him to a test.” (The action of forcing) increase	“There is an IN crease in price.” (The growth)	“The price will in CREASE tomorrow.” (The action of growing)

Evaluation

1. What is the general stress rule for a two-syllable word that is a NOUN?
2. What is the general stress rule for a two-syllable word that is a VERB?
3. Pronounce the word "present" as a noun (a gift).
4. Pronounce the word "present" as a verb (to give a speech).
5. In the sentence "I want to record a song," where is the stress on "record"?

Assignment

1. Write the noun/verb stress rule in your own words.
2. Choose two words from the lesson (e.g., 'object', 'insult').
3. For each word, write two sentences:
 - (a) One sentence using the word as a noun (with first-syllable stress).
 - (b) One sentence using the word as a verb (with second-syllable stress).
4. In your sentences from #3, mark the stressed syllable (e.g., OBject / obJECT).
5. Is the word 'conduct' a noun or a verb in this sentence: "Your conduct is poor."?

GRAMMAR: REPORTED COMMANDS AND DIALOGUE

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define an imperative (a command or request).
2. Convert a direct positive command into a reported command using to + infinitive.
3. Convert a direct negative command into a reported command using not to + infinitive.
4. Convert a direct request into a reported request, using appropriate reporting verbs (e.g., 'asked', 'begged').
5. Convert a short, two-line dialogue into reported (indirect) speech.

This lesson builds on Week 1's "Reported Statements." Commands and dialogues follow different rules.

1. Reporting Commands (Positive): A direct command is a "do" instruction (e.g., "Go away," "Sit down").

- Rule: We do not use 'that'. We use a reporting verb (like told, ordered, commanded) + object + to + the base form of the verb (the infinitive).
- Direct: The teacher said, "Be quiet."
- Indirect: The teacher told us to be quiet.
- Direct: The general shouted, "Attack!"
- Indirect: The general ordered the soldiers to attack.

2. Reporting Commands (Negative): A negative command is a "don't" instruction (e.g., "Don't talk").

- Rule: We use the reporting verb + object + not to + the base form of the verb.
- Direct: The mother said, "Don't go out."

- Indirect: The mother warned her son not to go out.
- Direct: "Don't write on the wall," he said to me.
- Indirect: He told me not to write on the wall.

3. Reporting Requests: A request uses "Please" (e.g., "Please help me").

- Rule: We use a "softer" reporting verb (like asked, begged, requested) + object + to + the base form. The word "please" is removed.
- Direct: She said, "Please wait for me."
- Indirect: She asked me to wait for her.
- Direct: "Please, please give me some food," the beggar said.
- Indirect: The beggar begged the man to give him some food.

4. Reporting Dialogue: A dialogue is a conversation between two or more people. To report it, you must report each line, one after the other, using the correct rules for statements, questions, or commands. You must use reporting verbs like 'said,' 'replied,' 'asked,' 'answered,' 'added,' etc., to make it flow.

- Direct Dialogue:
 - Ayo: "What are you doing here, Bisi?"
 - Bisi: "I am waiting for my mother. She will be here soon."
 - Ayo: "Please give this book to her."
- Indirect (Reported) Dialogue:
 - Ayo asked Bisi what she was doing there. Bisi replied that she was waiting for her mother and added that she would be there soon. Ayo then asked Bisi to give that book to her.

Evaluation:

1. What "infinitive" word do we use to report a positive command (e.g., "Sit")?
2. What two words do we use to report a negative command (e.g., "Don't sit")?
3. What word is always removed when we report a request (e.g., "Please sit")?
4. Change to reported speech: The teacher said, "Open your books."
5. Change to reported speech: The prefect said, "Don't make noise."

Assignment: Convert the following from Direct to Indirect (Reported) Speech.

1. The principal said to the boy, "Go to my office at once."
2. "Don't touch that hot wire," the man warned us.
3. My friend said, "Please lend me your bicycle for an hour."
4. The doctor said, "You must not eat sugary food." (Hint: The doctor told me...)
5. Dialogue:
 - Father: "Did you finish your homework?"
 - Son: "No, I will do it tomorrow."

COMPOSITION: FORMAL LETTER

To the Local Government Chairman about a Flood Menace in Your Area

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Recall the complete format (8 features) of a formal letter.
2. Understand the purpose of a letter of complaint/request to a government official.
3. Use a formal, respectful, persuasive, and non-aggressive tone.
4. Brainstorm and organize specific points (causes, effects, requests) for the given topic.
5. Draft a complete, effective, and well-structured formal letter.

1. Review of Formal Letter Format:

1. Writer's Address (Your address, top right)
2. Date (Below your address)
3. Recipient's Address (The Chairman's office, top left)
4. Salutation (Dear Sir,)
5. Title (e.g., A REQUEST TO ADDRESS THE FLOOD MENACE...)
6. Body (The paragraphs)
7. Complimentary Close (Yours faithfully,)
8. Signature and Full Name.

2. Key Focus: Tone and Content for a Complaint Letter

- Tone: The tone must be very formal, serious, and respectful. Even though you are complaining, you must not be rude, abusive, or aggressive. You must be persuasive, not insulting.

- Bad Tone: "Your lazy workers have done nothing, and our lives are ruined!"
- Good Tone: "We are writing to humbly draw your attention to a serious problem..."
- Content: Your letter must be clear and logical.
 1. State the problem.
 2. Explain the cause.
 3. Describe the negative effects.
 4. State your specific request.

3. Brainstorming: "Flood Menace in Your Area"

- Writer's Address:
 - No. 15, Bode Thomas Street,
 - Surulere,
 - Lagos.
 - 29th October, 2025.
- Recipient's Address:
 - The Chairman,
 - Surulere Local Government Area,
 - Lagos State.
- Salutation: Dear Sir,

Title: A REQUEST TO CLEAR THE BLOCKED DRAINAGES AND ADDRESS THE PERSISTENT FLOOD MENACE ON BODE THOMAS STREET

- Body (Paragraph 1 - Introduction): State who you are and clearly state the problem.
 - "On behalf of the residents of Bode Thomas Street, I am writing to humbly draw your attention to the severe and persistent flood menace that affects our area whenever it rains."
- Body (Paragraph 2 - The Cause): Explain why it is happening.
 - "This flooding is primarily caused by the main drainages on our street, which have been completely blocked with silt, plastic waste, and refuse for over a year. As a result, there is no channel for rainwater to flow through."
- Body (Paragraph 3 - The Effects): Explain the impact this has on residents. This is the persuasive part.
 - "Whenever there is a heavy downpour, our street becomes impassable. Dirty water flows into residents' homes, destroying property, furniture, and valuable documents. Furthermore, children cannot go to school, and businesses are forced to close. This stagnant water is also a breeding ground for mosquitoes and bacteria, and we fear an outbreak of diseases like cholera."
- Body (Paragraph 4 - The Request): Clearly state what you want the Chairman to do.
 - "We, therefore, humbly request that the Local Government authorities intervene by sending a team to clear and de-silt the blocked drainages before the next heavy rain. We also appeal for the provision of public waste bins to discourage improper refuse disposal."
- Conclusion (Paragraph 5): A final, respectful closing.
 - "We are law-abiding citizens who pay our taxes, and we believe a solution to this problem is long overdue. We look forward to your prompt and positive action."
- Closing:
 - Yours faithfully,
 - (Signature)

- Adewale, Kunle
- (On behalf of the residents)

Evaluation:

1. How many addresses must a formal letter have?
2. What is the correct salutation to use when writing to "The Chairman"?
3. What is the correct complimentary close for that salutation?
4. Why must you avoid an angry or rude tone in a letter of complaint?
5. What are the three main things to include in the body of this letter? (e.g., Cause, Effects, Request).

Assignment: Write a complete and formal letter to the Chairman of your Local Government Area, complaining about the flood menace in your area. Use the format and ideas discussed in class. (You may invent your street name and the name of your Local Government if you wish).

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: USE THE RECOMMENDED DRAMA TEXT

(Language, Setting, and Characterization)

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "Setting" in drama and explain how it is established.
2. Define "Language" in drama and explain how it can reveal character.
3. Define "Characterization" in drama and explain how it differs from prose.
4. Analyze the specific setting of the recommended play and its effect on the plot.
5. Analyze a main character using their language and actions as evidence.

1. Setting in Drama:

- Definition: The "Setting" is the Time (When? e.g., 1960, modern-day) and Place (Where? e.g., a king's palace, a poor village) of the play.
- How it's established: In a play, the setting is not described by a narrator. It is established through:
 1. Stage Directions: At the beginning of an Act or Scene, the playwright writes a detailed description of the room or location. (e.g., [A sparsely furnished room. A single wooden chair and a mat on the floor. It is night.])
 2. Dialogue: Characters' speech can tell us the time or place (e.g., "The king will be here soon," "This city is too expensive," "I remember before the war...").
- Analysis: The setting is not just a background; it affects the story.
 - Class Discussion: "In our play, [Title of Play], where is the action set? (e.g., a palace, a village). How does this place affect the problems the characters face? How would the story be different if it were set in a modern city?"

2. Language in Drama:

- Definition: "Language" refers to the style of speaking, or diction, used by the characters.
- Analysis: Language is a primary tool for characterization. We must ask:
 - Is the language formal or informal? (e.g., Does the King speak in complex sentences, while the servant uses simple words or slang?)
 - Does the language show the character's education or social class?
 - Does the character use proverbs and idioms? (This might show they are traditional or wise).
 - Does the character speak in verse (poetry) or prose (normal sentences)? (e.g., In Shakespeare, nobles speak in verse, commoners in prose).
- Class Discussion: "Think about [Main Character] and [Minor Character] in our play. Do they speak the same way? What is the difference? What does [Main Character's] way of speaking tell us about their personality (e.g., are they educated, humble, arrogant)?"

3. Characterization in Drama:

- Definition: (Review) The method the playwright uses to reveal a character's personality.
- How it differs from Prose: In a novel (prose), the author can simply tell us what a character is thinking ("Tunde was secretly angry..."). In a play (drama), we cannot hear the character's private thoughts (unless they have a soliloquy—a speech given alone on stage).
- Analysis: Therefore, in drama, we must rely only on external evidence:
 1. Dialogue: What the character says.
 2. Action: What the character does (as written in the stage directions, e.g., [He slams his fist on the table]).
 3. What other characters say about them.

- Class Activity: "Let's analyze [Antagonist]. Find one line of dialogue they say that shows their evil/greedy/selfish nature. Now find one stage direction that describes an action they take. What do these two things together tell us about them?"

Evaluation: (All questions refer to the recommended drama text)

1. What is "Setting" in drama, and what are the two main ways we (the audience) learn about it?
2. What is one way a character's "Language" (style of speaking) can tell us about their personality?
3. What is the main way "characterization" in a play is different from in a novel?
4. Describe the main setting of our play, [Title of Play].
5. What does the language of [Main Character] tell us about them? (Are they educated, formal, informal, etc.?)

Assignment: (All questions refer to the recommended drama text)

1. Write a one-paragraph description of the main setting of the play.
2. Explain how this setting affects the plot or the problems the characters face.
3. Choose one character (not the protagonist). Find one line of dialogue they speak and one stage direction about them.
4. Write down the quote and the stage direction.
5. Based on your answers to #4, write a short paragraph describing that character's personality.

WEEK 6

SPEECH WORK: RHYTHM – IDENTIFICATION OF APPROPRIATE RHYTHM IN A GIVEN POEM

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "rhythm" in poetry.
2. Define "syllable" and "stress."
3. Identify the stressed and unstressed syllables in simple words and a line of poetry.
4. Read a simple poem aloud, applying the correct rhythm.
5. Explain how rhythm contributes to the "music" of a poem.

What is Rhythm? Rhythm is the "beat" or "music" of a poem. It is a pattern of sound created by the arrangement of stressed (strong, emphasized) and unstressed (weak, unemphasized) syllables in a line of poetry. Just like in a song, this pattern creates a regular, musical quality when the poem is read aloud.

Syllables and Stress:

- A syllable is a single, unbroken sound of a spoken word. For example, "wa-ter" has two syllables. "Cat" has one syllable. "Beau-ti-ful" has three syllables.
- Stress is the emphasis we place on a particular syllable when we speak.
 - Example: In the word "F^{ather}," the first syllable (FA) is stressed, and the second (ther) is unstressed.
 - Example: In the word "be^{LIEVE}," the first syllable (be) is unstressed, and the second (LIEVE) is stressed.

Finding the Rhythm in a Poem: Rhythm is created by repeating a pattern of stressed and unstressed syllables. Let's mark the stressed syllables (/) and unstressed syllables (-).

- Nursery Rhyme Example: Twink-le, Twink-le, litt-le star (/ - / / - / / - / /) This line has a clear DA-da DA-da DA-da DA pattern.
- Poetry Example: (from "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner") The Bride-groom hath paced in-to the hall (- / / - / - / - /) -> This is more complex.
- Let's use a simpler, more regular one: (from "I Wandered Lonely as a Cloud") I wan-dered lone-ly as a cloud (- / - / - / - /) This has a very regular "da-DA da-DA da-DA da-DA" beat. This specific pattern is called iambic meter.

Class Activity: Read the following lines aloud and tap your desk for the stressed syllables:

1. Baa, baa, black sheep
2. Have you an-y wool?
3. Hump-ty Dump-ty sat on a wall.

By identifying the beat, we find the rhythm. The poet chooses a rhythm to make the poem flow, to make it memorable, and to match the mood of the poem (e.g., a fast, bouncy rhythm for a happy poem; a slow, heavy rhythm for a sad poem).

Evaluation:

1. What is rhythm in poetry?
2. What is the difference between a stressed and an unstressed syllable?
3. How many syllables are in the word "banana"?
4. Where is the stress in the word "banana"? (ba-NA-na).
5. Read this line aloud with its correct rhythm: "The boy and girl went up the hill."

Assignment

1. Define rhythm in your own words.

2. Define "stress" and "syllable."
3. For each word, write how many syllables it has and mark the stressed syllable: (a) teacher
(b) amazing (c) computer.
4. Write down the first two lines of your favourite nursery rhyme or simple poem.
5. Mark the stressed (/) and unstressed (-) syllables on the lines you wrote.

GRAMMAR: REPORTED REQUESTS

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define a "request" and differentiate it from a "command."
2. Identify the polite words used in direct requests (e.g., "please," "could you").
3. Identify the reporting verbs used for requests (e.g., "asked," "requested," "begged").
4. Convert direct requests into reported requests using the to-infinitive.
5. Convert negative direct requests into reported requests using not to-infinitive.

This lesson builds on our work with reported speech. While a command is a direct order (e.g., "Sit down!"), a request is a polite way of asking someone to do something.

1. Identifying Direct Requests: Direct requests are marked by polite words and phrases:

- "Please help me."
- "Could you pass the salt, please?"
- "Will you be quiet?"
- "Would you mind closing the door?"

2. Reporting Verbs for Requests: When reporting a request, we don't usually use "said" or "ordered." We use "softer" verbs that show politeness:

- asked (most common)
- requested
- begged (for a very strong, desperate request)
- implored (a formal way of "begged")

3. The Rule for Reporting Requests: The rule is very similar to reported commands.

1. The polite word ("please," "could you") is removed.

2. The reporting verb (e.g., asked) is followed by the person spoken to (the object).
 3. The main verb is changed to its to-infinitive form (to + verb).
- Structure: Reporting Verb + Object + to + Base Verb

Examples (Positive Requests):

- Direct: She said, "Please help me."
- Indirect: She asked me to help her.
- Direct: The boy said, "Could you lend me your pen, please?"
- Indirect: The boy requested that I lend him my pen.
 - OR (simpler): The boy asked me to lend him his pen.
- Direct: "I beg you, give me some food," the beggar said.
- Indirect: The beggar begged the man to give him some food.

4. Reporting Negative Requests:

- Structure: Reporting Verb + Object + not to + Base Verb
- Direct: The teacher said, "Please don't make noise."
- Indirect: The teacher asked us not to make noise.
- Direct: "Please, please don't go," she said to him.
- Indirect: She begged him not to go.

Evaluation:

1. What is the main difference between a command and a request?
2. What common word is always removed when we report a request?
3. Which reporting verb would you use for a desperate request like, "Please, please, I'm begging you"?

4. Change to reported speech: The man said, "Please open the door."
5. Change to reported speech: My friend said, "Please don't forget my book."

Assignment: Convert the following direct requests into reported (indirect) speech.

1. The student said, "Please may I go out?" (Hint: The student asked to...)
2. My mother said, "Could you wash the plates, please?"
3. The passenger said to the driver, "Please stop here."
4. "I beg you, don't punish me," the boy said to the teacher.
5. The prefect said, "Will you all stop talking, please?"

READING & COMPREHENSION: DISTINGUISHING FACTS AND OPINIONS IN PASSAGES

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "fact" with 100% accuracy.
2. Define "opinion" with 100% accuracy.
3. Identify signal words used to express opinions (e.g., "I think," "best").
4. Identify characteristics of a factual statement (e.g., numbers, dates, verifiable).
5. Read a passage and extract at least one fact and one opinion.

What is a Fact? A fact is a statement that can be proven true or false. It is objective and exists in reality. You can verify a fact using evidence, such as data, measurements, or historical records.

- Examples:
 - "Nigeria is a country in West Africa." (This can be proven true with a map).
 - "Water boils at 100 degrees Celsius at sea level." (This can be proven with an experiment).
 - "The match ended 2-0." (This can be verified from records).

What is an Opinion? An opinion is a statement that expresses a belief, feeling, judgment, or value. It is subjective and cannot be proven true or false. It is what someone thinks or feels.

- Examples:
 - "Nigeria is the best country in the world." (This is a belief; "best" is subjective).
 - "Water tastes boring." (This is a feeling).
 - "The match was very exciting." (This is a judgment; "exciting" is subjective).

Identifying Facts vs. Opinions:

Feature	Fact	Opinion
Is it...	Objective (external)	Subjective (internal)
Can it be...	Proven or disproven	Argued, but not proven
Signal Words	Numbers, dates, statistics, scientific data	I think..., I believe..., I feel...
Adjectives		best, worst, beautiful, ugly, boring, wonderful
Example	"The school has 500 students."	"The school is the best in Lagos."

Class Activity (Practice Passage): (Teacher provides a short passage) "The 2022 World Cup was held in Qatar. (Fact) A total of 32 teams competed in the tournament. (Fact) Argentina won the final match, which was the most exciting football match ever played. (Opinion) Lionel Messi, who scored two goals, is the greatest football player of all time. (Opinion) In my opinion, everyone should watch football." (Opinion)

- Fact 1: The 2022 World Cup was held in Qatar.
- Opinion 1: It was the most exciting football match ever played.

Evaluation:

1. What is a fact?
2. What is an opinion?
3. "I have three brothers." Is this a fact or an opinion?
4. "Chocolate is the best flavour of ice cream." Is this a fact or an opinion?
5. What is a signal word that often introduces an opinion? (e.g., "I think...").

Assignment: (Teacher provides a new, short passage from a newspaper or textbook).

1. Read the passage carefully.
2. Write down one sentence from the passage that is a fact.
3. Explain why it is a fact (e.g., "It can be proven...").
4. Write down one sentence from the passage that is an opinion.
5. Explain why it is an opinion (e.g., "It shows a feeling..." or "It uses the subjective word '...'").

COMPOSITION: ARGUMENTATIVE ESSAY

Herbal Medicines are More Potent than Orthodox Medicines

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define an argumentative (persuasive) essay.
2. State the purpose of an argumentative essay (to persuade the reader).
3. Clearly state a "thesis" or position on the given topic.
4. Brainstorm at least two points "for" and two points "against" the topic.
5. Write a well-structured introductory paragraph for the essay.

What is an Argumentative Essay? An argumentative essay (also called a persuasive essay) is a piece of writing where you take a clear stance (position) on a debatable topic. Your goal is to convince or persuade the reader to agree with your point of view, using logic, facts, and examples.

The Topic: "Herbal medicines are more potent (stronger/more effective) than orthodox (hospital/pharmaceutical) medicines."

Taking a Stance (Your Thesis): You cannot "sit on the fence." You must choose one side.

- Stance 1 (FOR): "I agree. Herbal medicines are more potent and better than orthodox medicines."
- Stance 2 (AGAINST): "I disagree. Orthodox medicines are safer, more reliable, and more potent than herbal medicines."

Brainstorming Points: A good essay considers both sides.

- Points FOR Herbal Medicine (Stance 1):

- They are "natural" and come from plants, not chemicals.
- They often have fewer side effects.
- They are cheaper and more easily available.
- They have been used for thousands of years (traditional wisdom).
- Points AGAINST Herbal Medicine (for Stance 2):
 - The dosage is not standardized (you can "overdose").
 - They are not scientifically tested for safety and effectiveness.
 - They can be toxic or contaminated (e.g., with heavy metals).
 - They cannot perform complex tasks like surgery or treat all diseases (e.g., cancer, diabetes).

Structure of an Argumentative Essay:

- Paragraph 1: Introduction
 - Hook: Get the reader's attention (e.g., "For centuries, people have debated the best way to cure sickness...").
 - Background: Briefly introduce the two types of medicine.
 - Thesis Statement: State your position clearly and boldly. (e.g., "While herbal medicines have their place, it is clear that orthodox medicines are far more potent, reliable, and essential for modern healthcare.")
- Paragraphs 2, 3, 4: Body
 - Each paragraph should present one reason (one of your brainstormed points) that supports your thesis.
 - Use the "PEE" structure: Point (your reason), Example (a fact or scenario), Explanation (how this proves your point).

- Paragraph 5: Conclusion

- Restate your thesis (in new words).
- Summarize your main points.
- End with a strong, final, persuasive thought.

Evaluation:

1. What is the main purpose of an argumentative essay?
2. What is a "thesis statement"?
3. State the topic for this essay in your own words.
4. List one point FOR the topic (in support of herbal medicine).
5. List one point AGAINST the topic (in support of orthodox medicine).

Assignment

Define an argumentative essay.

1. Choose your stance: Are you FOR or AGAINST the topic?
2. Write a clear, one-sentence thesis statement for your position.
3. List two main points you will use to support your thesis.
4. Write the complete introductory paragraph (3-5 sentences) for your essay, making sure it has a hook and your thesis statement.

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: IDENTIFICATION OF FIGURES OF SPEECH IN THE RECOMMENDED PROSE TEXT

Performance Objectives: By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define "figure of speech."
2. Define and differentiate between Simile and Metaphor.
3. Define Personification.
4. Define Hyperbole.
5. Identify at least one example of these figures of speech from the recommended prose text.

Teacher's Note: This lesson must be taught using the class's recommended prose text. The teacher must find examples in the book beforehand.

1. What are Figures of Speech? Figures of speech (or "literary devices") are words and phrases used in a non-literal way to make writing more vivid, descriptive, and powerful. They paint a "picture" in the reader's mind.

2. Key Figures of Speech to Find:

- A. Simile:
 - Definition: A comparison between two different things, using the words 'like' or 'as'.
 - Generic Example: "He is as fast as a cheetah." "Her smile was like the sun."
 - Text Example: (Teacher: "Let's open our book, [Prose Text Title], to page [X]. The author writes, 'The man's eyes were like fire.' This is a simile.")
- B. Metaphor:
 - Definition: A direct comparison, saying one thing is another. It does not use 'like' or 'as'.
 - Generic Example: "He is a cheetah on the field." "Her smile is the sun."

- Text Example: (Teacher: "On page [Y], the author describes the angry chief. He says, 'The chief was a roaring lion.' This is a metaphor.")

- C. Personification:

- Definition: Giving human qualities, actions, or feelings to non-human or inanimate objects (e.g., animals, trees, the wind).
- Generic Example: "The angry wind screamed outside." "The trees danced in the breeze."
- Text Example: (Teacher: "Look at this description of the storm on page [Z]: 'The thirsty ground drank the rain.' The ground isn't 'thirsty' and it can't 'drink'. This is personification.")

- D. Hyperbole:

- Definition: A great exaggeration used for emphasis or humour. It is not meant to be taken literally.
- Generic Example: "I'm so hungry I could eat a horse." "I've told you a million times."
- Text Example: (Teacher: "When the character was describing the rich man, he said, 'He has more money than the whole country.' This is a hyperbole.")

Class Activity: Students will scan a specific chapter of the recommended prose text, looking for any sentences that use "like" or "as" for comparison (Simile) or any strong, non-literal descriptions (Metaphors, Personification).

Evaluation:

1. What is a figure of speech?
2. What is the main difference between a simile and a metaphor?
3. What are the two key words used in a simile?

4. "The sun smiled at us." What figure of speech is this?
5. "I've been waiting for ages." What figure of speech is this?

Assignment: (All questions refer to the recommended prose text)

1. Define Simile and Metaphor in your own words.
2. Define Personification and Hyperbole in your own words.
3. From the recommended prose text, find and write down one complete sentence that is a Simile. (Underline the simile).
4. From the recommended prose text, find and write down one complete sentence that is a Metaphor. (Underline the metaphor).
5. From the recommended prose text, find and write down one example of Personification OR Hyperbole. (Underline it).

- "IMport" (the goods)
- "REcord" (the file)
- "PREsent" (the gift)

- Verb (Stress on 2nd syllable):

5. Correctly construct sentences using the appropriate tense and adverbial.

1. Review of Present Tenses:

- Present Simple Tense: Used for habits, routines, and permanent facts.
 - Example: "I eat rice." "He plays football." "The sun rises in the east."
- Present Continuous Tense (am/is/are + ...ing): Used for actions happening right now or temporary situations.
 - Example: "I am eating rice." "He is playing football."

2. What is an Adverbial? An adverbial is a word or a phrase that adds more information to a verb. It tells us how, where, when, or how often an action happens.

- Adverbials of Frequency: always, often, usually, sometimes, never, every day, on Mondays
- Adverbials of Time: now, right now, at the moment, today, tomorrow

3. The Rule: Matching Tense and Adverbial: Specific adverbials are "partners" with specific tenses.

5. Write the complete Scene 1 of the play, including stage directions and dialogue.

WEEK 9

SPEECH WORK: CONSONANT SOUNDS /s/ AND /z/

The consonant sounds /s/ and /z/ are both alveolar fricatives, meaning they are produced with the tongue close to the alveolar ridge (the hard bump just behind the upper front teeth) and the airflow is forced through a narrow passage, creating friction. However, they differ in voicing — /s/ is voiceless while /z/ is voiced.

1. HOW TO PRODUCE /s/ AND /z/

- Both sounds are produced by directing a steady stream of air through a narrow space between the tongue and the alveolar ridge.
- For /s/ (voiceless): the vocal cords do not vibrate. The sound is simply a hissing puff of air.
 - Example words: sip, sun, stone, bus, loose, peace, rice.
- For /z/ (voiced): the vocal cords vibrate, producing a buzzing sound.
 - Example words: zip, zoo, buzz, rise, peas, lose, these.
- To test the difference, place two fingers lightly on your throat as you pronounce the sounds. You will feel a vibration with /z/ but none with /s/.

2. THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN /s/ AND /z/

- The only difference between them is voicing — whether the vocal cords vibrate or not.
- /s/ is a voiceless alveolar fricative.
- /z/ is a voiced alveolar fricative.

3. MINIMAL PAIRS PRACTICE

Minimal pairs are words that differ by only one sound. Practice helps learners hear and pronounce the difference.

/s/ (Voiceless)	/z/ (Voiced)
-----------------	--------------

sip	zip
loose	lose
rice	rise
bus	buzz
peace	peas
this	these
price	Prize

Repeat each pair aloud, paying attention to the buzzing vibration for /z/.

4. THE PLURAL “S” ENDING RULE

The sound of ‘s’ at the end of words can be pronounced as /s/ or /z/ depending on the sound before it.

- Rule 1: If the final sound before the ‘s’ is voiceless (p, t, k, f), then the ‘s’ is pronounced as /s/.
 - Examples: cats, books, slips, cliffs.
- Rule 2: If the final sound before the ‘s’ is voiced (b, d, g, v, l, m, n, or any vowel), then the ‘s’ is pronounced as /z/.
 - Examples: dogs, boys, beds, fans, leaves.

EVALUATION

1. What is the main difference between /s/ and /z/?
2. Which sound is voiced — /s/ or /z/?
3. Pronounce these words: sip, zip, loose, lose. What do you notice?
4. How is the plural ‘s’ pronounced in cats and dogs?

5. Write two short sentences — one with loose and one with lose.

GRAMMAR: INTRODUCTION TO PUNCTUATION MARKS

1. MEANING OF PUNCTUATION

Punctuation marks are symbols used in writing to make the meaning of sentences clear and easy to read. They show pauses, stops, and emotions in written language.

They are like traffic signs in writing — helping the reader know when to stop, pause, or continue.

- Example (without punctuation): i saw a man on the road he was crying i asked him why he was sad.
- Example (with punctuation): I saw a man on the road. He was crying. I asked him, “Why are you sad?”

2. PURPOSES OF PUNCTUATION

- To separate ideas and make sentences easy to understand.
- To show where to stop or pause.
- To express the writer’s meaning clearly.

3. COMMON PUNCTUATION MARKS

- Full Stop (.)
- Comma (,)
- Question Mark (?)
- Exclamation Mark (!)
- Apostrophe (’)
- Quotation Marks (“ ”)
- Colon (:))
- Semi-colon (;)

4. USES OF SOME BASIC PUNCTUATION MARKS

- Full Stop (.) — Used at the end of a complete statement or command.
 - Example: I am a student. / Do your homework.
- Question Mark (?) — Used at the end of a direct question.
 - Example: What is your name? / Are you ready?
- Comma (,) — Used to show a short pause or to separate items in a list.
 - Example: I bought rice, beans, and yams.
 - Example: However, I was late.

EVALUATION

1. What is punctuation?
2. State two main purposes of punctuation.
3. List any four punctuation marks.

4. Write one sentence ending with a full stop.
5. Write one sentence ending with a question mark.

READING AND COMPREHENSION: READING TO SUMMARIZE A SELECTED PASSAGE

1. WHAT IS A SUMMARY?

A summary is a shortened version of a text that contains only its main ideas, written in your own words.

- It must be shorter than the original text.
- It must be objective — do not add personal opinions.
- It should include only the main points.

2. SUMMARY VS PARAPHRASE

- A paraphrase rewrites the same information in your own words but keeps all details.

3. STEPS IN WRITING A SUMMARY

1. Read and understand the passage carefully.
2. Identify the main idea of each paragraph.
3. Remove (delete) all minor details and repetitions.
4. Connect the key ideas logically.
5. Write the new paragraph briefly in your own words.

4. ILLUSTRATION:

WEEK 10

SPEECH WORK: CONSONANT SOUNDS /k/ AND /g/

Introduction:

In English pronunciation, /k/ and /g/ are two important consonant sounds. They are known as velar stops because the back of the tongue (the velum) is used to stop and then release air from the mouth. These sounds occur very often in English words and must be pronounced correctly to avoid confusion in meaning (for example, coat ≠ goat).

1. HOW THE SOUNDS ARE PRODUCED

(a) Place of Articulation: Velar

Both /k/ and /g/ are produced when the back of the tongue touches the soft palate (velum) at the back of the mouth.

(b) Manner of Articulation: Stop (Plosive)

Air from the lungs is completely blocked at the mouth, pressure builds up, and then it is released suddenly with a small puff of air.

2. THE DIFFERENCE: VOICING

Sound	Description	Example	Test for Vibration
/k/	Voiceless velar stop – the vocal cords do not vibrate	cat, cook, back, class	Place fingers on your throat — no vibration.
/g/	Voiced velar stop – the vocal cords vibrate	go, game, bag, gate	Place fingers on your throat — feel vibration.

To feel the difference:

Say “kaa kaa kaa” (no vibration), then “gaa gaa gaa” (vibration).

3. COMMON SPELLINGS

/k/ Sound:

- k → key, kite, king, back, lake
- c → cat, cup, cold (note: c sounds /k/ when not before e, i, y)
- ch → school, ache, chaos, chemistry
- q → quick (as /kw/)
- x → box (as /ks/)

/g/ Sound:

- g → go, get, girl, bag, goat
- gg → egg, luggage, suggest

4. MINIMAL PAIRS PRACTICE

Minimal pairs are pairs of words that differ only by one sound.

Say these pairs aloud. Feel the vibration for /g/:

/k/ (voiceless)	/g/ (voiced)
cap	gap
cup	gulp
coat	goat
back	bag
class	glass
pick	pig
cold	gold

curl	girl
------	------

Practice Drill:

Repeat after your teacher slowly:

- “The cat caught the goat.”
- “The cup is on the glass.”
- “The king gave the girl a cake.”

EVALUATION

1. What part of the mouth is used to make /k/ and /g/?
2. What is the difference between /k/ and /g/?
3. Which sound is found in “gulp”?
4. Which sound is found in “cup”?
5. In the word “chaos,” what letter represents the /k/ sound?

ASSIGNMENT

1. Describe how to produce the /k/ and /g/ sounds (mention “velar” and “stop”).
2. Write two minimal pairs that contrast /k/ and /g/.
3. Write two words where the /k/ sound is spelled with “c.”
4. Write one word where the /k/ sound is spelled with “ch.”
5. Write a sentence that uses both /k/ and /g/ (e.g., The goat kicked the cup).

GRAMMAR: PUNCTUATION MARKS – THE FULL STOP AND THE COMMA

Introduction:

Punctuation marks are signs that help to make writing clear and easy to understand. They show pauses, stops, and the relationship between ideas in sentences. In this lesson, we shall study two basic punctuation marks — the Full Stop (.) and the Comma (,).

1. THE FULL STOP (.)

Meaning:

The Full Stop (also called a period) shows the end of a complete thought or statement. It means “STOP.”

Rule 1: To End a Sentence

Use a full stop at the end of a declarative sentence (statement) or an imperative sentence (command).

- Declarative: I am a student.
- Imperative: Close the door.

Rule 2: In Abbreviations

Used in some short forms:

- Mr. – Mister
- Dr. – Doctor
- e.g. – for example
- i.e. – that is

2. THE COMMA (,)

Meaning:

The Comma is a light pause within a sentence. It helps to separate ideas, items, or phrases so that the reader can understand the meaning easily.

Rule 1: To Separate Items in a List

Use commas to separate three or more items.

- I bought rice, beans, yam, and plantain.

Rule 2: Before a Conjunction That Joins Two Sentences

Use a comma before a coordinating conjunction (FANBOYS: for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so).

- He went to the market, but the market was closed.
- Tunde is tall, and Bisi is short.

Rule 3: After Introductory Words or Phrases

- However, he was still late.
- When the rain started, we ran inside.

Rule 4: To Separate Names in Direct Address

- Ade, come here!
- Yes, mother, I will go.

Rule 5: To Set Off Extra Information (Parenthesis)

- My brother, who lives in Abuja, is coming home tomorrow.

EVALUATION

1. What is the main use of a Full Stop?
2. What is the main use of a Comma?
3. Add the correct punctuation: He is tall
4. Add the correct punctuation: I like rice beans and stew

5. Add the correct punctuation: When I got home I was tired

ASSIGNMENT

Punctuate these correctly:

1. What is your name
2. Stop talking
3. My favourite subjects are English Mathematics and Basic Science
4. She is very smart but she is very lazy
5. When I got to school the gate was locked

READING AND COMPREHENSION: READING TO IDENTIFY MAIN AND SUPPORTING IDEAS

Introduction:

Every paragraph you read has a main idea — the most important message the writer wants to communicate — and supporting ideas that explain or prove it. Understanding these helps you become a better reader and summarizer.

1. What is a Paragraph?

A paragraph is a group of sentences that discuss one central topic.

2. The Main Idea:

- The main idea tells what the whole paragraph is about.
- It may appear as the first sentence, middle sentence, or last sentence.
- The sentence that contains the main idea is called the topic sentence.

3. Supporting Ideas (or Details):

These are sentences that give reasons, explanations, examples, or evidence for the main idea.

4. Analogy:

The main idea is the tabletop; the supporting ideas are the legs that hold it up.

5. Example Paragraph:

(1) Exercise is essential for good health. (2) Firstly, it strengthens the heart, which helps to pump blood around the body. (3) It also builds strong muscles and bones. (4) Finally, regular exercise can reduce stress and make you feel happier.

- Main Idea / Topic Sentence: Sentence (1) — Exercise is essential for good health.
- Supporting Ideas: Sentences (2–4).

EVALUATION

1. What is a paragraph?

2. What is the main idea of a paragraph?
3. What is the purpose of supporting ideas?
4. What is a topic sentence?
5. Where is the topic sentence usually found?

ASSIGNMENT

Read this passage carefully and answer the questions:

“Clean water is important for healthy living. It prevents diseases such as cholera and typhoid. In many rural areas, people still drink from dirty streams. The government should provide boreholes to ensure that everyone has access to clean water.”

1. Write the main idea of the paragraph.
2. Write one supporting idea from the paragraph.
3. Where is the topic sentence located?
4. Why is clean water important?

WEEK 11

READING AND COMPREHENSION: A JOURNEY BY TRAIN

Introduction:

Travelling is an important aspect of human life. People travel from one place to another for different reasons such as business, education, visitation, tourism, or pleasure. Among the various means of transportation — road, air, sea, and rail — train travel is one of the oldest and most interesting. In this lesson, we shall read and discuss a passage describing a train journey.

Passage Summary:

The passage describes the narrator's journey by train from Lagos to Kaduna. The story highlights the preparation before the journey, the beauty of the natural scenery, experiences with other passengers, and the lessons learned from travelling. It teaches the importance of observation, patience, and appreciation of nature.

Extract (For Reading Practice):

“Last Saturday, my father took me to the train station in Lagos. We were going to visit my uncle in Kaduna. The train was long, with many shining coaches. When the whistle blew, the train began to move slowly, and I waved goodbye to my friends. Along the way, I saw forests, rivers, hills, and towns. Traders entered the train at different stops to sell snacks and drinks. Although the journey was long, it was full of excitement. When we finally arrived in Kaduna, it was already evening. I was tired but happy to have seen so many new places.”

Explanation of Difficult Words:

- Whistle: A sharp sound made by air through a small opening.
- Coach: A passenger compartment of a train.
- Scenery: The natural features of a place such as hills, forests, or rivers.
- Traders: People who buy and sell goods.
- Destination: The place to which someone or something is going.
- Excitement: A feeling of happiness and interest.

Themes and Lessons from the Passage:

- Travelling broadens knowledge and experience.
- Patience is necessary during long journeys.
- Observation helps us to appreciate nature.
- Politeness and good manners make journeys enjoyable.

Moral Values:

- Always obey travel rules and maintain order in public transport.
- Be respectful to fellow passengers.
- Always show gratitude and courtesy to elders.

EVALUATION

3. What did the narrator learn from the journey?
4. What is the meaning of the word “destination”?
5. Mention two moral lessons from the passage.

ASSIGNMENT

1. Write a short summary of the passage “A Journey by Train” in about 100 words.
2. Write five new words from the passage and use each in a sentence.
3. Explain two ways travelling can be beneficial to young people.

COMPOSITION: STORY WRITING – “AN INTERESTING JOURNEY I MADE”

Meaning of Story Writing:

Story writing (or narrative composition) is the act of telling a story or describing an event that happened or could happen. It may be true or imaginary. A good story is written in paragraphs that follow a logical order.

Structure of a Narrative Composition:

1. Title: The topic of your story must reflect the content (e.g., An Interesting Journey I Made).
2. Introduction: The beginning of the story — when, where, and why the journey was made.
3. Body: The main part — what happened during the journey, people met, experiences, and feelings.
4. Conclusion: How the journey ended and lessons learned.

Qualities of a Good Narrative Composition:

- Clear beginning, middle, and ending.
- Logical sequence of events.
- Correct use of tenses (mostly past tense).
- Use of time connectors: first, next, then, afterward, finally.
- Interesting and lively expression.

Useful Expressions for Story Writing:

- One bright morning...
- We set out very early...
- The road was rough and dusty...
- Suddenly, something unexpected happened...

- Finally, we arrived safely...

Sample Composition:

Last December, my family travelled to Calabar for Christmas. We left very early in the morning to avoid traffic. Along the way, we saw beautiful green hills and small villages. We stopped at Ore to eat rice and stew. Suddenly, one of our tyres burst, and we had to stop for repairs. While waiting, I chatted with some friendly travellers. After about thirty minutes, we continued our journey and finally arrived safely in Calabar by evening. It was a long but exciting journey, and I learned to be patient and cheerful in every situation.

Language and Expression Tips:

- Use past tense consistently (e.g., went, saw, met).
- Use adjectives to make your story interesting (e.g., beautiful, long, exciting).
- Avoid repeating the same words; use synonyms.
- Divide your story into clear paragraphs.

EVALUATION

1. What is a narrative composition?
2. List three features of a good story.
3. Why must a story have a logical sequence?
4. Identify two sequencing words used in a story.
5. Write one sentence that expresses excitement during a journey.

ASSIGNMENT

1. Write a composition on the topic: A Journey I Will Never Forget.

2. Your story should be in four paragraphs: introduction, main events, climax, and conclusion.
3. Underline ten verbs in your story and write them out separately.

LITERATURE IN ENGLISH: FIGURES OF SPEECH (REVISION AND APPLICATION)

Introduction:

Writers and poets use figures of speech to make their language more beautiful, interesting, and expressive. Figures of speech are ways of using words to create images, comparisons, or emphasis in order to make writing more powerful and imaginative.

1. Simile:

A simile is a comparison between two different things using as or like.

- Examples:
 - She is as gentle as a dove.
 - The boy runs like the wind.
- Effect: It makes descriptions more vivid and imaginative.

2. Metaphor:

A metaphor is a direct comparison between two different things without using as or like.

- Examples:
 - Time is a thief.
 - The world is a stage.
- Effect: It gives strong imagery and emotional force to writing.

3. Personification:

This figure of speech gives human qualities or actions to non-human things.

- Examples:
 - The sun smiled down on us.
 - The wind whispered through the trees.
- Effect: It makes nature or objects appear alive and friendly.

4. Hyperbole:

This is an exaggeration used for emphasis or humor.

- Examples:
 - I've told you a thousand times to sit down!
 - The bag weighed a ton.
- Effect: It stresses importance and adds humour or emphasis.

5. Onomatopoeia:

This is the use of words that imitate natural sounds.

- Examples:
 - The bees buzzed in the garden.
 - The thunder rumbled across the sky.
- Effect: It helps readers to “hear” the sounds being described.

6. Irony:

Saying the opposite of what is meant, often humorously.

- Example: The lazy man calls the hardworking one idle.
- Effect: It creates surprise or humor.

7. Alliteration:

The repetition of the same sound at the beginning of words.

- Example: Peter picked a peck of pickled pepper.
- Effect: It adds rhythm and musical quality to writing.

Application in Literature:

In literature, authors use figures of speech to create images, express emotions, and make readers enjoy the text more. For instance, in poetry, similes and metaphors are used to compare love, nature, or emotions.

EVALUATION

1. Define figure of speech.
2. Explain the difference between a simile and a metaphor.
3. Give two examples each of personification and hyperbole.
4. Identify the figure of speech in these sentences:
 - a. He fought like a lion.
 - b. My bed calls me every night.
 - c. The sun smiled on us.
5. Why do writers use figures of speech in literature?

ASSIGNMENT

1. Write five sentences using different figures of speech and identify each.
2. From your recommended literature text, copy out two examples of personification and explain their meanings.
3. Write a short poem (four lines) using at least two figures of speech.

THIRD TERM - JSS2 ENGLISH STUDIES LESSON NOTES

WEEK 1

SPEECH WORK: REVISION OF STRESS AND INTONATION

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define intonation and identify the falling (↘) and rising (↗) tones.
2. Define stress (emphatic and word-class) and explain its function in speech.
3. Demonstrate orally how emphatic stress changes the meaning of a sentence.
4. Correctly pronounce noun/verb pairs with different stress patterns (e.g., REcord vs. reCORD).
5. Combine both stress and intonation in simple sentences (statements, questions, commands).

Review 1: Intonation (The “Music” of Speech)

Definition: Intonation is the way the pitch (highness or lowness) of the voice rises and falls when speaking.

Types of Intonation:

1. Falling Tone (↘) – Sounds final and confident. Used for:
 - Statements: “The sky is ↘blue.”
 - Commands: “Sit ↘down.”
 - Wh-Questions: “What is your ↘name?”
2. Rising Tone (↗) – Sounds questioning, incomplete, or polite. Used for:
 - Yes/No Questions: “Are you ↗coming?”
 - Lists (except the last item): “I bought ↗rice, ↗beans, and ↘yams.”

Review 2: Stress (The “Beat” of Speech)

Definition: Stress is the emphasis (extra force, length, and higher pitch) given to a particular syllable in a word, or to a particular word in a sentence.

Type A: Emphatic Stress (Changing Meaning)

Emphatic stress shows the word that carries the main information or contrast in a sentence.

Example Sentence: “Tunde gave Bisi the red bag.”

- “TUNDE gave Bisi the red bag.” → (Meaning: Tunde, not Ayo.)
- “Tunde GAVE Bisi the red bag.” → (Meaning: He gave, not sold.)
- “Tunde gave BISI the red bag.” → (Meaning: Bisi, not her sister.)
- “Tunde gave Bisi the RED bag.” → (Meaning: Not the blue one.)
- “Tunde gave Bisi the red BAG.” → (Meaning: Not the red shoe.)

Type B: Word-Class Stress (Noun vs. Verb)

Many two-syllable words change stress depending on whether they are nouns or verbs.

- Rule:
 - Noun → Stress the first syllable.
 - Verb → Stress the second syllable.

Examples:

- “I have a good REcord.” (Noun) / “Please reCORD my voice.” (Verb)
- “He is a REbel.” (Noun) / “They reBEL against the king.” (Verb)
- “Cocoa is our main EXport.” (Noun) / “We exPORT cocoa.” (Verb)

EVALUATION

1. What is the main difference between a Falling Tone and a Rising Tone?
2. What intonation pattern is used for “Where is your book?”
3. What intonation pattern is used for “Is that your book?”
4. Say the sentence “I want the blue pen” to mean “not the red one.”
5. Pronounce “import” as a noun and then as a verb.

ASSIGNMENT

1. Write one sentence that uses a Falling Tone and mark it (↘).
2. Write one sentence that uses a Rising Tone and mark it (↗).
3. Write the sentence “My mother is going to the market” three times:
 - (a) Underline the word to stress if you mean “my mother, not my father.”
 - (b) Underline the word to stress if you mean “to the market, not to the church.”
 - (c) Underline the word to stress if you mean “is going, not has gone.”
4. Write one sentence using present as a noun.
5. Write one sentence using present as a verb.

GRAMMAR: THE USE OF CONJUNCTIONS – ALTHOUGH AND WHEREAS AS CONTRASTS

PERFORMANCE OBJECTIVES

By the end of this lesson, students should be able to:

1. Define “conjunction” and its purpose.
2. Define “contrast” as showing a difference or opposition.
3. Use although (and though) to show an unexpected result.
4. Use whereas to show a direct comparison or difference.
5. Differentiate between the use of although and whereas in sentences.

Definition:

A conjunction is a joining word that connects words, phrases, or clauses.

Examples: and, but, or, so, because, although, whereas.

Using “Although” (and “Though”)

- Purpose: To show an unexpected result or concession.
- Meaning: In spite of the fact that...
- Structure: Introduces a dependent clause that contrasts with a main clause.

Examples:

- “Although it was raining, he went to play football.”
- “He failed the test although he studied hard.”
- “Though tired, she continued working.”

Using “Whereas”

- Purpose: To show a direct comparison or contrast between two equal facts.

COMPOSITION: REPORT WRITING

1. Meaning of Report Writing

A report is a formal and factual written account of an event, situation, or investigation that has already taken place. It presents information clearly, truthfully, and in a logical sequence so that the reader can understand exactly what happened without confusion or bias.

A report is not based on opinions or emotions but on facts and observations.

Reports are often written by students, prefects, secretaries, class captains, and journalists to inform people in authority—like the principal, the head teacher, or a committee—about an event or an incident.

2. PURPOSE OF REPORT WRITING

The main purpose of report writing is to inform. It presents accurate information about a particular event or issue so that the reader can understand what happened and make decisions if necessary.

Other purposes include:

- To record important events or findings.
- To give feedback to superiors or officials.
- To provide evidence of an occurrence.
- To make recommendations for action.

For example:

- A class captain writes a report to the principal about a broken window.
- A club secretary writes a report to the patron about the club's recent meeting.
- A journalist writes a report about a public event for the newspaper.

3. CHARACTERISTICS (FEATURES) OF A GOOD REPORT

A good report should:

- Be factual: It must be based only on what actually happened.
- Be clear and concise: Avoid unnecessary details or long sentences.
- Be objective: The writer should not include personal opinions or emotions.
- Be organized: The information must be arranged in a logical, time-based order.
- Be formal: The tone should be serious and respectful. Avoid slang, jokes, or contractions.
- Be written in the past tense: Since it is about something that has already happened.

4. LANGUAGE AND STYLE OF A REPORT

The language used in a report is formal and simple.

Key features include:

- Third person point of view (he, she, they, the students).
- Past tense verbs (e.g., The event began at 9 a.m.).
- No exaggerations or personal emotions.
- Correct grammar, punctuation, and paragraphing.

Avoid phrases like:

“It was so amazing and I was very happy.”

Use instead:

“The event was well-organized and successful.”

5. FORMAT OF A FORMAL REPORT

A formal report usually follows this structure:

1. Title:

The title should be specific, written in capital letters, and underlined.

Example: A REPORT ON THE 2025 INTER-HOUSE SPORTS COMPETITION.

2. Introduction:

The introduction briefly explains:

- What the event was about
- When and where it took place
- Who organized or attended it

Example:

The annual inter-house sports competition of Bright Future College was held on Friday, 10th March 2025, at the school field. All students, teachers, and some parents were present.

3. Body:

This section gives detailed information about what happened during the event in chronological order (that is, in the order the events occurred).

- Paragraph 1: Describe how the event began.
- Paragraph 2: State the major activities or incidents.
- Paragraph 3: Mention any special guests, important speeches, or accidents if any occurred.

4. Conclusion:

The conclusion summarizes the overall outcome of the event and may give recommendations or remarks.

Example:

Signed:

Adebayo Tunde
Class Captain, JSS 2

WEEK 6

SPEECH WORK

TOPIC: CONSONANT SOUNDS /w/ AND /j/ (AS IN WONDER / UNIVERSITY AND WIN / YELLOW)

The consonant sounds /w/ and /j/ are called semi-vowels or approximants. They are special because, although they are consonants, they are produced with the mouth fairly open, just like vowel sounds. These sounds do not block the airflow completely; instead, the air passes smoothly through a narrow space, creating a gliding sound.

1. The /w/ Sound – The “wuh” Sound:

- Type: Voiced labio-velar approximant.
- How to Produce:
 - Round your lips tightly as if to say oo in “food.”
 - Raise the back of your tongue toward the soft palate (velum).
 - Vibrate your vocal cords as you release the air.
 - The sound is made as you glide from the /w/ position to the following vowel, e.g., w-w-w-wonder.
- Common Spellings:
 - w: win, wonder, wet, away
 - u: quick (/kwɪk/), language (/læŋɡwɪdʒ/)
 - o: one (/wʌn/)

2. The /j/ Sound – The “yuh” Sound:

- Type: Voiced palatal approximant.
- How to Produce:
 - Raise the middle or front of your tongue very close to the hard palate (as if about to say ee in “feel”).

- Vibrate your vocal cords.
- Glide quickly away from this position to the next vowel, e.g., y-y-y-yellow.
- Common Spellings:
 - y: yellow, yes, yard, beyond
 - u: use (/ju:z/), university, union
 - ew: few (/fju:/)
 - eu: Europe

Both /w/ and /j/ are voiced (the vocal cords vibrate) and are used at the beginning of many English words.

EVALUATION:

1. Why are /w/ and /j/ called semi-vowels?
2. What part of the mouth is used in making the /w/ sound?
3. What part of the mouth is used in making the /j/ sound?

WEEK 10

SPEECH WORK: REVIEW OF CONSONANT AND VOWEL SOUNDS

This week's lesson is a comprehensive review of all the phonetic sounds in English—both vowels and consonants—in preparation for examinations.

Vowels and Consonants:

Vowels are speech sounds produced with an open mouth and without any obstruction of airflow. All vowels are voiced.

Consonants are speech sounds produced with partial or complete blockage of the airflow by the lips, teeth, or tongue.

Types of Vowels:

1. Pure Vowels (Monophthongs) – There are 12 in English, e.g.:

/i:/ in seat, /ɪ/ in sit, /æ/ in cat, /ɑ:/ in father.

2. Diphthongs (Glides) – There are 8 in English, e.g.:

/eɪ/ in say, /aɪ/ in my, /ɔɪ/ in boy.

Voicing in Consonants:

- Voiceless Sounds: Produced without vibration of the vocal cords (e.g., /p/, /t/, /k/, /f/, /θ/, /s/, /ʃ/, /tʃ/).
- Voiced Sounds: Produced with vibration of the vocal cords (e.g., /b/, /d/, /g/, /v/, /ð/, /z/, /ʒ/, /dʒ/).

Practice Drill:

Say: p-b-p-b-p-b (feel vibration difference), t-d-t-d, k-g-k-g, s-z-s-z.

Problem Pairs in Consonants:

/s/ vs /z/ → sip / zip

/ʃ/ vs /tʃ/ → sheep / cheap

/θ/ vs /ð/ → thin / this

/n/ vs /ŋ/ → sin / sing

Problem Pairs in Vowels:

/ɪ/ vs /i:/ → ship / sheep

/ʊ/ vs /u:/ → pull / pool

/ɒ/ vs /ɔ:/ → shot / short

/e/ vs /ei/ → wet / wait

Class Activity:

Students take turns reading a short passage aloud, focusing on accurate pronunciation of problem sounds.

EVALUATION

1. What is the main difference between a vowel and a consonant?
2. What is the difference between /t/ and /d/?
3. Which sound is found in this?
4. Which sound is found in think?
5. Which sound is found in sing?

ASSIGNMENT

1. Write one minimal pair for /s/ and /z/.
2. Write one minimal pair for /ʃ/ and /tʃ/.
3. Write one minimal pair for /ɪ/ and /i:/.
4. Write one minimal pair for /ʊ/ and /u:/.
5. Write one sentence containing both /θ/ and /ð/ sounds.

SPEECH WORK: REVIEW OF CONSONANT SOUNDS WITH EMPHASIS ON /θ/ AND /ð/

This lesson is a final review of consonant sounds, focusing on the two dental fricatives — /θ/ and /ð/ — which are often difficult for learners to pronounce correctly.

1. Meaning of Consonant Sounds:

Consonants are speech sounds produced when the air from the lungs meets some obstruction in the mouth, teeth, or lips. Unlike vowels, there is partial or total blockage of air when producing consonants.

2. Review of Problem Consonant Pairs:

- /p/ vs. /b/ → pin / bin (voiceless vs. voiced)
- /t/ vs. /d/ → ten / den (voiceless vs. voiced)
- /k/ vs. /g/ → coat / goat (voiceless vs. voiced)
- /s/ vs. /z/ → sip / zip (voiceless vs. voiced)
- /ʃ/ vs. /tʃ/ → ship / chip (fricative vs. affricate)

3. The Focus Sounds – /θ/ and /ð/

Both are dental fricatives, meaning the tip of the tongue is placed gently between the upper and lower teeth, and air passes through.

- /θ/ – voiceless (no vibration)
Examples: think, three, thank, path, bath, mouth (noun)
- /ð/ – voiced (vibration in the throat)
Examples: this, that, they, father, mother, breathe (verb)

4. Pronunciation Practice:

Drill the following pairs and sentences:

- “This thing is thin.”
- “They thought that those three were thieves.”

- “My father and mother thanked them.”
- “Think before you breathe.”

5. Common Errors:

- Nigerian learners often pronounce /θ/ as /t/ and /ð/ as /d/.
Examples: “tink” for “think” or “dis” for “this”.
Correct by practicing slowly with the tongue between the teeth.

EVALUATION

1. What is a consonant sound?

3. State the difference between /θ/ and /ð/.
4. Give two examples of words with /θ/.

Example: She is not coming, is she?

2. The Tag Uses the Auxiliary Verb or 'Be' Verb in the Statement:
